Truman Says Bond Drive Is for Peace And Security

President Truman called upon the Nation last night to support the Treasury's new savings bond drive as part of the effort the country is making "for the security of our country and for the peace of the world."

In the days of Alexander Hamilton as Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Truman said, appeals for investment in Government securities were made to the wealthy.

Today, the President commented, millions of Americans are able to buy bonds.

Parade at Independence

The goal for this drive, to end June 30, is $1,040,000,000 in Series E bonds.

The President's talk was part of a program which centered at Kansas City. Earlier in the day the bond campaign had started with a "Covered Wagon" parade at Independence, Mo.

The President spoke from the movie projection room of the White House.

The ability of many Americans to buy bonds now, Mr. Truman said, marked the success of efforts "to establish a Nation of free people in which all men have a fair chance to share in the benefits of their labor."

"We are going ahead to build further on these foundations," Mr. Truman continued.

"We shall strengthen our social security system, improve our laws protecting the rights of workers, and strengthen our program for assuring a fair income to the farmer. We shall work constantly to bring greater happiness and greater opportunity to all our citizens."

The President said that Alexander Hamilton 160 years ago appealed to the "wealthy people" to invest in government securities. He said he did so because there were few persons then who had money they could invest in bonds and secondly the wealthy people had great influence, and Hamilton wanted them to have a stake in the success of the Federal Government so they would give it their support.

"We have come a long way," since that time. "The Federal Government, whose very survival was then uncertain, is today the safest place in the world in which to invest money.

"Furthermore, it is no longer just a wealthy few who are able to buy government bonds. Today, millions of Americans—farmers, workers, and professional people, as well as merchants and bankers—own Government bonds."

Independence Marks Campaign With Holiday

Independence, Mo., May 16 (U.P.). President Truman's home town, queen city of the frontier 100 years go, gave itself a rousing Western holiday today to start the Treasury Department's biggest postwar bond drive.

An estimated 40,000 persons jammed the town square to see a parade including 30 covered wagons, flown here from Utah for the "modern forty-niner" procession.

Twin Girls Born United at Tops Of Their Heads

Los Angeles, May 16 (AP).—Twin girls born with the tops of their heads joined were given a strong chance for survival today at General Hospital.

Dr. Phoebus Berman said the case may be the first of its kind in medical history.

"We believe they will live," he said. "Any surgery will have to be drastic, and would occur only after many consultations."

The first twin arrived at 11:23 p. m. (PST) Saturday, followed two minutes later by her sister. Their mother, 35, has seven other children.

Except for the union of heads, the babies are normal. Each has a complete nervous system. X-rays failed to disclose whether they have one or two brains.

Forestry Aid Increase Is Approved by House

The House yesterday unanimously approved and sent to the Senate a bill to increase gradually Federal aid to States for the protection and replanting of forest lands.

The Agriculture Department now spends nine million dollars a year in matching State allotments for reforestation work. The bill would increase this to eleven million dollars during the 1950 fiscal year starting July 1, and authorize the department to raise the ante by two million dollars each successive year through fiscal 1954. Thereafter the annual Federal allotment would be $20,000,000.

Reds' Ticket Takes Licking In Berlin Poll

Many Russian Zone Voters Say 'No' to Communist Rule

Berlin (Tuesday), May 17 (AP).—First returns today from eastern Berlin in the Soviet zone elections showed the Communists were taking a licking.

This was in contrast with the confident predictions of Communist politicians in the Soviet zone of occupation that an overwhelming majority of the voters would support them.

The voting took place Sunday and yesterday, for a "People's Congress" of 2000 members, all handpicked by Communist-controlled organizations, and put on a single ticket.

The main election committee of the "People's Congress" for Berlin announced that of 7000 votes counted, only 2820 indorsed the list of candidates on the ballot. A total of 3809 votes said no. Some wrote on their ballots "We won't vote for a police state and we reject communism." About 350 votes were declared invalid.

The early returns from Berlin showed a majority of "No" votes—the only way the congress could be rejected, since only one list of candidates was submitted.

Russian-controlled propaganda outlets gave no returns. They released reports only of a heavy vote being cast, ranging from 83.3 to 97.8 per cent.

The "People's Congress" would be the Soviet answer to the western state being set up in the western occupation zone by the British, French and Americans. It would back Russia in the four-power conference on Germany, scheduled to open in Paris Monday.

Morningside's Citizens Vote To Incorporate

Residents of Morningside just over the District Line in Prince Georges County voted last night 148½ to 94½ to incorporate.

A total of 246 out of 400 eligible voters cast ballots. Husbands and wives who shared ownership of a home were allowed to split their votes, accounting for the half votes.

Immediately after the balloting the Board of Election Supervisors called a special election for June 4 to select the town officials.

The incorporation plan provides for a five-man council.

Senate Votes to Give Truman Wide Reorganization Powers

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday approved broad authority for President Truman to reorganize the Government without any Federal agencies exempt.

Merger plans would become effective automatically unless either house passed a resolution of disapproval within 60 days.

The reorganization authority, repeatedly requested by the President and recommended by the Hoover Commission, cleared the Senate in the record time of 90 minutes.

The measure now goes to conference with the House, which has approved a somewhat different version.

Neither bill gave the President exactly what he asked.

Mr. Truman wanted his merger plans to become law unless both Houses of Congress disapproved within 60 days. He opposed any agency exemptions.

The House agreed to the two-house veto, but exempted seven agencies. The Senate struck out the exemptions, but provided that either house would veto a merger plan.

The House continued the reorganization authority indefinitely but the Senate voted an April 1, 1953, termination date.

In many ways, however, the Senate bill was broader than either the House bill or the now expired 1945 Reorganization Act:

1. Mr. Truman would have more latitude in creation of new agencies. He could even establish new executive departments of Cabinet rank. But two or more departments could not be consolidated, except by statute.

2. The District of Columbia, which has heretofore been left out, was included "to permit improvements in the structure of the District government and to facilitate adjustments in the division of activities as between District and Federal agencies."

3. Top officials were granted authority to delegate routine functions vested in them by law. This would relieve the President and other high officials from performing relatively unimportant duties, which now can't be delegated to minor officials.

To the surprise of leaders, the usually slow-moving Senate passed the bill with virtually no debate. Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), who handled the bill, made the only major speech.

McClellan estimated some 25 per cent of the Hoover Commission recommendations may be initiated by President Truman under the authority granted him in the bill.

He said another 40 per cent of the commission's recommendations can be implemented by administrative action and only about a third will require direct legislation.

Urging approval of a "clean bill," McClellan said he would not yield in conference on Senate provisions removing agency exemptions and permitting either House to "veto" a presidential merger plea.

Danish Ship Sinks in Gale Off Greenland

Halifax, Nova Scotia, May 16 (U.P.).—The Danish motor schooner [illegible]ba sank in a gale 100 miles southwest of Greenland early to[illegible] and snow squalls interrupted searches for the crew members who were last reported fighting heavy seas in lifeboats.

The crews of four United States military planes which took off from northern bases to search for survivors were forced to return to Greenland to wait until the weather cleared.

However, the United States Coast Cutter Owasco, operating as a North Atlantic weather station, was plunging through the waves to conduct a surface search.

It was believed that the Ebba carried a crew of 20 to 25 men.

The Ebba, chartered by the Danish Greenland Administration, was equipped to pump sand ashore for building construction in Greenland.

Newsweek Editor Drowned at Biloxi

Biloxi, Miss., May 16 (U.P.).—Harry M. Davis, 38, science editor of Newsweek Magazine, drowned in the Gulf of Mexico tonight.

Davis' body was recovered after he failed to come up from a dive off the steps of a pier. The body was recovered from about four feet of water.

'Morning Sickness' Alleviated By Drug Used for Sea Nausea

Baltimore, May 16 (AP).—Dramamine, the drug that conquered seasickness, may be useful against morning sickness. Its effect on pregnant women suffering nausea and vomiting known as "morning sickness" has been "encouraging, sometimes dramatic."

But these findings are highly tentative, Johns Hopkins Hospital physicians cautioned today, and must await large-scale studies.

Dr. Melvin Radman, Baltimore gynecologist, made the first tests. He reported the drug alleviated or eliminated symptoms of upset in 33 of 45 pregnancies chosen for treatment.

Dramamine's use for sea, air and car sickness has been effective in almost 100 per cent of the cases.

Dr. Leslie N. Gay and Dr. Paul Carliner of the Hopkins allergy clinic are engaged in tests for other uses.

Eisler Denied Bond, Stays In Jail 8 Days

London, May 16 (AP).—A British court refused bail today for bond-jumping Gerhart Eisler and sent the bespectacled Communist back to jail. He will spend at least eight days, until May 24, in a cell awaiting a hearing on whether he will be returned to the United States as a fugitive.

An involved international controversy developed around Eisler, who had tried to flee American authorities by stowing away aboard the Polish liner Batory. Eisler claims he was a political refugee enjoying asylum under the Polish flag when he was "kidnaped" in violation of international law.

Poland Demands His Release

The Polish government today demanded his release and an apology from British authorities for dragging Eisler from the Batory off Southampton Saturday. Britain's House of Commons argued the case and then passed on to other business to await the findings of the court.

Eisler made two appearances in court today. First the 52-year-old defendant was brought before a magistrates' court in Southampton, which shunted the case to London's Bow Street Court, the only court in England with jurisdiction in an extradition case.

Magistrate J. W. Eastwood of the Bow Street Court turned down the bail plea of Eisler's counsel and ordered the round-faced Red "remanded in custody."

He Must Show Cause

The proceedings at Bow Street lasted 25 minutes. Then a warder led Eisler off to a cellblock. In his forthcoming appearance in court he must show cause why he should not be extradited. Later Eisler was removed to Brixton Prison in the Lambeth District. No reason was given for the transfer.

Eisler jumped bail of $23,500 when he fled from New York aboard the Batory a week ago Friday. He faces two prison sentences in the United States, one for a year for contempt of a congressional committee, and the other for one to three years in a Federal Court conviction on passport frauds.

A congressional committee has described Eisler as the No. 1 Communist agent in the United States. He is a German national.

Three harassed spokesmen for the British Foreign Office parried a hail of reporters' questions about the case at a crowded news conference. The spokesmen reaffirmed Britain's right to arrest Eisler.

Privately Vexed

But the private reaction of many Foreign Office officials was expressed by one who said:

"We needed the Eisler case like we needed a hole in our heads. Why do these things have to happen to us?"

The Foreign and Home Offices have disclaimed responsibility for the actual decision to arrest Eisler.

Opposes Check on Atom Students

Lilienthal Fears Government Will Interfere With Education

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission yesterday told Congress he opposed an FBI loyalty check of AEC fellowship students on the ground that it would open the way for Government interference with education.

Lilienthal explained to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee that the commission leaves the selection of promising students in the scientific field, to whom AEC fellowships are to be awarded, to the National Research Council. The council, a non-governmental body, affiliated with the National Academy of Sciences, is chartered by Congress.

Dr. A. N. Richards, president of the National Academy, emphatically backed Lilienthal in opposition to FBI loyalty checks for students.

Both appeared before a hastily called session of the joint committee after congressional furor over word that two known Communists had been granted fellowships on taxpayers' funds by the AEC.

Richards made it clear he was speaking for himself alone and not for the Academy. He and Lilienthal agreed that the granting of a $1600 one-year fellowship to Hans Friestadt, self-acknowleged Communist Party member who is now at the University of North Carolina had been "a mistake" from the standpoint of the commission, but not necessarily a mistake from the standpoint of science.

Under questioning by Representative Elston (R., Ohio), Lilienthal said he wanted to hear the opinion of the National Research Council before he would favor taking any action in the case of Friestadt.

What if the council recommended continuance of the fellowship? Elston asked.

"I think we would have to accept that or put an end to the fellowship program," Lilienthal replied.

Friestadt has been invited to testify before the committee if he so desires, Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) announced last night. His statement followed a short executive session of the committee.

Lilienthal told the committee he felt that the danger of Federal in-

U. N. Assembly Keeps Ban on Franco Spain

26-15 Tally Is 4 Votes Shy of 2/3 Majority; New Sanctions Beaten

New York, May 16 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly tonight stuck to its three-year ban on Franco Spain. But it also beat down an effort by the Slav bloc to slap economic restrictions on the Madrid government.

In a flurry of roll calls, the Assembly:

1. Voted 26 to 15, with 16 abstentions and 2 absences, on a Latin-American resolution which would have permitted U. N. members to send ambassadors and ministers back to Madrid. This proposal failed to pass because it did not get a two-thirds majority.

2. Voted down a resolution by Poland which would have kept U. N. members from sending arms to Spain and would put sanctions on trade with Madrid. The six Slav countries picked up some support on various paragraphs but never approached even a majority vote. The final vote on the whole resolution was six in favor, 40 opposed and seven abstentions.

The United States and Britain abstained on the Latin-American proposal but voted against the Polish plan.

The Assembly action meant the U. N. stands by two resolutions approved in its 1946 sessions.

One resolution bars Franco from membership in the U. N. and any of its specialized agencies. The other resolution asked all U. N. members to recall from Madrid their ambassadors and ministers, leaving only lesser officials.

Just before the balloting, Juliusz Katz-Suchy of Poland denied heatedly a charge by Britain's Hector McNeil that Spain contracted for 500 plane engines and propellers from Poland last November.

Katz-Suchy declared from the Assembly rostrum that Poland had no commercial relations with Franco Spain and had not supplied it with plane engines or propellers.

McNeil, chief assistant to Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, did not say whether the engines and propellers ever were delivered. But he said they "almost certainly" were intended for Spanish-built Heinkel bomber frames for which Britain had refused to sell Spain engines in 1945.

The Heinkel bomber was a German type.

Fete Awaits Gen. Clay on Arrival Today

Truman Asks Senate For 4-Star Rank On Retirement

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military commander in Germany, comes home today to receive the applause and honors of an admiring Nation.

President Truman asked the Senate yesterday to permit Clay to retire from the service with the rank of full general. He now holds the permanent rank of major general, but has been entitled to wear the four stars of a full general under a temporary appointment.

General Clay, accompanied by Mrs. Clay, is scheduled to arrive at the Military Air Transport field at 10:15 a. m. today. He will be greeted by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Undersecretary Stephen T. Early, and the civilian and uniformed chiefs of the armed services.

From the airport he and Mrs. Clay will go to the White House for a welcome by the President and Mrs. Truman. Weather permitting, the ceremony will be held in the rose garden. Cabinet officers, Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn and other congressional leaders have been invited.

Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), House majority leader, said that General Clay also would be a guest at the Capitol during the day.

Berlin Names Street For General Clay

Berlin, May 16 (U.P.).—The name of Gen. Lucius D. Clay will join those of Kaiser Wilhelm and Count Otto von Bismarck in the Berlin street directory.

City officials have decided to name the street on which the retiring American military governor lived "General Lucius Clay Strasse." It was previously called "Im Dol."

Hungary Says Soldier Was Shot by Yugoslavs

Britons Soon to Get More Fresh Meat

London, May 16 (AP). — An announcement that Britons soon will be able to buy about four cents more worth of fresh meat a week brought cheers in Commons today.

Food Administrator John Strachey said the toal ration would not be increased but, beginning May 22, fresh meat would be substituted for the two pence worth of corned meat now part of the ration.

House Bill Making 2% Levy Wins Approval

Measure Now Heads For Conference to Seek Agreements on Changed Provisions

(Roll call on Page 9)

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday approved the District revenue bill, including a 2 per cent retail sales tax, to start August 1.

By a 48 to 21 vote, the Senate returned to the House the bill to boost District revenues by 13 million a year from the sales tax and about 5 milion a year from other sources.

The measure is to be sent to conference, House District leaders indicated, to seek agreement on changes which the Senate made in the House-approved version of the measure.

McGrath Version Cleared

Passage at 5:13 p. m. cleared the measure in substantially the form recommended by the Senate District Committee majority headed by Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.). A subcommittee of which Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) was chairman, drafted the bill.

The Senate voted for an approximate doubling of liquor gallonage taxes, whereas the committee had called for only a 50 per cent boost. The liquor tax, too, would take effect August 1, if finally approved.

The Senate vote gave what amounts to final sanction to these other tax increase measures:

1. A 1-year boost of 15 cents in the present $2 per $100 tax on real property, for the fiscal year starting July 1.

2. A 50 per cent boost in liquor license fees, effective August 1.

3. Revision of the personal and unincorporated business income taxes here. The personal exemption for a payer of the District income tax is to be boosted from $1000 to $4000 for income received after Dec. 31, 1949.

Federal Employe Provision

The present bill erases the special exemption from the District income tax for the official salaries of Federal employes here with a legal domicile elsewhere. Elected officials, some Presidential appointees, and most members of Congressional office staffs would be exempt.

Chief change in the unincorporated business tax is a reduction of the exemption, effective Jan. 1, 1949, from $10,000 to $5000.

These features, approved by the House, were unchanged by the Senate, and are not subject to revision in conference.

The August 1 effective date for the sales and liquor tax changes assumes that the bill is finally passed and signed by the President this month. As now written, sales

Flags and Stands Go Up in City For Dutra Parade

Flags and grandstands went up yesterday in preparation for the arrival in Washington Wednesday of Brazilian President Eurico Gaspar Dutra.

Brazilian flags, 100,000 of them, from lampposts along Constitution and Pennsylvania aves., the parade route along which Presidents Dutra and Truman will proceed in a 30-car motorcade from National Airport, shortly after 4 p. m., Wednesday.

President Dutra left Brazil by air yesterday for San Juan, Puerto Rico, the first step in his leisurely trip to return a visit paid by President Truman to Rio de Janeiro in 1947.

The advance guard of President Dutra's party, Brazilian Foreign Minister Raul Fernandes, arrived in New York yesterday.

Extremism at Issue

Supreme Court Divides 5-to-4 On Freedom of Speech Case

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

In a 5-to-4 split both acrimonious and historic, the Supreme Court yesterday declared freedom of speech must apply to extremists who abuse it even if their words stir people to "anger" or bring about public "unrest."

For the majority, Justice William O. Douglas declared that while freedom of speech is "no absolute," it must be protected against censorship or punishment unless it is likely to cause much more than "public inconvenience, annoyance or unrest."

Answering this in a stinging minority opinion, Justice Robert H. Jackson charged the majority with removing all restraints on crowds and mobs and making local police powerless to deal with Fascists and Communists who would battle in the streets to further their aim of destroying democracy.

"There is a danger," Jackson said, "that, if the court does not temper its doctrinaire logic with a little practical wisdom, it will convert the constitutional Bill of Rights into a suicide pact."

The choice, he said, is "not between order and liberty" but "between liberty with order and anarchy without either."

But in Douglas' view, the lower courts had gone too far in permitting conviction merely because a man's speech "stirred people to anger, invited public dispute or brought about a condition of unrest." He added:

"A conviction resting on any of those grounds may not stand."

Douglas had with him in the majority his three fellow liberals—Justice Hugo L. Black, Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge—plus Stanley F. Reed.

The minority four split two ways:

Justice Felix Frankfurter, joined by both Jackson and Justice Harold H. Burton, declared the Court, for the first time in 150 years, was reversing a State court on a ground not actually raised by the party making the appeal. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson wrote another dissent likewise on technical grounds.

Jackson's dissent was joined by Burton and Frankfurter said he shared Jackson's views.

The case involved Arthur Terminiello, then an Alabama Catholic priest under suspension by his bishop for political activity. He now is an assistant pastor in Pensacola, Fla. Terminiello on February 7, 1946, spoke at a Chicago west side meeting organized by Gerald L. K. Smith, who called the priest the "Father Coughlin of the South." He was fine $100 and appealed to the Supreme Court after the Illinois Supreme Court upheld his disorderly conduct conviction.

The basis of the disagreement between Douglas and Jackson was, in Jackson's view, whether free speech should make concessions "to society's need for public order."

Obviously drawing on his experiences as American judge in the German war trials at Nuernberg, Jackson said no one would disagree with the majority's "generalized approbations of freedom of speech" but that the majority was avoiding the ugly facts of the case, so reminiscent of European experiences.

He took nearly eight pages to give parts of the priest's provocative speech which, he said, "followed, with a fidelity that is more

5 Writers to Speak Tonight At Constitution Hall Program

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Five of the best known contemporary authors will appear on a public program at Constitution Hall tonight.

The authors, outstanding in their fields, include: Arnold J. Toynbee, sometimes called "the greatest living historian"; Esther Forbes, novelist and Pulitzer Prize winner in history; Munro Leaf, who sprang to fame with "The Story of Ferdinand" and whose most recent juvenile is "Sam and the Superdroop"; energetic foreign correspondent Quentin Reynolds, and John Mason Brown, theater critic.

The 8:40 p. m. "Book and Author Night" program is sponsored by the American Booksellers Association, holding its convention at the Hotel Shoreham, and co-sponsored by The Washington Post. Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Post, will be chairman of the program.

Tickets will be on sale today at The Washington Post and Constitution Hall. Orchestra seats are $1.80, balcony $1 and boxes $2.40.

The most recent book of Toynbee, author of "A Study of History," is "Civilization on Trial." Esther Forbes' newest book is "The Running of the Tide," Quen-

U. S. Decides Today On Ford Strike Step

CIO Leftists Deny Intent To Walk Out

NYHT News Service

Spokesmen for two left-wing CIO unions involved in a fight with national organization leadership, said yesterday that, whatever the outcome of the dispute, they have no intention of walking out of the CIO.

The left-wing vs. right-wing row, which was discussed yesterday at a meeting of CIO vice-presidents in President Philip Murray's office, and will be taken up today and Wednesday when the 52-man CIO executive board meets, has stirred speculation in some quarters that if the leftist unions are defeated during the current meetings — as they are almost certain to be — they may stage a walkout.

Walkout Talk Denied

Statements intended to scotch this speculation came yesterday from officials of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America—the largest of the left-wing unions—headed by Albert J. Fitzgerald, and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, of which Harry Bridges is president.

"We have no intention of getting out," a highly placed U. E. official said. "We helped build that CIO. It looks like we'll stay in the CIO and fight and fight to make it a good outfit."

"That's ridiculous," was the comment of an ILWU spokesman. He pointed out that delegates to its recent convention at San Francisco, despite their attacks on the leadership of Murray, were almost unanimous in stating that their union should remain within the CIO.

Recommendations Weighed

The vice presidents met all day preparing recommendations to be made to the board meeting today.

Murray, who has taken a strong stand against the left-wing unions, which number nine or ten and, according to Murray's aides, have 750,000 to 1,000,000 members, is expected to lay down the law to them today.

Although the board cannot itself punish or suspend the dissidents, it possesses the strong weapon of a recommendation to the union's convention in October that a union or its officials be suspended.

Detroit, May 16 (AP).—The Federal Government will decide Tuesday whether it will enter the Ford strike dispute immediately.

Another session between representatives of the CIO United Auto Workers and Ford Motor Co. broke up late today with no reports of progress.

Immediately afterward Federal Mediator Arthur C. Viat scheduled separate talks with both parties before Tuesday's negotiations. He said he would hear both sides of the dispute.

He promised to announce his decision then.

Cyrus S. Ching, Federal mediation director, has given Viat full freedom of action. Viat is Detroit regional director for the United States mediation service.

Ford Cool Toward Mediation

The Union, which invited mediation, appeared ready to insist that the Government enter talks immediately. Ford, however, was cool toward the idea.

The company held to the belief that a settlement could best be reached by the disputing parties themselves.

Government participation in the talks would have no binding effect. A mediator's chief job is to introduce ideas for compromise on disputed points and to try to persuade the parties to accept them.

As the sixth peace session broke up, the strike of 65,000 Ford workers dragged on into its twelfth day. More than 100,000 Ford employes have been idled altogether, plus undetermined thousands in supplier plants.

The dispute involves the union's charges of a "speed-up" at two Detroit plants. Ford denies the charge.

Ching Sees Reuther Here

Meanwhile, in Washington, Ching conferred with UAW President Walter Reuther. He said he would talk the situation over with Henry Ford II, president of the company, by telephone.

Federal mediators are "standing by," he said. "Whatever we can do, that's what we want to do."

The union has asked Federal mediation to help settle the strike, called in support of UAW charges that Ford's assembly line at times moves too fast in ratio to the manpower involved.

Union Balks at Arbitration

Ford has denied such a situation exists. The company insists that proper assembly-line speed can best be determined by an impartial arbitrator. The union refuses to submit the matter to arbitration.

Ford promised "all possible assistance" to Federal mediators if they elect to join the talks. But Vice President John S. Bugas declared, "we prefer to be left alone."

Could Have Done Better Than Ching, Tobin Says

Boston, May 16 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin says his department could have averted the Ford motor strike.

Tobin told a press conference that he wished the strike came under his jurisdiction.

"I would have had my man on the job before the employes went on strike and the dispute would have been settled," he asserted. "I don't believe a strike was necessary."

Tobin said one of his assistants, John Gibson, "is a very prominent and well-liked former CIO official from Michigan." "I feel confident he could have settled the dispute without a strike being called."

The Labor Secretary told newsmen he believed his department would have been more capable of handling the strike problem than Cyrus B. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service who has been requested to intervene by the union.

There was no immediate comment from Ching in Washington.

Virginia AFL Hears Attack On Taft Law

Richmond, Va., May 16 (AP).—The Taft-Hartley Act is "fundamentally dishonest" legislation, a West Virginia labor leader told delegates to the Virginia Federation of Labor's fifty-third annual convention here today.

The act "was passed to weaken and eventually destroy the unions," Eugene Carter, president of the West Virginia Federation of Labor, told the meeting.

Carter pointed the way to what probably will be the principal labor issue of the three-day convention, attended by approximately 475 representatives of AFL unions throughout Virginia.

Carter asserted that supporters of the labor act "don't like the idea of strong unions that get out the vote for their friends."

"The workers of America are where they are today because they combined their efforts for common objectives," he declared.

69 YEARS OF SERVICE—The venerable excursion steamer, Potomac (left), built in 1880, lies alongside the smaller Bear Mountain which takes over her run here on May 28. The Potomac will be towed to Baltimore to be scrapped.

AFL Leaders Study Reports Of Fewer Jobs

Cleveland, May 16 (AP).—AFL leaders began a quick survey today of reports of rising unemployment and the possible effect on a fourth round of postwar wage increases.

The 15 top policy makers of the AFL, here for a week-long quarter-meeting, plunged into the No. 1 economic question: Will mounting idleness slow down the new drive for wage increases which has barely started this spring?

The union chiefs have been confident last November's election victories assured quick repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law but that act, fought by both AFL and CIO, still is on the books.

Joseph D. Keenan, director of the AFL's Political League, said "If we can swing another 20 Republicans or Southern Democrats we'll carry the House."

SS Potomac's Last Excursion To Be to Baltimore Scrapheap

A venerable dowager—with a blameless life behind her—is headed for the scrapheap.

Sometime next week, the 69-year-old sidewheel excursion steamer Potomac, on which many a Washington summer romance flowered, will be towed to Baltimore for scrap.

Rocking side-by-side with the departing three-stacker at her pier on Maine st., near the foot of Seventh st., is her middle-aged replacement, the Bear Mountain.

The Bear a smaller boat, takes over the Potomac's run beginning Saturday, May 28, line manager R. H. Lalevee said.

The Potomac was built in 1880 in Wilmington as the S. S. Albany for the New York City-Albany day passenger run along the Hudson River.

She carried only limited cabin facilities for the "de luxe trade," and during her trial run cracked the existing Hudson record over an 80-mile course with an average speed of 25 miles an hour.

The Albany plied the Hudson uneventfully until 1933, then was sold to the Potomac River Line for excursion service out of Washington. The line installed a dance floor and changed her name.

The Bear, her replacement, is 47 years young, 243 feet long with a beam of 36 feet and has a passenger capacity of 2100. She can hit 17.5 knots.

The boats are fellow New Yorkers—the Bear sailed the Hudson before coming to Baltimore for five years of excursion runs between that city and Tolchester Beach.

NLRB Rejects Denham Ruling On Powers in Small Disputes

By the United Press

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday overruled General Counsel Robert N. Denham's recent claim that even businesses local in nature are subject to the board's jurisdiction.

Its unanimous opinion, written by Chairman Paul M. Herzog, said the board has discretion under the Taft-Hartley law to dismiss cases where an employer's business is essentially of a local nature and an interruption of work would have only an insubstantial effect on commerce.

Denham, whose office acts independently under the law, had argued that the act requires the board to prosecute any union or any employer, no matter how small the business, if he once issued a complaint in the case.

The board, which has been feuding with Denham for months, conceded that he was the final authority on the question of issuing complaints, but added:

"After a complaint is issued and a hearing has been held, the final authority of the general counsel is exhausted and the case is then in the hands of the board."

The decision was handed down in dismissing charges of unfair labor practices against the Pereira Studio, Tucson, Ariz., and the Retail Clerks' International Association (AFL) in San Pedro, Calif.

N. Y. Votes on Roosevelt Today

New York, May 16 (AP).—Once-powerful Tammany Hall and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., who is bucking it, ended a bitter, no-holds-barred political campaign tonight to elect Manhattan's 20th District representative.

The winner, to be chosen in tomorrow's special election, will succeed to the House seat made vacant by the death of the veteran Democrat Sol Bloom.

Tammany's candidate is Municipal Court Justice Benjamin Shalleck. Denied the Democratic nomination Roosevelt is running on the Liberal Party and Four Freedoms tickets. The other candidates are William H. McIntyre, Republican, and Dr. Annette T. Rubinstein, American Labor Party nominee.

Hoey Charges 'Kickback' In U. S. Loan

By the United Press

"Somebody" pocketed $100,000 in insurance "kickbacks" from a $40,000,000 United States loan to Poland, a Senate investigator charged yesterday.

Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) made the claim as his investigating committee opened an inquiry into alleged "kickback" practices among insurance brokers and freight forwarders.

Hoey said he didn't yet know who got the $100,000 in American money that should have gone to Poland as part of the loan, but the committee set out to find out.

First it called on officials of the Export-Import Bank, which handled the loan. They said they didn't know anything about it although they paid the insurance premiums.

Cost Called the Same

Then George Inselman of the Marine Office of America, a firm that insures seagoing cargoes, testified that insurance premiums on some shipments to Poland were increased 18 per cent at the request of the insurance broker involved. He said the broker then allowed a 15 per cent discount.

Poland bought products in this country with the loan, and the costs of the products along with the insurance was charged off against it.

Inselman said that was common practice on marine insurance, and insisted the cost of the insurance was the same in the end.

Forwarder to Testify

"But that means the Government was billed 15 per cent more than it should have been," Committee Counsel William P. Rogers said.

Inselman said he didn't know about that. He also said he didn't know why the brokers did business that way.

Inselman said he dealt with G. W. Vogel, representing Pan-Atlantic, Inc., of New York City, as the freight forwarder on some of the Polish shipments. Hoey said Vogel will testify today.

Bank officials said the Polish deals were mostly for mining equipment.

Goods and Services Decline $9 Billion

Straus Still Out

Truman Gets $524 Million Funds Bill

Congress yesterday approved and delivered to the President its first major appropriation bill in four months—a conference-compromised $524,649,473 deficiency measure.

But in so doing, it again failed to provide any pay for Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus and his California regional director, Richard L. Boke.

Neither official has received any pay since January 31 under a 1949 Interior Department bill rider requiring engineering qualifications for their jobs.

An emergency pay bill rushed through for fundless agencies continued the rider and the deficiency bill did not repeal it.

Warren Issues Ruling

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren, in a letter to House Appropriations Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) and Senate Appropriations Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.), meanwhile ruled in effect that both men have the right to continue working and take their chances on getting their money later.

In answer to questions put to him by Cannon and McKellar, Warren said it was his opinion that:

1. Both Straus and Boke are holding their positions "under valid appointments by the United States" and may continue at work, even though Congress denied them salary and expenses.

2. That if the two bring suit for their pay, the Straus-Boke rider "does not preclude the courts from rendering a judgment in favor of the incumbents for their unpaid compensation."

Warren declined, however, to express any opinion on whether the rider should be continued or repealed, terming that "a question of legislative policy for determination by the Congress."

The 1950 Interior Department bill, already passed by the House, abandons the controversial rider for the next fiscal year but the Senate committee has not acted.

The conference report on the first deficiency bill, continuing the Straus-Boke restriction, supplies operating funds to more than a score of Federal agencies and offices for the balance of the fiscal year ending June 30. It cleared both the House and the Senate in three hours, and was sped to the White House.

By The Associated Press

The Nation's output of goods and services took its biggest postwar dive in the first quarter of 1949.

The output dropped nine billion dollars from the previous quarter's record high, bringing it down to a $255,900,000,000-a-year level, the Commerce Department estimated last night.

One reason for this decrease in the dollar total was that prices were lower. But even so, consumers and private business bought less while retaining more in savings than they had been doing.

The total output of goods and services is known technically as the "gross national product."

"Hesitation" Reflected

There had been mild postwar declines before, from one quarter to another. For example a 400-million-dollar decrease from the second to the third quarter of 1947 reflected the business "hesitation" which slowed the boom temporarily two springs ago.

But the biggest previous quarter-to-quarter decline of the postwar era was one of only $1,300,000,000, and that came in the first three months of 1946 when the Nation's economic machine was shifting from war to peacetime gear.

It was necessary to go back to the second or spring quarter of last year to find a lower annual rate figure for the output of goods and services. Yet this year's first quarter total was still about one billion dollars above the average for 1948, the highest year on record.

"Supporting Influence" Expanded

The figures held up as well as they did only because the Government"s "supporting influence on the economy," as the Commerce Department put it, expanded because of higher outlays on foreign aid.

Increased foreign aid spending more than offset a decline in Government spending on domestic goods and services, counting State, local and Federal Governments together.

Among significant items in the opening quarter this year were these:

Private domestic investment dropped $5,100,000,000 to an annual rate of $37,700,000,000 A slowup in inventory accumulation by businessmen accounted for over half of this drop.

Business spent only a little less on new plants and machines, but outlays for construction of houses shrank for the second successive quarter.

Spending by individuals for consumption dropped $4,400,000,000 to an annual rate of $176,600,000,000, although "disposable personal income—what people have left after taxes—was off only $1,600,000,000 to an annual rate of $197,800,000,000.

Thus consumer incomes were holding p much better than the gross National product—and personal savings rose $2,400,000,000 to a $21,200,000,00 annual rate.

Government expenditures for goods and services rose by $50,000,000 to a $41,600,000,000 apnual rate. This was because foreign aid outlays rose sufficiently to more than offset a decline in domestic governmental expenditures.

Senate Clears State Dept. Merger Bill

Legislation to authorize four new assistant secretaries for the State Department—to make a total of 10—cleared Congress yesterday and was sent to President Truman.

The bill, which will permit Secretary of State Acheson to name two assistant secretaries to serve as deputy undersecretaries, also gives him direct authority to supervise the formerly semiautonomous Foreign Service.

Last legislative hurdle for the authority was cleared yesterday when the Senate accepted minor changes in the bill which the House approved last week.

The State Department yesterday announced that administration of the Foreign Service will be merged with departmental functions of the same nature, as disclosed on Saturday by The Washington Post.

The addition of the new assistant secretaries and the administrative merger of the Foreign Service follow recommendations made by the Hoover Commission for increasing efficiency.

While the Hoover Commission recommended wiping out the post of Director General of the Foreign Service, and urged a complete absorption of the Foreign Service over a period of years, the Director General is being retained.

Christian Ravndal will continue to fill that post, but will operate under Assistant Secretary of State John E. Peurifoy. Drafter of the basic reorganization plan, Peurifoy is in line to be designated as one of the two deputy under secretaries, serving in the administrative field.

The administrative changes, effective yesterday, combine all budget, planning, procurement, training and so on in one office under Peurifoy, although the Foreign Service will continue its basic functions. Further reorganization of the department, with the new assistant secretaries, will take place later.

Bad Comics Face New P-TA Drive

St. Louis, May 16 (AP).—Continuation of a fight against "unwholesome comic books, moving pictures and radio programs with even greater vigor" was promised today by Mrs. L. W. Hughes of Arlington, Tenn., president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

In her annual address prepared for opening of the organization's fifty-second convention, Mrs. Hughes described comic books "as a chief influence of today on the minds of the young." The whole world is stirred, she added, by "the avalanche of horror-sex comics that have become a major industry."

At another point she declared "it is shameful to have to admit that in this great and powerful land inadequate housing is the rule and not the exception. In the light of modern knowledge the problem of housing cannot be divorced from the problem of health."

Mrs. Hughes said membership in the National Congress has increased to 5,774,358, a gain of 1,864,252 during her three-year administration.

Man Accused Of Slaying Boy Defending Girl

Port Colborne, Ontario, May 16 (AP).—George J. Szendrey, 28, of Humberstone, Ont., was charged with murder today in the death of an 18-year-old youth who was shot as he and another youth sought to defend their girl companions at a moonlight picnic.

Harold Snetsky of Buffalo, N. Y., was shot fatally and the second youth, Richard Joseph, 19, also of Buffalo, was wounded seriously yesterday as they were leaving a beach picnic on Lake Erie.

Investigators said a man accosted Snetzky, Joseph and the two girls.

Without warning, he drew a gun and shot Snetzky through the head. A second shot pierced Joseph's chest. While the two girls, Lydia Luisi, 16, and Geraldine Fiorito, 18, screamed with terror, the gunman sat down and lit a cigarette, paying no attention to the moans of his victims.

The girls helped Joseph to his feet. As they did so, the gunman jumped up, threw away his cigarette and pressed his revolver against Miss Luisi's head, muttering: "You girls come with me."

With his strength ebbing, Joseph snatched the gun from the attacker's belt and fired two shots which went wild. The assailant fled.

Despite his wounds Joseph drove half a mile to a farmhouse for help. Police took the youths to a hospital where Snetzky died a few hours later.

Mrs. Rutledge Tells of Attack, Offer of Funds

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 16 (U.P.).—The tall, blonde wife of Dr. Robert C. Rutledge today testified the man he killed forcibly seduced her and then demanded her husband pay him to stop seeing her.

Attractive 6-foot Sydney Rutledge, 23, broke down in the witness chair but rallied to describe how Byron C. Hattman, 29, plied her with liquor and forced her to have sexual relations against her will.

Rutledge, 28, is charged with fatally stabbing Hattman last December.

She said when she and Hattman returned from a sailboat outing to her apartment she was ill and weak, and that Hattman "forced me back to the bedroom and onto the bed."

"I tried to push him away but I felt very weak and faint," she said.

She testified she later heard her husband talking on the telephone with Hattman, apparently offering the engineer money to leave her alone.

She said he heard the doctor mention $200 once and then remark that "now the price has gone up." Later, she said, her husband told Hattman "maybe I can get $1000 together if you will leave us alone."

She said she met Hattman in February, 1948, when she went to work for the Emerson Electric Co. of St. Louis, for which Hattman was an engineer. It wasn't until a boat excursion for employes that Hattman became friendly with her. He asked her to go sailing with him.

At first they went with others, but then alone, she testified, and all the time Rutledge, a baby doctor, was too busy at the hospital to accompany her.

Hattman, she said, told her that anyone who paid as little attention to her as Rutledge "doesn't deserve you."

On the last sailing party with Hattman, on July 31, she had four bottles of beer and later in the day she got sick, she said.

Police Adjust 100 Tickets, 11 For Diplomats

Police last week adjusted an even 100 traffic tickets—cancelling 11 of them because of diplomatic immunity.

In all, 86 erring drivers were handed warnings and 14 received cancellations. Two of the cancellations went to persons whose vehicles developed steering wheel troubles.

The French Embassy headed the list of diplomatic immunity cancellations. Those whose tickets were rescinded were Rostislaw Donn, tagged for parking too close to the corner; Andre Kessler, parked more than 6 inches from the curb; and Irene Levet-Neely, same charge.

Other diplomatic cancellations went to:

Max G. Gonzales, Peruvian Embassy, parked in public space; William T. McCausland, Indian Ebassy, parked less than 25 feet from a stop sign; Ramon Perez, Dominican Embassy, parked on a red meter; Anwar Niazi, Egyptian Embassy, parked in a no parking zone.

Carlos A. Quiros, Argentinian Embassy, parked, 4 to 6:30 p. m.; V. J. Stroud, British Embassy, parked at bus stop; Alberto Cordero, Peruvian Embassy, parked in no parking zone; and Peter Hadfield, British Embassy, parked 4-6 p. m.

GI Gets Death in Guam Slaying

Guam, May 16 (AP).—A Twentieth Air Force court martial today convicted Pvt. Herman P. Dennis, jr., Calvert, Tex., of the rape murder of Miss Ruth Farnsworth and sentenced him to death.

The 20-year-old airman saluted smartly when the president of the court, Lieut. Col. Gerry L. Mason, pronounced sentence. The verdict is subject to review by the commanding officer of the Twentieth Air Force, the Air Force Board of Review in Washington and President Truman.

Dennis, his half-brother, Pvt. Calvert Dennis and Staff Sergt. Robert W. Burns of Spokane, Wash., are accused of beating and raping the San Francisco girl last December 11. Calvin Dennis of Seguin, Tex., is scheduled to be tried next.

Miss Farnsworth, a Navy employe seized in a souvenir shop where she worked after hours, was dragged into the jungle and raped and beaten. She died several days later in a Guam hospital.

Red Train Service Satisfies Gen. Hays

Frankfurt, May 16 (NYHT).—Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, the new military governor of Germany, told a press conference here today that the Russians had the right to put Soviet locomotives and train crews on American and British trains into Berlin under a 1945 four-power rail agreement.

He said he felt no particular concern over the situation so far, pointing out that the Russians have always controlled the switches and signals and therefore the routing of trains through their zone. The primary concern of the Western Powers, he said, was efficient service and so far this had been given.

General Hays said quadripartite talks are under way on a new trade agreement. The Russians have charged that the Western Powers have not lifted all restrictions because trade is not moving, but General Hays said this was due to the intervening currency reform in the West which completely altered the preblockade trading basis.

Reds Distort Satellite Trade For Political End, Porter Says

Geneva, Switzerland, May 16 (U.P.).—In the strongest statement on economic affairs yet made in the United Nations by the United States, Paul R. Porter, a State Department official, told the U. N. Economic Commission for Europe today that Russia distorts trade behind the iron curtain for political ends.

Russia's trade in eastern Europe "is not trade but exploitation," Porter said. "The plain fact is that economic development in eastern Europe is subordinated to political and ideological preoccupations. Trade is distorted for political ends by the imposition of force, be it physical or political."

Porter said the United States was "impelled" to adopt an export licensing policy in the interests of national security. He said America hoped to end this policy when "free peoples" could have confidence in the Soviet Union.

Porter followed Russian spokesman A. A. Arutiunian who declared the Soviet Union wants cooperation between the Communist and capitalist worlds.

Speaking before the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, Arutiunian said that foreign trade is "the most appropriate basis for diplomatic and cultural cooperation between the two systems."

"We want coperation," he added.

Asserting that foreign trade must be based on mutual interest and principles of equality, he charged that the United States is trying to force 19 countries into following a discriminatory export policy toward eastern Europe.

"Prior to October, 1948, the United States tried to come to a gentleman's agreement with these countries on export licensing," he said. "But after October the United States started making formal demands on them to accept the same policy of discrimination."

Paper Says Soviets Hold Bulgar Chief

Berlin, May 16 (AP).—Montags Echo, Right-wing Liberal Democratic newspaper, today reported without confirmation that Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov had been arrested and sentenced by a Communist Party court in the Soviet Union.

Diplomatic officials in Washington voiced skepticism, saying there were no official advices tto support the report.

The newspaper gave no source for its report which appeared under a Vienna dateline. In Vienna Austrian officials said they knew of no Vienna correspondent for Montags Echo.

Dimitrov, Bulgaria's leading Communist, took a leave of absence several weeks ago. The official announcement said he had gone to Russia to recuperate. In Bulgarian elections Sunday he was

El Salvador has not applied to the International Bank for a loan, but the mission is going there with the view of examining the possibility of participation by the bank in the financing of development projects in that country.

The mission, consisting of F. A. Console of the loan department and Albert Waterston of the economic department, left Washington yesterday.

Arms Aid Put At 600 Millions Above Budget

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

At least 600-million dollars in new funds not provided in the President's 1950 budget will be required for the $1,450,000,000 global arms aid program, according to informed sources.

This was learned after the State Department denied a news report declaring that only 300 million in nonbudgeted funds would be required for the military plan, which would provide $1,130,000,000 of the $1,450,000,000 figure for aid to European members of the North Atlantic Treaty.

A State Department official declined comment on the true figure, saying only that no figure on additional outlay is authorized for publication.

The budget includes a sum of 600 million dollars for such purposes as aid to Greece, Turkey and Iran, and 200 million dollars of this is earmarked for economic aid, the balance presumably available to offset part of the arms plan cost. The arms program would set aside only 320 million dollars of the $1,450,000,000 outlay for arming countries outside Western Europe.

A small part of the arms program would be in the form of surplus weapons, part would come from the mobilization reserve, part would be new production, and 150 million dollars would be in dollar aid for military production in Europe.

Reds Announce Vote Sweep In Hungary

Budapest, May 16 (AP).—Hungary's Communist-dominated government announced today a sweeping victory in Sunday's parliamentary elections. An official spokesman said the result gave hope of reconciliation with Roman Catholic Church authorities.

As expected, official figures on an incomplete count showed less than 5 per cent of the ballots cast were a protest against the government.

The totals announced were: 3,998,211 votes counted; 3,825,332 for the government-approved list of candidates; 115,469 against the government, and 57,410 invalid.

A government statement said 90 per cent of the eligible voters had voted for the government's single test of candidates.

An official spokesman said even Roman Catholic bishops, priests and nuns voted the government ticket and "this shows the trend toward social reconciliation." (No comment was received from Catholic leaders.)

Hankow Reported In Reds' Hands

Plea for Korea

Rhee Renews Appeal for Pacific Pact

Seoul, May 16 (AP).—President Syngman Rhee again today asked whether the United States would aid Korea if she were attacked by Communist neighbors. Rhee said:

"What I am advocating as a solution of the grave threat against Korea and all Asia by the aggressive forces of communism is adoption of one of the following three things:

"1. Formation of a Pacific pact similar to the Atlantic Pact.

"2. An agreement with the United States and Korea alone or with some other nations for mutual defense against any aggressive nation.

"3. A public declaration of a pledge to defend a reunited democratic, independent Korea in accordance with the policy of President Truman respecting Communist aggression."

Rhee's similar request May 7 brought no official reply from Washington, but State Department sources indicated no defense pact with Korea was in prospect.

An American combat regiment stationed here is to be withdrawn soon. Korea wants weapons to increase the army from 50,000 to 100,000 men.

Commons Hears Dewey Give Off-Record Talk

London, May 16 (AP). — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey made an off-the-record talk on current affairs tonight to members of the House of Commons.

Shanghai (Tuesday) May 17 (AP).—Communist troops were reported today to have occupied the central China metropolis of Hankow without a fight.

In the battle for Shanghai, the Reds continued their assault, but the Nationalists still clung to the ciyt's sea and air outlets.

A Hankow dispatch to the Shanghai newspaper Sin Wan Pao said the Reds marched into the big industrial city at 4 p. m. yesterday. The Nationalists announced yesterday the evacuation of Hankow, Wuchang and Hangyang, the tri-cities 600 miles up the Yangtze River from Shanghai.

Communist assault troops were closing in on Shanghai's big International Airport and concentrating artillery fire on targets at the besieged city's outskirts.

Charles Gorry, AP photographer who arrived in Manila Monday night, said that when he left Shanghai's Lunghwa Airfield Monday morning, the Reds were only 2 miles away. The field is 10 miles south of the center of Shanghai and only 4 miles outside the city.

(A Communist broadcast from Peiping declared Shanghai "will be liberated in the not distant future." It gave Red positions at 12 miles from the city on the west and southwest.)

On the broad south-central China front, a showdown drew nearer with Red occupation of Hankow.

It is on that front, where Red forces are moving rapidly south toward the Nationalists' provisional capital of Canton, that the last big military action of the civil war is likely.

In reporting their retreat from Hankow, the official Central News Agency said—perhaps significantly—that the Nationalist commander, Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, had set up his main headquarters not at Changhsa as expected, but 100 miles farther south, at Hengyang. (That is only 300 miles by rail from Canton.)

With the Reds besieging the city, Shanghai residents waited with little outward show of concern. Most foreign airlines, including Pan-American and Northwest, have flown out all their planes.

The Reds have been balked so far in their effort to take Woosung, the fortress at the Whangpoo River's mouth 10 miles north of Shanghai. They reached its edge several times but were unable to stay. Ships still went in and out.

The Communists also thrust at the idle Hungjao Airfield, 4 miles southwest of Shanghai, but the garrison said they were driven back.

Circus Opens Today for 5-Day Stand

The Washington Post
KAY CLARKE
. . . an aerialist of note

The "greatest show on earth," bolstered by so many brand-new acts that even its press agents have been left groping for suitable adjectives, opens a five-day stand in Washington today.

Against a background of glitter and glamour never before achieved in circus history (it says here), Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey will present the first of two daily performances beneath the Big Top at 29th st. and Benning rd. ne., at 2:15 p. m. A repeat performance goes on at 8:15 p. m., with the twice-a-day schedule remaining in effect through Saturday.

Foremost among the show's sensational new spectacles, "never before seen in America," according to the advance billing, are the Geraldos, sky-scraping, upside-down, barefoot trapeze adagio acrobats; Alma Piaia, lovely European aerial star; the Three Margas, girl aerial thrillers; Denmark's Lilian Wittmack, equestrian sensation; La Norma, aerialist; the Peterson Continental Jockey Dogs, and dozens of other acts of international acclaim.

The newcomers will make their Washington debut along with the return of hundreds of veteran performers who will again combine their talents to present a "fantasy of beauty and laughter." Lovable clowns, beautiful girls and wild animals all will form part of the routine, along with the traditional pink lemonade, peanuts and spun sugar candy.

During the Big Top's stay, the Capital Transit Co. will run special buses to the show grounds along Routes U2 and U4 every 20 minutes, starting at 11th and I sts. nw. For the convenience of the public, reserved tickets may be obtained downtown at the People's Drug Store, 717 14th st. nw.

U. S. Is Urged To Push Plans For 'ABC War'

United States may avert war indefinitely by stepping up its present efforts to prepare for "ABC warfare," Washington chemists were told here last night.

The speaker, Dr. John J. Grebe, chief technical adviser to the Army Chemical Corps, defined the term as "atomic, biological and chemical warfare."

Its materials, he said, range from those which kill on contact, or with the first breath, to those which merely sicken or weaken individuals or affect them psychologically.

Dr. Grebe spoke at a meeting of the Chemical Engineers Club of Washington at the Officers Club of the Naval Gun Factory.

Pointing out that fear of retaliation in greater ABC strength is the most powerful deterrent to such warfare, Dr. Grebe said the potentialities of attack by rays, germs and death-dealing chemicals are so great powerful nations may well fear such attack even from a small nation.

Halsey Fires Salvo At Pentagon Policy

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey yesterday fired a broadside attack on recent military policy announced at the Pentagon.

The retired Pacific Task Fleet commander challenged most of the strategic military decisions coming from the National Military Establishment since the arrival of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

"Bull" Halsey's long awaited blast, released by United States News and World Report in a question and answer press conference form:

1. Took exception to the new concept that strategic air power could play the major role in a future war. He declared that "German production was not slowed down appreciably from the effects of strategic bombing until after the Allies had complete control of the air." It was short range "pursuit" aircraft which did the job then, he stated.

2. Declared he was "amazed" at recent statements from Air Force sources that giant strategic bombers were largely "invulnerable" because they "fly so high no fighter can reach them." He added: "I saw a couple of planes the other day which can climb to 40,000 feet in a short time interval. Those were planes flown from carriers."

3. Disagreed emphatically with the decision of the Defense Secretary and the Joint Chiefs of Staff abandoning the super aircraft carriers "The question of whether you should have a carrier 100 feet longer than a previous carrier is something that ought to be decided by the Navy itself, because it's the same as the question of whether the Army shall have a tank larger than the present tank—provided you have the money."

4. Declared the "whole concept of unification" is falling apart with the new concept that a 2 to 1 decision of the Joint Chiefs is final—that two services shall decide the weapons of a third.

"You've then got the inexpert making a decision. Now we could line up, 2 to 1, against the B-36. Or we could put the Army's tank program out of business. And they could put our programs out of business.

"Yet the people who are inherently best qualified to say what certain mission but is restricted to If each service is charged with a certain mission but is estricted to weapons by the order of the two other services, your operation will hardly be effective."

5. Expressed flat opposition to a "General Staff" for the armed forces, in which members should be drawn from all branches. This is "what Germany had and what Japan had."

6. Hit plans to hack away at the Marine Corps. To tamper with the "fierce, fanatic spirit" of the Marines would be "throwing away a sharp and tempered weapon."

7. "I am always a bit amused and at the same time worried" about talk of abolishing the Army-Navy football game. There's nothing "better for the spirit of the Army and Navy than that football game." "It does more to build up the spirit of both services than any other one thing." "I played on the football team and I hate to see the Army win today, but some of my best friends are among the men who rubbed my nose in the mud of Franklin Field."

8. Declared that the whole problem today is whether we should abolish specialization in the armed forces. Specialization fails without competition, he added.

Moscow Orders

Reds Placed In U.S. Ranks, Probers Told

By The Associated Press

Paul Crouch, an admitted former Communist, told Senate investigators yesterday that Communists were placed in the American Army and Navy on instructions from Moscow, to get information and training.

He told of placements made in the 1920's and, in answer to a question, said he believed the practice still is being followed.

Crouch also testified:

1. That a union of Pan-American maintenance employes at Miami had, at least until recently, Communist officials and that flight stewards have acted as party couriers to the Canal Zone and Latin America.

2. That Gerhart Eisler, who recently stowed away on a Polish ship, never would have dared leave this country without the approval of "the highest circles in Moscow."

Europe Makes 'Great Strides,' Truman Says

The countries of Western Europe made "great strides" toward economic reconstruction in 1948, President Truman told Congress yesterday in a report on the Marshall Plan.

"In the fourth quarter fo 1948," he said, "aggregate industrial production in Western Europe regained its prewar level, and the volume of exports attained a postwar peak."

Mr. Truman pointed out, however, that the European countries still had a long way to go before they could get on their feet economically. Much of the expanded output, he said, has been channeled into investment and export. Consequently, he explained, the standard of living of the growing population is generally much below prewar, and the supplies of some foods and other consumer goods are still inadequate.

In forwarding to Congress the third report of Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, Mr. Truman went on to say that Western Europe is making headway in closing the gap in its balance of trade.

"Nevertheless, sizable trade deficits remain, particularly in the commerce of the participating countries with the Western Hemisphere. Furthermore, net earnings from the tourist trade, shipping services, foreign investments and other invisibles are not yet sufficient to contribute materially to the financing of the import surplus. Hence, the countries as a whole still face a serious deficit in their international accounts, particularly in dollars."

But substantial improvement in Western Europe's external position may be anticipated, the President said. The total gold and dollar deficit of the Marshall Plan countries on capital and current accountes in the fiscal year 1948-49, he told Congress, is estimated at $5,500,000,000, 30 per cent less than the 1947 deficit of $7,800,000,000.

FBI Shadows U. N. Russians, Miss Coplon's Trial Develops

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Soviet U. N. headquarters at 680 Park Avenue, New York, has been under surveillance by FBI agents in matters not related to the Judith Coplon case, it was disclosed yesterday at the spy trial in District Court.

But repeated attempts by Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer at detailed questioning about the shadowing were cut off by Judge Albert L. Reeves.

Palmer obtained from Special Agent Martin F. Carey, who trailed the Soviet U. N. engineer Valentin Gubitchev and Miss Coplon in New York, testimony that he and another agent had been in front of the headquarters since January 1 of this year in an "official capacity" before Judge Reeves sharply stopped the lawyer when he asked "what months" and "how often."

Objection Sustained

"That has no connection with this case," Judge Reeves cracked down, curtaining off the hitherto-undisclosed surveillance.

At the same time another inquiry by Palmer as to the total number of FBI agents stationed in New York was cut off by a rapid, court sustained objection by Justice Department Prosecutor James M. Kelley, jr.

But, probing into FBI methods, Palmer shot to Carey and got a fast answer to one query in connection with the quesioning given Miss Coplon, suspended Justice Department employe charged with copying secret Government documents to aid Russia.

"Does the FBI practice the third degree?" the klaxon-voiced defense attorney demanded.

Mistrial Asked Again

"The FBI does not practice the third degree," Carey rejoined.

"Just a moment," Judge Reeves cut in, sharply. "We'll not go into that."

Just before the trial recessed for the day Palmer again asked for a mistrial because of Judge Reeves' use of the expression "waste of time" in regard to certain phases of the defense questioning. Judge Reeves settled the request with a curt "We'll have no more of that."

Cross-examination of Carey brought out a highly non-Russian comment made by Gubitchev when FBI agents closed down on him and Miss Coplon on March 4 near New York's Bowery section. Their arrests then lead to their indictment in New York on charges of conspiracy to commit espionage, in addition to the espionage charge against Miss Coplon here.

Carey said he told Gubitchev: "Get in the car." The Russian's reply, the FBI agent said, was "Okay."

Check Opposed By Lilienthal

terference in education was a matter he took most seriously.

The bill which Congress recently passed alloting $300 million a year to education "is just the beginning and everybody knows it," Lilienthal warned.

The political tests which will be applied to primary and secondary schools receiving such aid during the next 10 years, he predicted, "will make our hair stand on end."

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) insisted the only issue involved before the committee was the use of public funds raised through taxes to educate "known subversives."

Richards said that it was known that FBI investigations "of necessity" include "hearsay accounts of associations, of the opinions or suspicions of neighbors or companions possibly colored by personal prejudice."

Knowledge that such an investigation was to be made, Richards said, would "act to deter sensitive young people from applying."

"It is intolerable to me," he added, "to think that in order to assure our taxpayers that their money is not being spent in the training of Communists, we must subject a most precious part of our intellectual resources to the risk of hurt involved in such investigation, where no question of security is involved."

Elston brought out that Friestadt had twice, once on entering the Army in the Army student training program in 1944, and on being naturalized, swore to uphold the Constitution of the United States. An Austrian by birth, Friestadt was naturalized in 1944. Elston pointed out that this was after Germany invaded the Soviet Representative Durham (D., N. C.) yesterday introduced a bill to block the use of atomic energy funds "for the education of subversive science students." Fellowship applicants would be required to fill out "a personal security questionnaire" and testify to their loyalty.

No Pact Help Seen In Internal Strife

By the United Press

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said yesterday he does not believe the North Atlantic Pact would commit the United States to send troops to quell any purely internal European uprising.

But he agreed with Seymour Linfield, representing the Young Progressives of America, that "we ought to find out." Linfield told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the alliance is a "dagger pointed at the heart" of the forthcoming Big Four conference on Germany.

He also voiced fear that it might commit this country to dispatch troops to other signatory North Atlantic nations if they should be threatened by internal revolt.

Vandenberg, senior GOP congressional foreign policy framer, said he thought Linfield was wrong. But he said the State Department owes Young Americans a "very definite answer" to what U. S. policy would be in such a situation.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), a ranking member, voiced concern lest the "peaceful and defensive" character of the pact be lost because of its companion $1,130,000,000 arms-for-Europe program.

"This pact specifically binds us to a program of armaments for at least 10 years, and it does not lead to disarmament," he said.

Dr. Charles F. Boss, jr., said the Methodist Commission on World Peace voted to withhold support of the pact because it feared the arms program would tip its influence toward "increased armies and military influence" and away from peace.

He said he spoke only for the commission, and not for the entire church, however, and pointed out that only this weekend 14 Methodist bishops issued a statement favoring the alliance.

George Pirinsky, representing the American Slav Congress, was denied permission to testify when he admitted he is not a citizen. The congress is on the Justice Department's "subversive list."

Other opposition witnesses included:

Bishop William J. Walls, Chicago, representing the Second Episcopal District AME Zion Church; R. H. Peters, jr., representing the "Peacemakers" organization; Mrs. Carolyn H. Stewart, Washington, and Lee A. Howe, of the Baptist Pacifist Fellowship.

The alliance was indorsed by Ewing Cockerell of the United States Federation of Justice, a former Missouri circuit court judge.

India Avoids Blocs, Says Mme. Pandit

India is determined to remain "completely clear of alignments and world blocs as we see them," Ambassador Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit said yesterday.

That has been and will remain India's "very positive policy in the interest of world peace," declared the first woman ambassador to the United States at her first press conference here yesterday.

Before an overflow crowd of reporters at the Indian Embassy, Mme. Pandit, who was recently her nation's Ambassador to Russia, said she believed that if there are "genuine attempts on both sides," it is possible for the Communist and non-Communist countries of the world to live in peace.

While there are Communists in India, she said, they have only "nuisance value" and are not large enough or strong enough to be dangerous."

Franco Agent Seeking Loan Turned Down

NYHT News Service

The Export-Import Bank has turned thumbs down on a loan to Franco Spain, it was learned last night.

Andres Moreno, chairman of the Banco Hispano-Americano and Generalissimo Franco's special financial emissary, left Washington empty-handed yesterday after getting a polite rejection from the bank on his request for loans totaling $1,275,900,000. That is considerably more than the present total resources ($960,000,000) of the bank.

Before talking with bank officials, it was learned, Moreno discussed the loan with a number of Southern Senators, telling them that, if Spain were given a cotton credit of $54,000,000 to $90,000,000, she could buy 300,000 bales of cotton from the South, which has a large surplus this year.

Similarly Senators from the Middle West were told that Spain would buy 500,000 to 1,000,000 tons of wheat

V. F. W. Blamed in Poppy Fuss

NYHT News Service

If the Veterans of Foreign Wars don't sell pre-Memorial Day poppies in the Pentagon as usual this year, they will have only themselves to blame, it was said yesterday at the Office of Defense Secretary Johnson.

Paul Griffith, Johnson's personal assistant and adviser on all matters affecting veterans, said the V. F. W. had walked out on its own deal.

He explained that the controversy—in which the V. F. W. implied it had been jocked out of the Pentagon in favor of the American Legion because Secretary Johnson is a member and former national commander of the latter organization—had its origin early last January, long before Johnson became Secretary of Defense.

At that time, Griffith said, six posts of the Arlington County American Legion Council and four Arlington V. F. W. posts obtained joint permission from former Army Secretary Royall to sell poppies in the Pentagon May 26, 27 and 28.

Later Griffith said, the V. F. W. withdrew from the agreement because its Pentagon post of 200 members belongs to the District of Columbia Department of the V. F. W.—which considers the Pentagon as a part of the District of Columbia. The Legion, on the other hand, holds it is in Virginia because of its geographical location.

U. S. to Ask Forfeiture Of $20,000 Eisler Bail

Orders to forfeit the local bond for Gerhart Eisler and to issue a bench warrant for his arrest are expected to be sought in District Court, probably today.

At the same time, it is believed that the United States Attorney's office will ask for an order providing that no further bond will be permitted Eisler if the United States is successful in extraditing him from England.

Eisler's total Washington bond—$20,000—is posted on his conviction for contempt of Congress and for making a false statement on an application to leave this country.

The United States Court of Appeals has upheld his sentence of one to three years in the permit case, and the Supreme Court has not yet ruled on his appeal in the contempt case.

The balance of Eisler's bond in this country—$3500—is posted in New York. It was supplied on a writ of habeas corpus to free him from Ellis Island and also to provide for his appearance in connection with his entry to this country.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, who directed the prosecution of Eisler, conferred yesterday with Justice Department attorneys on the case.

The State Department yesterday announced that the captain of the ship, Batory, which carried Eisler to England, was warned that action would be taken against him unless he surrendered Eisler to British authorities.

This previously had been announced by the American Embassy in London. The Embassy was "informed that if thhe alien was not surrendered by the master of the vessel, the Attorney General . . . will proceed against the steamship line for forfeiture of the vessel and other applicable penalties under United States law."

GOODNESS! still only a nickel!

PLANTERS is the word for PEANUTS

Safeway Trims Them Before Weighing

(SO YOU SAVE MONEY)

We'll give you DOUBLE the number of Rib Lamb Chops you buy
(they won't cost you a penny)
if ever you get SAFEWAY Rib Lamb Chops not trimmed this money-saving way*

"TAIL" OF EACH CHOP (the end portion of bone, gristle and excess fat) cut off by Safeway before we weigh your rib lamb chops on the market scales. It gives you chops that cook and eat better . . . that fit better in the pan and on a platter

TIP END OF CHINE BONE removed from each chop before we weigh your purchase of rib lamb chops at Safeway. It means there's more good-eating meat in Safeway's lamb chops—less waste in each pound you pay for

It means more tender, juicy meat in every pound you pay for...a bigger value for your meat dollar at Safeway!

YOU SEE ABOVE how Safeway removes excess waste, bone and fat from rib lamb chops before weighing them. And the test-purchase report presented here shows you how important it is to compare trimming as well as price.

We prepare other cuts in similar fashion—each according to its special requirements. This waste-free cutting is part of Safeway's Guaranteed Meats plan. We regularly trim our meats this way.

When you compare meat prices, remember that Safeway's prices always are on the TRIMMED cut . . . free of excess bone, waste and fat . . . ready for cooking.

If ever you're not satisfied the meat you buy at Safeway is trimmed the money-saving way we say, just show it to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. If your Safeway rib lamb chops (for example) are NOT trimmed as shown above—you get DOUBLE the number of rib lamb chops you buy without a penny's extra cost (and without quibble or argument!)

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef (all beef sold at Safeway is U.S. Government graded) . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal.

More. We hold our meats the full number of days needed to bring out peak flavor and tenderness. And we safeguard their goodness with temperature controls. Come prove for yourself—there's more good-eating at less cost in Guaranteed Meats from Safeway!

Test purchases by Independent Bureau show you can save money on meat

We asked an independent research organization to check methods of trimming meat in this area.

And we secured proof that it pays you to check trimming as closely as you check price when buying meat.

In 231 representative markets in this area where they bought meat they found a great variation in the way meat is trimmed.

In 94% of the markets other than Safeway, rib lamb chops purchased were not trimmed before weighing.

Had the rib lamb chops been first trimmed and then weighed (as Safeway does), the average saving would have been over 21¢ per pound. Actually, customers of some of these stores would have saved amounts up to 42¢ per pound.

This survey shows unmistakably that thousands of housewives in this area are paying regular meat prices—which are high enough these days, goodness knows—for waste that is thrown away!

- Example: For rib lamb chops purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 34¢ more for six chops than if these chops had been trimmed BEFORE weighing. In some markets as much as 67¢ more!
- Example: For rib roasts purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 56¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For T-bone steaks purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 48¢ more per 2-lb. steak than if these steaks had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For legs of lamb purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 61¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.

Wherever you buy meat you are entitled to money-savings that result from proper trimming of each cut before it is weighed. Insist that your butcher trim this way. If he refuses, why not buy at a market where this kind of trimming is done?

SAFEWAY GUARANTEED MEATS

Tornado Damage Put at $3 Million

Amarillo, Tex., May 16 (AP).—Damage estimates edged past three million dollars today in the wake of a tornado which whiplashed this Panhandle capital, killing four, and then skipped 50 miles north to flatten some of Texas' richest wheatland.

Eighty-three persons were injured and 350 homes demolished or destroyed by the howling twister which mangled 35 blocks in the southern section of this town of 102,000 last night.

Damage to homes alone was estimated by Mickey Maguire, president of the Texas Panhandle Home Builders Association, at more than $2,500,000. Manager Shelby Kritser of Tradewinds Airport — where 40 planes were destroyed and 15 damaged—appraised damage there at $350,000.

Other damage—to railroad equipment, public utilities and buildings was heavy.

Wind-driven rain and hailstones as big as a man's first accompanied the tornado, which struck here at 8:25 last night.

Knocked-out telephone lines made it impossible to tell how much loss had been suffered by the Panhandle wheat crop. Only recently farm experts had forecast a record crop for the Panhandle—that extreme northwest part of Texas which juts upward to Oklahoma and alongside New Mexico.

Of the 83 injured brought to crowded hospitals here, 30 had been dismissed by tonight.

Ice Milk Use In Maryland Condemned

Baltimore, May 16 (AP).—The Maryland State Health Department said today it is concerned about the "widespread substitution" of "ice milk" for ice cream in soda fountain drinks.

Dr. Robert H. Riley said "it has been necessary to call the attention of the dairy industry and the public to the use of ice milk in the preparation of thick milk shakes and other semi-solid drinks.

"A very active business seems to be developing in this field. In many instances known to this department, persons who have asked for a milk shake containing ice cream have been served a milk shake with ice milk instead."

Ice milk is a frozen dairy product with a butterfat content much less than that required for ice cream.

Dr. Riley called attention to this ruling by Maryland's attorney general:

"Ice milk shall be manufactured for sale, stored, sold or dispensed in individual packages . . . and may not be sold in milk shakes."

The attorney general also has ruled that any soda fountain drink which can be drunk through a straw may not be labeled "frozen."

British Army Veteran Again Is U. S. Citizen

A youth who lost his American citizenship when he joined the British Army May 1, 1940, yesterday was renationalized in special ceremonies in District Court.

Five other persons received citizenship papers before Federal Judge Matthew F. McGuire.

The repatriated youth, William Wilson Savage, 26, a student at the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn., said in his petition that he was born in New York.

Those naturalized were: Dr. Benjamin B. Rish, 2100 Belvedere dr., Silver Spring, a Mexican-born member of the Army Medical Corps; Mrs. Frances Elizabeth Webb, Old Walnut Farm, Alexandria, Va., born in England; Mrs. Maria Antonieta Tovar Stone, 27, Congressional Hotel, born in Venezuela; Mrs. Elsie Kalejta, 22, of 4309 Spring st., Suitland, Md., born in Lndon, England; and Ruth Stetter Smith, 24, 1101 Massachusetts av. nw., born in Erfurt, Germany.

Papers Urged To Plan Ahead For 'Booms'

Newspapers should follow the lead of large industrial corporations and plan 3 to 5 years ahead for business fluctuations, local and Southeastern area newspaper officials were told yesterday.

The advice came from T. F. Mowlee, controller of the Wall Street Journal, who addressed a meeting of 35 members of the Institute of Newspaper Controllers and Finance Officers at the Washington Hotel yesterday.

Mowle said publishers' objectives as to circulation and advertising should be attuned to expected business conditions as indicated by survey forecasts.

Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, discussed the relation of controllers to the management of modern newspapers at the group's luncheon session.

Other local speakers were R. E. Thurston, chief accountant of the Washington Times-Herald, and W. R. Little, controller of the Washington Star, who discussed credit and collection systems.

G. S. Phillips, controller of The Washington Post, presided at the morning session. Little presided at the luncheon.

"BERLIN" AIRLIFT

...in your own home town

THE Berlin Airlift is a magnificent accomplishment, made possible by the courage of the U. S. Airmen and the ability of the transport airplane.

In the United States your city is served by an Airlift, one which delivers your Air Freight with regularity and dependability. This Airlift is provided by the Air Freight services of the scheduled airlines.

The amazingly rapid advance of Air Freight service is a record worthy of public notice. Air Freight serves the producer, who enjoys wider distribution, faster turnover and greater economy of operation. It also serves the customer, who benefits from larger selections, year around availability and lower prices on articles formerly available only at luxury prices.

As an example of the progress of Air Freight, consider the record of American Airlines, pioneer in the Air Freight field. American Airlines announced in 1944 that it was prepared to deliver merchandise by Air Freight to forty-three cities of the United States. In the following year, 1945, 666,845 ton miles of Air Freight were transported.

Three years later, in 1948, Air Freight tonnage had increased 3000%. Service was now available to seventy-three cities and 23,204,517 ton miles of Air Freight were transported.

Meanwhile rates for Air Freight transportation were reduced. The 1948 rate was 46% below the average rate of 1945. Hence, while the cost of other services was INCREASING, the cost of Air Freight service was constantly DECREASING.

Air Freight service is one of air transportation's most notable achievements. Its great progress demonstrates the value of this new public service and also promises continuing growth in the future.

2% D. C. Sales Tax Voted by Senate

and liquor tax provisions take effect the first day of the first month which comes at least 60 days after enactment.

Rep. Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and Rep. George J. Bates (R., Mass.), chief House sponsors of the bill, forecast the likelihood that most of the Senate changes would be acceptable to the House, with the exception of the 100 per cent boost in liquor gallonage taxes.

That item will be of major importance in conference discussions, they said. The bill probably will be sent to conference today.

The Senate vote for the revenue bill climaxed more than a decade of pressure for enactment of a District sales levy. A subject of continued controversy, the sales tax has been steadily advocated since 1946 by the District Commissioners as the solution of the District's postwar revenue needs. The sales tax passed the House and died in the Senate last year. Two tries were necessary to get it past the House this year.

It was fought over in the Senate through four days of sharp, frequently angry debate.

At one point, the Senate, in a vote which members made clear later generally was misunderstood, decided to kill the sales tax and substitute for it a broadened income tax.

From that "fluke" decision of Friday, the Senate yesterday untangled itself by these actions:

1. It decided by a voice vote to reconsider—with the effect of erasing—the Friday vote of 34 to 27 which substituted the income tax for the sales tax as the main plank in the revenue program.

2. It then reversed formally its action of Friday, voting 39 to 28 against the amendment of Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) to add to the revenue bill provision for a stiffer District income tax with a wider coverage.

3. It beat down by a 43-to-23 vote Senator Johnston's final amendment to erase the sales tax features from the revenue bill entirely, with the ida of returning the bill to the District Committee.

Then came the final roll call in which 26 Democrats and 22 Republicans voted to pass the sales tax measure, and 14 Democrats joined with seven Republicans in opposing passage.

Besides clearing the way for early final enactment of the 18-million-dollar revenue measure, the Senate vote lifted the blockade on legislation to give some 18,000 District employes $330 annual pay boosts retroactive to last July when Federal classified workers got that increase.

It also foreshadowed early action on the District budget bill for the year starting July 1. The bill, sharply trimmed by the House, is awaiting action by the Senate District appropriations subcommittee. The chairman, Senator Lister C. Hill (D., Ala.) said his group would go ahead with the appropriation bill when the tax bill is out of conference.

Four major changes were written by the Senate into the House-approved version of the District revenue bill. They call for:

1. An approximate doubling of liquor and beer taxes. Both bills increase liquor license fees by 50 per cent. Both subject liquor to the sales tax. The Senate District Committee recommended a 50 per cent increase in gallonage taxes, and this was hiked to a 100 per cent increase by motion of Senator Johnston.

2. Exemption of all drugs and medicines from the sales tax. This was the Senate's substitute for the House provision exempting only prescription drugs and medicines.

3. A 1 cent tax on each package of 20 cigarettes. The Senate made the cigarette tax a special title of the bill, where the House subjected cigarettes to the sales tax. On 10 packs, the Senate bill spells a 10-cent tax; the House bill spells a 3-cent tax.

4. The Senate voted to exempt from the sales tax restaurant meals up to $1.50. The House gave no special exemption for restaurant meals. Both bills exempt food for home consumption from the sales levy.

These, with several minor and largely technical amendments, will become the main subject of the conference on the bill.

Senate conferences named yesterday included Senators McGrath, Hunt, Johnston, McCarthy (R., Wis.) Schoeppel (R., Kan.) Representatives Smith and Bates are slated to head the House conferees.

Election Bill Nearly Ready

A bill providing for non-partisan elections in Montgomery County is nearly ready for introduction at a legislative session of the Montgomery County Council.

Two efforts to obtain such legislation from the Maryland General Assembly have met defeat. The latest attempt is backed by the Montgomery County Charter Committee.

President Frederic P. Lee of the County Council, said yesterday the only thing delaying the bill's introduction is its printing.

Council spokesmen and charter committee leaders have said they believe a state law prohibiting non-partisan elections is unconstitutional. The proposed bill, it was said would invite litigation to settle the issue in court.

At its regular meeting in Rockville today, the council is expected to enact the first local laws under its "home rule" powers.

Lawyers Say 'Lost' Anti-Bias Laws Still Hold

Two "lost" District antidiscrimination laws, enacted back in the 1870s, are still in effect, according to seven attorneys of the district affairs committee of the District chapter of the National Lawyers Guild.

In a letter to the District Commissioners, Donald M. Murtha, president of the local guild chapter, yesterday pointed out that the two acts call for $100 fines each for their violation, and asked the Commissioners to "take appropriate action" toward enforcing the laws.

The attorneys who drew up the opinion stated the effected anti-discrimination laws were "police regulations," and were included within the revised District code although not specified there.

The laws, enacted in 1872 and 1873, provided a $100 fine and a year's revocation of license for any restaurant, hotel, soda fountain, barber shop, bathing house, barroom and sample room which refused to serve "any respectable well-behaved person without regard to race or color" at the same prices and in the same rooms as other "well-behaved and respectable persons" were served.

Corporation Counsel Vernon West, who has been studying the status of the laws since the recent report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital brought them to public notice, has not yet issued an opinion on their legality.

Attorneys who drew up the opinion are Joseph Forer, committee chairman, James A. Cobb, Daniel Crystal, Margaret A. Haywood, Charles H. Houston, J. H. Krug and Herbert S. Thatcher.

Cleared in Paint Case

Charges against approximately 20 private school bus drivers in failure to paint private school buses the required color were dropped yesterday in Bethesda Police Court.

Assistant State's Attorney Thoma M. Anderson said all of the Bethesda private schools employing the drivers had promised they would conform to legal requirements in connection with painting of school buses by next September.

No Time For Home Rule

The fear expressed by Majority Leader Lucas that the Senate will have no time at the present session to take up the District home-rule bill will be a keen disappointment for many members of Congress as well as local residents. For Congress itself will have to carry the burden of governing the District until a local council with policy-making powers is created. The debate on the sales tax in the Senate last week pointedly illustrates the extent of that burden and the blundering with which, perforce, it is being handled. The plain fact is that Congress is spending far more time on local issues each year than would be required to pass the home-rule bill that would, in very large measure, relieve it of this extraordinary burden.

It is well to remember that a similar home-rule bill was sidetracked in the House last year for want of time to enact it. If the bill had been passed at that time the people of the District and their elected representatives would now be struggling with their own tax problem. Congress could have saved for major national issues all the time it has spent on this and other local measures. Majority Leader Lucas ought to realize that so long as the home-rule bill is shoved aside for want of time to give it attention Congress must go on following the same wasteful pattern. It would make just as much sense for Senators to run their own errands on the ground that they do not have time to employ messengers.

Of course, this argument is entirely aside from the principle involved. It seems to us that the importance of bringing this city of nearly a million inhabitants into the circle of self-governing communities is in itself sufficient to demand a few hours or a few days of congressional time. No Senator would feel free to return home if his own city had been arbitrarily disfranchised and Congress had done nothing about it. For its own sake as well as for the sake of Washington's politically dehydrated citizens and the cause of democracy in the world, Congress ought to stay on the job as long as is necessary to make home rule a reality.

Shanghai On The Eve

The spectacle of the fourth city of the world awaiting the Communist armies is holding the diplomatic world in suspense. Out of pure self-interest the Communists, in the event of victory, should logically save Shanghai from sack and destruction. Administration, after all, comes after capture; and this the Communists have recognized in their treatment of other cities they have taken. But other considerations as well as this are involved in the case of Shanghai. Shanghai is the mighty port through which passes the bulk of China's trade, and China in recent years has been less and less self-sufficient.

The last time this great port was subjected to civil commotion was in 1927, when Chiang Kai-shek and his Nationalists came to power, having defeated the coalition of war lords which one after the other ran the Chinese government. The danger came from the soldiery in retreat. In 1927 the war lord armies were in precisely the same condition of fightlessness that many Nationalist divisions have exhibited. In this condition soldiers are given to pillage, desperation, and fright. So it proved in 1927, and the correspondents are reporting analogous conditions in present-day Shanghai.

There is, however, one radical difference in the situation. In 1927 Shanghai, which was built from the ground up by foreign enterprise, contained two enclaves over which the Chinese had no exclusive jurisdiction. One was the International Settlement, the other the French Concession. In time of danger, therefore, the foreigners had a treaty right to protect their own citizens and their property. This they did in 1927, establishing a perimeter beyond which neither troops nor refugees could pass without permission. There was no trouble, and the foreigners not only saved their holdings from depredation, but also helped considerably to succor the flood of Chinese refugees.

International usage, of course, allows the powers to safeguard their nationals during a breakup of authority such as is now going on in China. It had seemed to us long before Shanghai was actually under threat that the foreign powers should have considered and decided upon the extent to which foreign interests would be safeguarded against Communist attacks or infiltration. This, evidently, has not been done, and Shanghai is to be left to its fate. Whether such neglect is wise or unwise, only time will show, but there can be no two opinions, surely, on the protection of Hongkong. Hongkong, to be sure, is a British colony, but it is one of the stepping stones in a ring of defenses beginning with Japan which need to be covered by a defense system.

Saving The T-H Act

Several visitors at the White House have come away with the impression that President Truman intends to fight to the last ditch for his labor bill—a bill that is already buried beneath the adverse votes of the House of Representatives. Their impression coincides with Mr. Truman's own recent comment to the effect that there will be plenty of time in his four-year term in which to make good his pledge to labor. The impression grows that the President recognizes a vested political interest in the Taft-Hartley Act and would be loath to lose that seeming advantage by the enactment of a less controversial labor law.

The White House explains that the President's letter to his "old friend," A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, was not a slap at Speaker Rayburn and other Administration leaders who are trying to produce a labor-management relations bill that will have some chance of being enacted. "Typographical errors" in the letter had made the President seem to strike out at the "compromisers," although he intended to strike only at their "compromises." That may in some measure soothe Mr. Rayburn's feelings, but the explanation leaves the President clinging as vigorously as ever to the carcass of a dead policy.

"I am in the same frame of mind you are," the President wrote to Mr. Whitney, "that it is much better to go down fighting for what is right than to compromise your principles." Those who remember the railroad strike of 1946 are doubtless a little puzzled by the spectacle of these two men standing shoulder to shoulder on a matter of great principle. For the sake of these bewildered citizens the President would do well to let the people know what principle he is talking about. We had supposed that the issue was simply one of getting on the statute books a law that would be fair alike to labor and management; that would promote good relations between them and aid them in the settlement of their disputes. To get such a law, it is now unmistakably clear that the Administration's one-sided bill must be discarded and a fresh start made.

Even the AFL and CIO now agree that some compromise will have to be made. Congress simply will not revert to the old discredited idea that, while labor is protected against the abuses of management, management and the public must not be protected against the abuses of organized labor. The inevitable consequence of presidential adherence to this shabby "principle" will be to keep the Taft-Hartley Act on the books. Is that really his purpose? Undoubtedly the T-H Act did yeoman service for Mr. Truman in the last campaign. Is he now conserving it as the best possible issue to be trotted out in 1952 and possibly 1954? That would be a harsh conclusion. Yet Mr. Truman ought to see that it is a conclusion which will and must be drawn if he persists in a policy that will defeat any reasonable modification of the maligned labor law.

Freedom's Name

It is no disparagement of the hard work that went into the United Nations convention on freedom of news to say that the final result satisfies no one. The trouble with the convention is that instead of starting with a base of like-minded nations, it took in the whole world. Inevitably this approach led to attempts to mediate between black and white—to compromise with basic concepts of free information which in the American view admit of no compromise. In the end the Russian bloc was voted down and the net product represents no real sacrifice of American principles. But by the same token it contains so many loopholes and watered clauses that its practical usefulness may be questioned.

One thing the convention shows is that the American concept of information is held by few nations, even in this hemisphere. It is a tribute to the patience and sagacity of the American delegates, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Editor Erwin Canham of the Christian Science Monitor, that they were able to turn the emphasis from legal duties of the press to moral obligations. They thus were able to uphold the American notion that responsibility is the by-product of free access to news.

As now worded, the convention recognizes the right of censorship only for reasons directly bearing upon national security. This is a distinct improvement over some of the farcical proposals which would have sanctioned censorship for national dignity. Moreover, the furtherance of human rights and promotion of friendly relations between states—which would have been anathema as legal duties of the press—are now listed as corollary moral obligations stemming from the primary obligation to report the facts. Likewise, the right of correction has been modified from a mandatory provision, which would have been open to abuse as a tool of propaganda, to a permissive clause which enables one government to call upon another government to disseminate the correction voluntarily.

The most serious charge that can be made against a convention with such gestural clauses is that its limited scope and its innocuousness tend to debase the currency of all treaties. Loopholes are the curse of treaties, and in this sense the current product might be better termed a resolution or a statement of aspirations. Indeed, precisely because it was necessary to accept so many compromises, a strong case can be made for more specific bilateral treaties on freedom of information with nations holding similar views. It is a pity that this approach was abandoned by officials of the State Department when the international effort came up. We hope they will not hide behind this convention and relax their diplomatic pressures.

This country's primary interest in this convention is, after all, protection of the rights of American correspondents abroad. To that extent the convention is useful as a moral weapon to guard against retrogression in standards of freedom of information at a time when the tide is running toward more governmental restriction. Beyond this, however, the question is whether the most significant strides toward broader areas of free information will not be made through a combination of leadership by example and bilateral treaties covering the host of other impediments on such things as the entry of printed matter which the U. N. convention does not touch.

Stop Payment

The sudden and seemingly arbitrary act of the United States in putting an end to Japanese reparations exactly accords with the view which this newspaper expressed as far back as February 2, 1947. It was then clear that Japan could never recover as long as the Allies were unable to spell out what reparations they wanted from Japan and how to divide them. "The time has come," we said, "to strike out on our own in respect of what shall be left in Japan and what shall be removed." It has taken the Administration two and a quarter years to come around to this view—a testimony to its patience which should be borne in mind in considering the charge of arbitrary conduct that is now being leveled against the United States.

The 11-nation Far Eastern Commission has been wrangling over reparations from Japan since it was set up in preliminary form in 1945. The major wrangler, of course, has been the Soviet Union, the country which thoroughly looted Manchuria, including Japan's holdings in Manchuria. This was the bill for a week's warmaking, yet Moscow refused to give the name of reparations to its seizures. In addition, there have been other collections, and all told Japan has been relieved of three billion dollars of external assets. On reparations proper the claimants have remained deadlocked, though time after time the United States has tried to break the impasse. The effort took two forms. There was a renunciation of any American claim, and then a moving of reparations, including quantities of machine tools, to some of the claimants as a sort of preliminary disposition. But the total amount and the division thereof have proved impossible to determine.

On these and other grounds the writing off of the whole reparations business had become irresistible. The United States has underwritten the Japanese economy by 300 to 400 million dollars a year above occupation costs just for living essentials for the Japanese people. Total amount is over a billion dollars. This was a totally unwarranted drain on the hard-pressed American taxpayer, especially as it amounted to a subsidy of inter-Allied procrastination. And the subsidy has been developing in Japan a mendicant attitude difficult to dislodge, instead of encouraging Japan to stand on its own economic feet. Withdrawal of further production capacity would set back the Japanese ability to attain that level of economic self-support which is a major purpose of the occupation. Actually some of the plants tentatively earmarked for reparations pending final agreement had to be put back to peacetime employment because the Japanese simply could not be kept in idleness while the Allies were haggling over what to do with those plants.

Nor can it be shown that the demanded transfer of production equipment from Japan to the claimant countries of the Far East would be of much or any help to those countries. The heavy manufacturing equipment, which is that which is most nearly "excess," is costly to move and often useless without secondary processing facilities that the claimants do not possess. The light industry equipment they could more easily use cannot be considered excess to Japan's peacetime needs if Japan is to support itself in world trade. For Japan, like Britain, must import food and raw materials, and export manufactured goods to pay for them. The restoration of Japan's economic life as a trading nation will benefit not only Japan and the American taxpayer, but the entire Far East, the trade revival of which would be an offset to the prevailing chaos and an antidote to Communist propaganda.

NOTE TO PLAINSMEN

This street comes to water and to walls
Where masts and slanted booms slide on the sky.
With a leaf rattle wings drop to the water
For the fish flesh of the pier, the clean carrion.
Waves flatten when the wind goes, small boats double,
The bollards go down, there is stone at the end of water.
This sky with a lifting sea edge, light kept water,
This sky is more than one with a tree in it.

"Government of Clerks"

The Washington Post of December 10, 1948, contained a column by Joseph and Stewart Alsop alleging that the Federal Government is run by clerks. In my letter to The Post published on December 31, I called attention to the fact that this statement left an entirely false impression.

In The Post on May 11, Joseph Alsop has another article containing a similar statement, "Yet this Government of clerks cannot go on forever."

Describing the Federal Government as consisting of clerks might have been appropriate 100 years ago, but it overlooks the facts of 1949. All large enterprises, of course, require clerks, and there is nothing dishonorable in that occupation. Many functions performed by the Federal Government are clerical in nature; to perform these functions, the Federal Government will undoubtedly continue to employ many clerical workers.

There are, however, thousands of professional positions in the Federal Government. These positions are filled by fully trained professional employes. The outstanding professional prestige of the Bureau of Standards, the Naval Research Laboratory, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the National Institutes of Health, the Forest Service and the Geological Survey, to mention only a few, testifies to the high standards of professional work performed in Federal agencies.

In the Government today there are tens of thousands of men and women who have had the best training the leading universities of this country can offer.

I have no doubt that the Government and probably every large industrial concern will agree that their respective staffs can continue to be improved. But such a reference as "this Government of clerks" is a false indictment and cannot but be resented by the thousands of highly trained scientific, technical and administrative personnel in the Government agencies.

There is an unfortunte tendency, among those who wish to criticize the Federal service, always to paint as black a picture as possible, with condemnation of all concerned and with praise for none. Needed reform in Government will get farther faster if those who advocate specific measures will adhere to the facts and refrain from unfairly attacking Government personnel.

President, Civil Service Commission.

Hawaii Longshoremen

At the present time 2000 longshoremen, members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, CIO, are on strike in Hawaii.

The current collective bargaining agreement between the ILWU and the employers' association in Hawaii provides for a wage reopening or wage review on April 15. At the present time there exists a 42 cents differential between the hourly rate paid longshoremen in the port cities of the West Coast and in Hawaii.

This means that a steamship company's cargo is loaded by ILWU longshoremen in San Francisco and is unloaded by their brother trade unionists in Honolulu for the same company—but at a substantially lower rate of pay. In 1945 the differential betwen mainland and Hawaii was 10 cents per hour; in this wage review the union proposed an increase of 32 cents an hour to re-establish the old 10 cents differential.

The bargaining was long drawn. The final offer of the employers was 12 cents. The union turned down this offer but continued negotiations beyond April 15 at the recommendation of the representative of the Federal Conciliation Service. At the end of April, the parties were still 20 cents apart.

The Conciliation Service representative proposed arbitration. After much discussion, the union accepted this proposal to arbitrate the dispute. The employers flatly rejected arbitration. On May 1 the union went out on strike.

It's about time a few of the legislators in Washington who feel labor needs harnesses such as those found in the Taft-Hartley Act took a look at the realities of some collective bargaining situations such as this in Hawaii. WILLIAM GLAZIER,
Washington Representative,
International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union.

Maryland Health

"Observer," in a letter printed May 10, justly criticizes the misleading headlines on Mrs. Meyer's articles dealing with public health activities in Maryland. The titles, such as "Maryland Solves Health Problem" lead the reader to suppose that there are now no health problems in the Free State.

This is far from the actual situation. There are many not indigents who are unable to protect their health properly and to provide necessary medical and dental service. For example, I myself have been unable to pay for needed dental care over the past 15 years, and cannot now afford critically needed dental work.

Since the series is obviously timed to take the heat off the public demand for national health insurance, these misleading titles are doubly deceitful. As part of a practically universal effort by the press to defeat proposals which would give the Nation better health, they are against the public interest.

Cause of Slums

Mr. Hamele states in his letter of May 12 that the most important cause of slums is slum character in individuals. The kindest retort one could make is that this is characteristic of the hierarchical type of thinking, whereby an individual is to be relegated to a certain class because his father was a member of that class and so forth down the generic line.

Mr. Hamele gives the example of an isolated log cabin wherein overcrowding was commonplace (as was lack of gadgets and plumbing). However, he overlooks the fact that when many cabins became located in close proximity and a community came into being, paramount among all problems were those of proper sanitation, disease control, etc. The very nature of the compact theory established by our ancestors was that the individual man yielded certain rights in return for community rights—amongst these are proper sanitation, proper care for community welfare, etc.

Slums are caused by greed, lack of economic justice, and the callous indifference of the so-called "responsible citizenry" who toss off the cancerous slum problem as a bagatelle produced by inferior people who voluntarily elect to live in such misery.

"Anniversary"

I have been negligent in writing to tell you how much I appreciated the fine editorial you ran on April 10 in connection with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. Putnam's appointment as Librarian of Congress.

My colleagues and I are very much aware of the great nonpolitical and highly professional library work which he performed as the country's greatest Librarian of Congress. We are aware of the pressures which he had to resist in order to follow the upright course which was the lodestar of his long career. That you have sensed this deep realtity makes us doubly anxious to express our warm thanks for your fine editorial.

Dixiecrats' Power

Administration forces have overlooked two important points, namely:

1. If the Dixiecrats have no future in the Democratic Party, then the Democratic Party itself has no future. How many presidential elections could the Democrats have won without the solid South?

2. Truman cannot influence, in the slightest degree, the outcome of Southern congressional elections. His recent attacks on Senator Byrd are the height of futility. If Truman is desirous of a Byrd defeat in the next congressional election, he can best accomplish that purpose by giving Byrd his heartiest indorsement, as a Truman approval of a Southern Senator has become a political kiss of death.

Economic Plan

The President's Civil Rights Committee stated in its report: "In a world forever tottering on the brink of war, civil rights will be precarious at best. In a Nation wracked by depression, and widespread economic insecurity, the inclination to consider civil rights a luxury, will be more easily adopted. "We need peace and prosperity for their own sake; we need them to secure our civil rights as well."

There are now about 3,300,000 persons unemployed, and at least eight million working 35 hours a week or less—many of them half time. Only the 15 billion dollars now being spent on the "cold-war" armament program, and savings from war earnings, keep us from being "wracked by depression," and there is now "widespread economic insecurity."

The Joint Congressional Committee on the President's Economic Report, with only two out of 14 members dissenting, said:

"The Government, which is the only instrumentality that can balance the needs of agriculture, industry and labor, cannot afford to be without a plan."

America must choose between rampant imperialism, war, and an over-all plan for an economy of abundance. Such an economy involves oil, water power and gas, the great sources of power and heat, and the steel industry—barometer of production and prosperity, as a starter. It involves repealing billions of taxes on small incomes, and lower prices for necessities.

Congress, which should be concerned with these major issues, is spending most of its time on secondary issues. No "social security" system can provide any more "security" than the economic system of which it is a part.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Air Subsidies

WHEN Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan put out his plan to subsidize the farmer and at the same time allow the consumer to buy food at comparatively low prices, there were loud outcries. This was an evil scheme, so the critics said, to get Government to underwrite permanently a large sector of the economy.

What the defenders of free enterprise often overlook is that important business interests are also subsidized by the Government. If there is something inherently wicked in a Government subsidy, then perhaps the time has come to look more closely at certain practices.

A conspicuous example is the airline industry. The Government is now paying airlines, in airmail pay and subsidy, approximately 100 million dollars. The Civil Aeronautics Board believes this must go up to 125 million dollars in the next fiscal year.

Chairman O'Connell of the CAB said in a speech before the New York Bar Association not long ago that of this total he could not tell "whether the subsidy element represents 30, 40, 50 or 60 million dollars." That is a pretty remarkable admission for a responsible official.

The net operating losses of the airlines, both domestic and international, before mail pay in 1948 was $91,636,000, which compares with $76,748,000 in 1947. It is fairly clear, then, that the Government is underwriting the profits of the airlines in a period of high business prosperity, while the passenger is getting his airline ticket for a lot less than he would have to pay if it were not for Government subsidy. Here in essence is the Brannan plan—subsidizing producer and consumer.

THIS subsidy may be vital. It may be essential to the development of a relatively new industry, although the "temporary period" when subsidies were theoretically necessary should now be at an end. National defense—the maintenance of a going air transport system—may be sufficient justification.

But, at the very least, the taxpayer has a right to an accounting that will show to what extent he is subsidizing this private industry. One of the recommendations of the Hoover Commission was as follows:

"We recommend that the amounts of these subsidies should be paid to the Postoffice by open appropriation from tax funds and not impose upon the Postoffice or the mail users in this hidden manner. By such a course, the President, the Congress and the public may know what the amounts of the subsidies are."

This is what Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado proposes to do in one of a series of bills now before the Senate. In hearings before the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, of which he is chairman, Johnson has indicated that he intends to push hard for passage of this long overdue reform.

JOHNSON has taken a strong line in spite of the fact that the CAB seems inclined to postpone any change by proposing that the bill be held up until CAB completes long drawn-out studies of the cost of carrying airmail. Similar bills have been introduced in the House by Representative John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who is likewise urging the right of the taxpayer to know what he is getting for his money.

Johnson and Kennedy propose an allocation system that would fix the costs between passengers, cargo and mail. This would be a yardstick to apply to airline revenues.

If they were not sufficient to cover the cost of operation under these three headings, as they almost certainly would not be, then the CAB would determine the subsidy necessary for each line. Congress would then be asked to appropriate those specific amounts and the taxpayer would know exactly where things stood.

Johnson and Kennedy also propose to create an air merchant marine. In line with the recommendation of the President's Air Policy Commission, their bill would set up the Aircraft Development Corporation with Government funds to develop and build freight planes for lease to private carriers. This directly touches national security, since most studies have shown the country woefully deficient in transport planes.

There is reason for concern over the drift toward ever increasing governmental intervention. It is possible to drift into statism, and a major cause of that drift today is the concentration of economic power in private monopoly of near-monopoly. Let's at least know what we are doing in this business of subsidies.

Rose Park Playground

Rose Park playground to be chosen as an experimental play area on a nonsegregated trial basis is a joke to anyone who has watched this situation for any length of time.

People of all racial groups have used the facilities of this area for years and will continue to do so.

Any evening on the tennis courts one would think there was an informal meeting of the League of Nations from the different racial groups that are playing together in the best spirit of democracy.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

From Bonn To Berlin

AS THE three Western nations are trying to work out a common policy for the meeting of the Big Four, the overriding question is how much of an understanding there is between the western Germans and the Russians. That there has been an exchange of views is known and admitted. But even if we did not know that intermediaries have established contact, the evolution of Soviet policy on the one hand, of German policy in the Bonn deliberations on the other hand, are remarkable.

Lippmann

The two operations have been like men digging a tunnel through a mountain. Though they started from opposite sides, they have meant to meet.

THEY have meant to meet on the ground of the unity of Germany under a centralized government, the military evacuation of Germany, and the restoration of the economic connections between Germany, eastern Europe, and Soviet Russia. The Russians have always been particularly insistent that Germany must have a strong central government. That is not so much because they have expected to capture it for communism but because it is only with a strong central government that they can do their political and economic business.

They have always wanted a government in Berlin which all the Germans would obey. They would have preferred a Communist government no doubt. But short of that they have wanted a government which could negotiate and make terms for the whole of Germany, unobstructed by local authorities—particularly by the Catholic interests in Bavaria, the Western-minded interests of the Rhineland, and the big business interests of Westphalia.

THE BONN constitution, or "basic law" as its authors prefer to call it, is the product of a struggle among the Germans. The issue in that struggle has been whether the Social Democrats who are Socialists and nationalists, or the Christian Democrats who are conservatives but on the whole also nationalist, should have the leading place in the unification of Germany and its liberation from the occupying forces.

No one of any importance at Bonn has been serious about that west German state of which so much has been published. The text of the basic law makes that quite plain and the choice of Bonn as the "capital" must be taken to mean that the Germans are expecting to unite Germany with its capital in Berlin.

The choice of Bonn, which is a small town on the west bank of the Rhine, quite unsuited to be the seat of a government, was notice to the Germans, to the West, and to the Russians that the west German state is certainly not meant to last, probably not even meant to be formed. For Bonn is to Berlin about what Vichy was to Paris—impossible as a capital and therefore a symbol that the partition and the occupation are transitory.

THE BONN constitution is manifestly an ambiguous document, designed for negotiation with the Russians. On the main point at issue with the Russians—whether there is to be a central government, and not a federal union of relatively sovereign states, the Bonn text is much nearer the Russian view than it is to the French or to what used to be the American. The text is devised so that a government controlled by nationalists can readily dominate the whole of Germany on all questions which would arise between Germany and Russia. The Social Democrats are nationalists, and they have succeeded in getting a draft constitution which would enable them, if they controlled the government, to negotiate from Berlin for the whole of Germany.

That does not mean that they intend to become a Soviet satellite. The Germans have bigger ideas than that. But it does mean that they have, with our approval, put themselves in a position to negotiate with the Russians while we negotiate with the Russians.

IT SEEMS reasonably certain that things have developed to a point where the whole problem of a German peace treaty will at least have to be examined in Paris. It may be possible, and certainly it would be preferable, to agree on an interim regime, and not to conclude a peace treaty until there is a German government, which all the powers can recognize, and then make the treaty with. But the problems of a treaty will certainly have to be discussed, at least informally. Among them none is so tricky as the frontiers of the new German state, particularly its eastern frontier with Poland and the Soviet Union.

That is obviously a tricky question for the Russians, since they will be compelled to choose, at least for the present, between Poland and Germany on an issue which is irreconcilable. But it is also, a tricky question for us. For we also could be compelled to choose.

THE CHOICE for us is not an easy one. If we take a stand for the return of the eastern territories, we shall certainly alienate not only the present Polish government but virtually the whole Polish nation. On the other hand, we shall not win the Germans. For we do not hold the eastern territory and cannot, therefore, return it to the Germans by making a declaration. They can get back their territories only by a victorious war, which would ruin Germany once more, or by a deal with the Russians which would make them the allies of the Soviet Union.

On balance, therefore, it seems to me that our best policy is to say that the eastern frontier is a question for the Germans, the Poles, and the Russians, that we cannot decide the solution because we cannot enforce it, that we shall not attempt to arbitrate it, but that, if invited, we would be prepared to use our good offices to mediate it.

tin Reynolds' is "Leave It to the People," and John Mason Brown's, "Morning Faces."

About 700 retail booksellers and publishers' representatives attended the opening business sessions of the convention yesterday. They were urged to sell more than books and were warned of harder times ahead.

David Boyd Chase, New York economist, told the booksellers they had seen the business peak and that according to the theory of business cycles the bottom would be reached sometime between 1951 and 1953.

Sidelines Suggested

Holding out hope for a silver lining, he said that when business was depressed people had more leisure to read. But book prices would have to come down, he said.

Speakers at both morning and afternoon sessions recommended that booksellers handle other merchandise as well as books, but said books should be the dominating feature. Stationery, greeting cards, phonograph records, gift items, rental books—and even tobacco—were mentioned as sidelines.

Mrs. Ralph Owen Easton, of 1524 34th st. nw., speaking on children's books from the viewpoint of the customer, said content still was the most important thing in books and that illustrations are "most satisfying when there is an idea behind the picture."

Librarian of Congress Luther Evans, speaking at the noon luncheon, urged that those who work with books "work with the facility of Defoe, the ardor of Dickens, the sympathy of Galsworthy. If we do," he said, "the book business will become again a zestful business for ourselves and for our fellows."

The convention will conclude Wednesday night, but publishers' exhibits will be open to the public Thursday.

Port Authority Urged Here To Build, Regulate Bridges

Establishment of a port authority to construct and regulate interstate bridges in Greater Washington was urged last night by the Interfederation Council, meeting at the Engineers Club of Washington, 1325 E st. nw.

The authority would be patterned after the New York-New Jersey Port Authority and would be empowered to issue bonds for financing the bridges and to impose tolls for amortization of the bonds.

The group, composed of delegates from citizens federations of Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia counties, acted after hearing Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, discuss regional highway plans for the area.

General Grant declared one of the greatest present needs of the highway system is construction of a bridge across the Potomac from Alexandria to Shepard's Landing, below Blue Plains.

After construction of this bridge and the South Capitol st. bridge, now in process, through traffic from the South could bypass the city and proceed north on the projected Baltimore Freeway, he said.

Chillum Heights

Olaf P. Solem, 21 Longfellow st. nw., was elected president of the Chillum Heights Citizens Association for his second term last night. The association met at Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church, 5314 North Capitol st.

Other officers elected were William A. Olsen, first vice president; Earl Otto, second vice president; Miss Woodford Forster, secretary; Frank C. Magruder, treasurer; and Olsen and Otto, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

The group went on record opposed to any change in the segregation policies in schools and public playgrounds, to any change of Roosevelt High School from white to Negro use, and to renaming Eastern ave., Ohio ave.

Lincoln Park

A resolution favoring continued segregation on the District's playgrounds was adopted by the Lincoln Park Citizens Association last night.

Mrs. Robert S. Ware, secretary of the association, opposed the resolution, and tendered her resignation but it was refused. The association met at Epworth Methodist Church, 13th st. and North Carolina ave. ne.

It reelected Levy R. Tindal as president; Mrs. Ware, secretary and B. Frank Campbell, treasurer; and C. Leslie Schafer and Cecil C. Clem, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations. J. Watson Flanagan was elected vice president.

Fort Davis

The Fort Davis Citizens Association last night voted to request the Board of Education to establish a new primary school in the area bounded by Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Alabama and Minnesota aves. se.

The association met at Ryland Methodist Church, Branch ave. and S st. se.

A survey, it was contended, showed a primary schol population of more than 1000 in the area and that the existing three schools are overcrowded.

Capital View

The Capital View Civic Association last night asked the Board of Education to name Mrs. Sarah Newton permanent principal of Richardson School. Mrs. Newton now has a temporary status.

Fifty members attended the meeting at the Richardsgn School, 53rd and Blaine sts. ne. Assistant Corporation Counsel Hubert B. Pair spoke.

Parley Silent On Plumer's Police Post

The newly installed mayor and Town Council of Mount Rainier held a lengthy closed meeting in the mayor's office last night, presumably to discuss the future of Police Chief Eugene Plumer, but no word was forthcoming as to whether any decision was reached.

At 11 p. m., while the meeting was still going on, Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt told reporters that any action decided upon would not be announced until tonight's regular council meeting.

It was learned, however, that Mayor Reichelt had offered the $2900-a-year police chief's job to John Wesley Wise, 3510 Lee blvd., Arlington, retired Metropolitan Police Force detective sergeant.

To oust Plumer, Reichelt needs the assent of a majority of the four-member council. The new mayor, who would vote only in the event of a tie, is expected to vote against Plumer if the opportunity arises.

The aged leader of a weakened machine, who still is Democratic Party chieftain in New Jersey, announced he had set up headquarters to keep his grip on local, State and National politics.

House Group Approves New Lobby Probe

By the United Press

A Senate-House investigation of lobbying, with Government agencies coming in for a share of the scrutiny, was approved yesterday by the House Rules Committee.

The measure authorizes a 14-man committee of Senators and Representatives to see if a more rigid lobbying law is needed. Both House and Senate approval is required.

Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) said the present lobbying law, which requires lobbyists to register and tell how much they spend, is not specific enough. He said "there is a widespread public belief that lobbying is being carried on by people not registered under the act."

He said that lobbyist reports to Congress for the first three months of 1949 indicate they spent $2,000,000 on their activities, breaking all previous records.

Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) brought up the idea of having Government agencies included. He said he wanted "to be sure it isn't just private enterprise that's being made the goat."

than coincidental, the pattern of European fascist leaders."

Terminiello damned Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and other New Deal figures, the Jews, the British and others in the pattern of Father Coughlin and Gerald L. K. Smith. While he spoke inside the hall, a mob demonstrated outside, "the air was filled with shouts and noisy chanting, property was destroyed, brickbats and stench bombs were thrown at the auditorium and both private individuals and police were assaulted."

This kind of activity, said Jackson, was "a local manifestation of a world-wide and standing conflict between two organized groups of revolutionary fanatics each of which has imported to this country the strong-arm technique developed in the struggle by which their kind has devasted Europe."

Now, said Jackson, the majority sets up "a dogma of absolute freedom for irresponsible and provocative utterances which almost completely sterilizes the power of local authorities to keep the peace as against this kind of tactics."

Free speech depends on local police maintaining order and unless the Federal Government is to enter the police field there is no other way it can be maintained.

"Terminiello's victory today," he said, "certainly fulfills the most extravagant hopes of both right and left totalitarian groups who want nothing so much as to paralyze and discredit the only democratic authority that can curb them in their battle for the streets."

Jackson said a street full of people is not a mob until speeches stir it up.

"It is naive, or worse, to teach that oratory with this object or effect is a service to liberty. No mob has ever protected any liberty, even its own, but if not put down it always winds up in an orgy of lawlessness which respects no liberties."

But Douglas for the majority did not enter into speculation over the ends Jackson saw in the majority opinion.

A function of free speech, said Douglas, "is to invite dispute. It may indeed best serve its high purpose when it induces a condition of unrest, creates dissatisfaction with conditions as they are or even stirs people to anger."

Freedom of speech, he said, is protected "against censorship or punishment unless shown likely to produce a clear and present danger of a serious substantive evil that rises far above public inconvenience, annoyance or unrest."

There is "no room under our Constitution for a more restrictive view," he declared, "for the alternative would lead to standardization of ideas either by legislatures, courts, or dominant political or community groups."

Madeleine Plays Real-Life Portia

By Richard L. Coe

PALAVER—Madeleine Carroll, come early Thursday morning, will play a real-life Portia . . . The fair Madeleine, Director Sam Wanamaker, New York's Fulton Theater Owner Louis Lotito and Producer Michael Kanin have been sued by a Dr. Emmanuel Josephson for $9.60, the price of two tickets to "Goodbye, My Fancy" . . . The doctor charges that instead of getting pure entertainment at Miss Carroll's current vehicle, he was dosed with Commie propaganda . . . This claim, of course, is ridiculous, as anyone whos seen the play can tell you . . . Madeleine plays a Congresswoman who, during a visit to her old college, insists that the college prexy, once her boy friend, show a movie about the atomic bomb . . . The play is about as inflammatory as the New York Times, whose publisher, Sulzberger, chuckled when he heard of the suit . . . The others have lawyers to represent them at the small claims court, but Miss Carroll is so incensed and sure enough of herself to plead her own case . . . She resents both the more blatant extremes of right and left, and is determined not to be passive about this reflection on herself and her role . . . Since it's not unlike' what the play's Congresswoman Agatha Reed might do in a similar circumstance, this might be termed a slick publicity trick, but I'm inclined to think Madeleine's entirely sincere in battling what is, at base, a nibble at free speech . . . Could be the case might still be "settled" out of court, but at this writing it looks like an early Thursday reveille for Madeleine and a performance to attract Gotham's court reporters.

So "two diminutive actresses," Tiny Temple and Pixie Peters, 19 and 20, respectively, will play the small but important roles . . . Considering that stage children are meticulously looked after and that the sooner those who would practice the art get at it, this is one more reflection on this cockeyed Capital.

"THE WINDOW" seems to be in its last day at Keith's, which means only a week downtown for one of the better chase-chillers of the year; Ann Sothern arrives Wednesday with Alexander Knox in "The Judge Steps Out." . . . "Hamlet" calls it a run tonight at the Dupont, with Italy's "Tragic Hunt" going in next day . . . "Monsieur Vincent" also calls it a run at the Little tonight, to be succeeded by "The Damned" from France . . . Wonder how "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" will look 10 years later Wednesday morning at the Unnatural National . . . "Portrait of Jenny" holds a fifth week at the Trans-Lux and those good ones, "Quartet," "Belvedere" and "The Barkeleys" continue, too.

THE ONLY SLIGHTLY pleasant feature about the National not having plays is that it makes you forget the District law which keeps moppets from appearing on the stage here . . . This Capital insanity has marred many plays in the past—"Life with Father," "Wingless Victory" and so on . . . It happens that two young lads are important to "Medea," who finally butchers these youngsters in the final scene . . . Natch, the boys who acted from coast to coast cannot appear Wednesday night with Judith Anderson at the Sylvan . . .

THE SYLVAN THEATER performance, by the way, will benefit from the students of Bess Davis Schreiner's Theater Management course at George Washington University . . . These lads and lassies will serve as ushers at the sloping hillside below the Monument, and they'll be aided by other G. W. speech and drama majors . . . Miss Anderson will be in town briefly this morning before going to Hershey, Pa., for tonight's performance.

THE BIG NAME BANDS seem to be streaming this way . . . Glen Echo's ballroom, within the next month, will be featuring such topflight dance boys as Skitch Henderson, Victor Lombardo, Louis Prima, Jerry Wald and Glenn Gray's Casa Loma outfit . . . That Lombardo outfit may account for the entirely erroneous report that Guy Lombardo's date with Alexandria next Friday night will be followed by a longer stay elsewhere . . . Not so . . . Guy's date at the Alexandria Roller Rink to benefit the Alexandria Hospital is his only one in this area for the season.

THIS AFTERNOON'S circus opening makes one wonder if President Truman will be able to see that grand finale featuring pictures of him 40 feet high. . . . Yesterday's lines at Olney's Jordan Music Shop box office gladdened the eys of General Manager Richard Skinner, now settled down at the country playhouse for the summer. . . The Grand Ole Opry people arrive in a chartered airliner tomorrow afternoon from Nashville and will be greeted by a plush party tossed by Connie B. Gay, who is, in these parts, to hillbilly music what Edward Johnson is to the Metropolitan Opera.

TED SHAWN promises to part with a few of his limited edition copies of his selections from Walt Whitman, which features some spendid pictures of Wilbur McCormack and Barton Mumaw in dance action as well as Shawn's lectures at Peabody College.

Nats Get Gift-Wrapped 3-2 Victory From Bosox

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

SAM SOBEL is back in action, he says. He writes from Atlanta that he wants a match with Rocky Graziano, no less. Who is Sobel! Well, in 20 years in the prize fight business, he has never been stopped, never lost a fight and, in fact, has never pulled a boxing glove over either fist.

Sobel's fighting is being done for him at this time by the latest of his proteges, one Charlie Bob-Cat Elliott, a welterweight of vague renown, despite his capture of 14 Japs, single-handed, on Guadalcanal.

POVICH

A greater feat, writes Sobel, was his own capture of Elliott, "the best-looking fighter in the South today. There's plenty of managers tracking him down when he comes out of the Marines, but he winds up with Sobel. Were making a great team—Sobel and the Bob Cat. We win 35 of his 38 fights, 22 by knockouts," he says with his singular use of the first personal plural.

Sobel's new tiger, Elliott, joined the Marines when he was 14, Sam writes. "He was in five major battles. He is a credit to the boxing game, and has the President's citation for bravery in action. Where was Graziano when my boy was fighting the Japs?"

SOBEL says he would like to help in the rehabilitation of Graziano. "Would like to match my boy with Rocky. I think the only punishment for Graziano is for a real soldier to give him a good shellacking in the ring. I have personally nothing against Graziano, but I think this would be a good thing for him. As I said, to meet a real soldier, a Marine, in the ring."

Obviously, Sobel hasn't been reading the papers lately, particularly the Atlanta papers, else he would not call a Marine a real soldier. An Atlanta cop called a Marine a soldier a couple of weeks ago, and the next thing that was called was the riot squad. One hundred and fifty arrests were made before three Marines and their sympathizers were subdued.

"Hoping that Matchmaker Gabe Menendez will make this match for Washington and give satisfaction to everyone concerned, I am sure that this boy will flatten Graziano as he flattened the Japs,' Sobel concludes, in a pitch for his 33 1-3 per cent of Elliott's share of the purse.

HIS MAN Elliott is a puncher "of the Jack Dempsey" type, Sobel proclaims, but he is not depending completely on Dempsey's type of punching to take Elliott all the way. He has safeguarded his man's career by engaging Evil Eye Finkle to work in his corner in the important fights. The Eye, a war veteran himself, will put the whammy on anybody, for a price.

For a private's pay of $54 a month, Finkle achieved his greatest triumph, you know. He landed in Europe as a member of the United Armed forces, and one month later his Slobodka Stare had done its work. Mussolini was hung, and Hitler had killed himself in a Berlin bomb shelter. A couple of million American troops and a few thousand planes gave Evil Eye some nice support.

Thus far, the Sobel-Finkle-Elliott threesome has made no further progress than Atlanta on its trek to the more profitable climes of the Northern rings, but any day now they are due in Washington. They will not be without friends here. When Sobel didn't have a fighter to manage, and when Finkle had no buyers' market for his evil eye in depression days, they both used Menendez's meal ticket.

MENENDEZ was promoting fights around Hompa fifteen years ago when he suddenly deemed Palm Beach to be a greener pasture, and took out a license in that town. He engaged one of Sobel's fighters for the main bout, but there was some haggling over the percentages. Sobel was demanding a percentage, Menendez offered a $400 guarantee.

"I ain't fighting for any lousy $400," screamed Sobel, "and my boy ain't going in for less than 33 1-3 per cent of the gate. We're pulling out unless we get a third of the gate," was his ultimatum to Menendez.

He had Menendez across a barrel. The fight had been advertised for ten days. There was nothing to do, but give in to Sobel. The fight went on, but it was apparent early in the night that Palm Beach wasn't fight-minded. The fighters were among the few who showed up. Sobel, who kissed off a $400 guarantee, drew $18.50 as his percentage of the gate.

Cafritz Triumphs

Cafritz Co. defeated Carr Co., 4-1; District Title beat Acacia B, 6-3; Riddell blanked Capitol View-Humphreys, 4-0, and Acacia A nosed out H. G. Smithy, 4-3, last night in Realtor Softball League games.

Pete's Tavern Victor

Pete's Tavern downed Naval Recruiting, 5-1, last night for its fifth straight victory at Georgetown Playground. It was Pitcher Fred Kramer's third triumph in a row.

McCarthy in Middle Of Clash With Umps

Manager Joe McCarthy (arrow) of Boston argues about a ninth-inning decision as the Nats beat the Red Sox, 3-2, yesterday. Umpire Joe Paparella (back to camera) made the decision. Other umpires are, left to right, Cal Hubbard, Charley Berry, pointing finger, and Bill McKinley. Boston players cluster around. Paparella ruled Lou Stringer out at second before Tommy O'Brien could score with what would have been the tying run on Sam Mele's single.

Coming From Europe

Stranahan Will Fly To Celebrities Golf

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

Frank Stranahan, British amateur champion, left by plane yesterday to defend his title late this month, but he will be back in this country for the National Celebrities tournament, June 4-5, at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Before boarding a plane in New York for England, Stranahan talked with Fred Corcoran, former PGA tournament manager, who serves as an honorary official on the Celebrities board.

"The last thing we talked about before Frank left for overseas was the Celebrities," Corcoran said over the phone. "He has his traveling schedule all mapped out so that he will return home in time for a few practice rounds for the Celebrities."

Two other entrants in the Celebrities, Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., and Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, also left by plane for England, to play in the British women's championship.

They, like Stranahan, plan to fly back home for the Celebrities. Miss Lenczyk is the U. S. amateur champion while Miss Kirk has been described as "America's finest woman player." She recently defeated Miss Lenczyk for the North-South title.

NOTES ABOUT CELEBS—Elmer Ward, who puts on the Goodall tournament that Bobby Locke just won, is heading for Europe and some of its historic golf courses. Ward is a charter member of the Celebrities cast.

"I have been persuaded by four old and dear friends to join them in a golfing vacation in the Old Country," Elmer said. "We plan to play in the British Amateur. We have chartered a plane and we intend to play some of the fine courses in Ireland and Scotland and then go to Paris, Rome and the Riviera.

Lefty Grove, one of the greatest southpaw pitchers, will come up June 3 from his home at Lonaconing, Md., for the Celebrities. In a practice round the other day, Lefty modestly admits he shot 127 for 18 holes.

Helen Dettweiler and Beverly Hansen, who helped Babe Didrikson and Dizzy Dean put on such a great show last year in the Celebs, have driven in from the West Coast for this year's renewal.

Eisinger's 78 Captures Golf Medal

By West McLean
Post Reporter

John Eisinger shot a 78 yesterday at Manor Country Club to take medalist honors over a field of 132 in The Washington Post schoolboy golf championship qualifying round.

Eisinger of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High toured the wood-lined fairways in 38, 40—78 to lead the way into first-round matches this afternoon at Indian Spring.

Championship flight first round matches are today at 3 p. m. at Indian Spring; Thursday, second round at Chevy Chase; and the semifinals and finals as part of the National Celebrities Tournament June 4-5 at Army-Navy. Second flight play is Saturday and Sunday at Georgetown Prep.

Defending Champion Billy D. Wolfe, 14-year-old junior high student at Montgomery Hills, barely managed to make the first flight. Wolfe and five other juniors came in with 85s to tie for twelfth place in the sixteen place field. Wolfe gained his spot on the second hole of a sudden death playoff. Ed Burnap and Denny Bolster, two of the other players in the six-way tie, had to play five holes before Burnap won out.

Following Eisinger were Bob Wolfe, a cousin of Billy, 42, 38—80, and Dick Foster, captain of the Coolidge team, 41, 40—81. Eisinger will meet Ricky Wolfe, another cousin of the Wolfe boys, today. Bob Wolfe plays Lee Edwards while Foster tees off against his Coolidge teammate, Winston Sutter. Sutter broke 90 for the first time yesterday with a 44, 40—84.

O'Grady Gets Hoya Cage Coaching Job

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Ten years after he first came to Georgetown as a "Whiz Kid," Francis (Buddy) O'Grady comes back to Washington this week as the Hoyas' head basketball coach.

O'Grady, now 29, has agreed to a two-year contract and will be signed Friday, it was announced last night by the Rev. Robert Parsons, S. J., Georgetown director of athletics.

The peppery little star fills a job left vacant recently when his "discoverer," Elmer Ripley, a veteran of 11 years at the Hilltop, moved to Ohio's John Carroll University.

His signing puts the Hoyas back on the graduate system of selecting cage coaches, last in effect from 1931 to 1938 under Freddy Messmer.

O'Grady, one of Georgetown's smallest court stars of all time, was first spotted by Ripley in the late 1930s as he starred for St. Peter's Prep on Staten Island, New York.

Buddy came to Georgetown in 1939, and was a star throughout his college career. In his senior year he was elected captain on a club which included such performers as Ken Engles, Don Martin, Bill Bornheimer, Charlie Schmidli and John Dieckelman.

From Georgetown, O'Grady graduated to the Washington Caps professional team, later being traded to the St. Louis Bombers. Last season he played with the Providence Strollers.

Comiskey, Brothers in Bloody Draw

Elkins Brothers and Pat Comiskey fought to a bloody 10-round draw at Griffith Stadium last night.

Brothers, a 2-1 underdog who gave up 31½ pounds, surprised the slim crowd of 2,327 fans and might have won the fight but for valuable points lost by continuing fouling in the first two rounds.

Comiskey suffered a bad cut over his right eye in the third round but it was in this round that he scored his best spurt against Brothers. Pat cut Elkins with a pile-driving flurry that left him out on his feet, but Comiskey could not score the kayo punch

The gross gate was $4,857.07, and the net $3,485.32.

Joe Blackwood, Washington, 164½, was given a wild swinging 10-round semifinal decision over Roger Muriel, Elizabeth, N. J. Blackwood, swinging from his toes, dropped Muriel in the first and knocked out one of his teeth in the sixth.

Roland Randall, middleweight Golden Glove champion, found the pro ranks tougher than the amateurs and lost a five-round unanimous decision to Julian Keene in his pro debut. Keene, who weighed 168 to 162 for Randall, gave Roland a boxing lesson.

In other preliminaries Chuck Williams, D. C. 143 pounds, knocked out Sugar Dave Robinson, D. C. 145, in 2:41 of the second round to their four-round opener, and Leon Daughtry, D. C. 145½, in his second pro fight scored a TKO over Al Harris, D. C. 151, in 1:30 of the third round of their scheduled five rounder.

Stringer's Boner in 9th Cuts Off Tying Run

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

To their happy amazement, the Nats beat the Red Sox yesterday, 3 to 2.

It dawned upon them that they won the game on Boston's third hit of the ninth inning, with victory all wrapped up in a senseless piece of base running by Pinch Runner Lou Stringer before the Red Sox could score the tying run.

In that ninth, with Mickey Haefner struggling to protect his one-run lead, Tommy O'Brien singled with one out, and Birdie Tebbetts moved him to second with a two-out single. And then matters roared to an unhappy climax for the Red Sox.

They moved in Stringer as a runner for Tebbetts, and they wheeled in Sam Mele as a pinch hitter for Jack Kramer. Mele came through nobly with a line single to right field, and O'Brien rounded third and was dashing home with the equalizing run.

Couldn't Get Back

But Stringer, over-ambitious on his dash from first, rounded second too far and found Buddy Lewis' throw waiting for him in Sam Dente's glove when he attempted to regain the bag.

Stringer was the third out, and the ball game was over, with O'Brien still five feet from home plate with the tying run.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox tossed a fit. He argued with Plate Umpire Joe Papparella that O'Brien had scored before Stringer was out. Papparella originally indecisive until he got the affirmative nod from Umpire Charlie Berry at second base, stuck to his guns amid a wholesale uproar by the Red Sox.

McCarthy made as if to lay violent hands on Papparella and the dispute raged for nearly five minutes after the game until the umpires found refugee in their own quarters.

Ted Overdoes It

It was the second ill-fated piece of base running by the Red Sox in consecutive innings. Back in the eighth, after the Red Sox had picked up a run on Dom DiMaggio's double and Ted Williams' single. Williams attempted to go from first to second after Gil Coan's catch of Stephens' long fly. Coan threw him out to end the inning.

Haefner held the Red Sox to eight hits in his duel with Kramer, and the first run he yielded was the gift of the Nats' infield. In the first inning, DiMaggio dragged a bunt past the Nats' pitcher, and Pesky followed with another bunt to Haefner. Pesky was thrown out at first, but DiMaggio was racing all the way to third on the play when he got an added lift from Robinson in the form of a wild throw that enabled him to score.

The Nats got that one back almost right away, after two were

Those Wondrous Nats

There was nothing fluky about that 3-2 win our hustling Nats got yesterday over the Red Sox.

We were just showing that the American League fielding averages don't lie. They show us leading the league.

When Tom O'Brien and Birdie Tebbetts singled in the ninth, our rightfielder, Buddy Lewis, just figured out ahead of time what he'd do in case Pinch-Hitter Sam Mele hit the ball in his direction.

When Mele did single to right, Buddy threw to Sam Dente at second, and Sam tagged out Pinch-runner Lou Stringer before O'Brien could cross the plate. That's typical heads-up baseball by our team.

That, by the way, wasn't the only time we played brainy defensive ball yesterday. The score was 3-2 in the eighth, when Johnny Pesky of the Sox led off by popping a fly toward the third base boxes. Our Eddie Yost tore over after it. The ball seemed to be falling into the fifth row, but Yost stayed with it, and made a terrific catch. One out.

THEN TED Williams followed with a single. Vern Stephens sent a long fly to left field, and Williams must have figured, "If I can just get to second base after that catch, slugger Bobby Doerr'll knock me in with the tying run."

However, Ted didn't reckon with Gil Coan's throwing arm. After Gil caught Stepheng' fly, Williams lit out for second, but a great throw by Coan got him. Three outs and no runs, thanks to smart defensive play.

In case you hadn't noticed it, we're getting the best pitching in the majors these days. Thanks to Mickey Haefner, Sid Hudson, Walter Masterson, Paul Calvert and Rae Scarborough, our opponents have scored only 19 runs in the last 9 games, an average of 2.1 runs per game. Good enough to win the pennant.

out in their first inning. Robertson, Vollmer and Robinson unleashed singles aginst Kramer.

They gave Haefner another run to work with in the third after Coan drew a walk. Lewis moved him to third with a single, and after Robertson's moderate fly left Coan tethered to the bag, Clyde Vollmer got him home with a deep fly to O'Brien.

In the third, Kramer was shocked for three consecutive singles by Robinson, Yost and Dente that improved Haefer's lead to 3-1, an apparently comfortable margin.

It looked less comfortable after DiMaggio opened the Boston eighth with a two-bagger down the third base line which the Nats' unsuccessfully protested as foul. In this crisis, Eddie Yost reached far into the third base boxes for a one-hand catch of Pesky's pop foul, but Williams got the run home with a single to right.

After that, the Boston base running saw the Nats home.

IN SHORT—Kiki Cuyler, coaching at third base for the Red Sox during this series, was making his first appearance in Griffith Stadium since he was a Pirate in the World Series of 1925 . . . Birdie Tebbetts tipped his cap good-naturedly when the Nats' fans greeted him with boos . . . Bill Hitchcock, who used to play second, third and short for the Nats, has popped up as Boston's first baseman since the shoulder injury of Bill Goodman . . . Eddie Yost has been batting .370 for the Nats since he regained his third base job from Mark Christman 10 days ago . . . Plate Umpire Joe Papparella made the decision that Buddy Lewis' seventh-inning smash down the first base line was foul, because Umpire Cal Hubbard was doing a backward highland fling at the time in an effort to escape being hit . . . Walt Masterson takes on the Tigers in the series opener tonight and will probably face Hal Trucks, who stopped the Nats' nine-game streak in Detroit in a 2-1 duel with Masterson.

Potomac River Power Boys Have Meeting at Yacht Club

By "Happy" Walker

THE POTOMAC River Power Squadron, District organization of the parent U. S. Power Squadron, will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at the Capital Yacht Club at 8 bells. Squadron Commander W. Emmit Davis urges all recent graduates of the piloting courses to attend.

The following flag officers have been elected to command the Potomac River Power Squadron for 1949-50, and will be inducted at the June meeting of the Squadron: Anton Benesh, JN, commander; James A. Gregory, JN, lieutenant commander; Earl E. Eisenhart, AP first lieutenant; Joseph H. Ainsworth, S, second lieutenant; John Razievich, SN, secretary; A. E. Crowe, SN, treasurer. Executive Committee: E. G. Kaiser, JN; W. S. Green, JN; R. L. Wine, N; George C. Campbell, AP; D. C. Holmes, AP. James A. Gregory was appointed chairman of the annual navigation contest and George C. Campbell was named flag lieutenant. This looks like an excellent slate. Good luck to you boys, in what should be an outstanding season for the PRPS.

STILL another popular rendezvous planned for Memorial Day weekend when Capital Yacht Club's Early Birds make their annual trek to Occoquan Creek. On Sunday, May 29, the boats will gather around Treasurer Myron Davy's yacht Selma, which will be anchored off of High Point on the Virginia side of the Potomac above the mouth of Occoquan Creek. All will go ashore for a barbecue at the Davy place there. This is to be a very informal affair. Members are requested to make their reservations with Club Secretary, Earl Eisenhart, jr.

For those aquatic sportsmen who have passed the Red Cross life saving examination, courses of instruction in canoe handling are now available at Dempsey's Boat House, 36th and K sts. nw., each Monday and Thursday evening between 6 and 8 o'clock. Counselor G. E. Todd of the District Red Cross is training the classes. Some 25 enrollees are currently going through the course, completion of which will lead to counselor's appointment in water safety and aquatic sports. Call Republic 8911 for further details.

Folks around Dempsey's Sunday had the welcome shingle out for one Carson "Andy" Anderson, just returned from three years on Okinawa with the Department of the Army. Andy is a Dempsey's class of 1922 alumni and still very active.

A newcomer to the already crowded schedule of APBA sanctioned regattas for this area is the Radford, Va., Junior Chamber of Commerce, who have just received their sanction for an outboard regatta to be held on Lake Claytor on Sunday, June 26. The event promises to draw the country's top speedboat champions in all outboard classes. John W. Morgan, jr. heads the sponsoring group assisted by W. H. Byrne, Don Phillips, Howard Narkates, John Dodson, Bob Niver, Giles Goodykoontz and Homer Cole.

Channel Bass Still Biting At Nag's Head

By Ralph Murdock

NAG'S HEAD reports still show nice catches of channel bass. The average catch is from eight to twelve, weighing up to 45 pounds. A party consisting of Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren, Walter B. Francis, Washington correspondent for the Los Angeles Times; George W. Combs, Washington correspondent for the Baltimore Sun; Lieut. Gen. Hal Turnage, USMC, and Ford Worthy of Washington, D. C., took a fling at the channel bass. The 1949 spring season for the bronzed beauties has eclipsed all expectations to date.

Most unusual catch of the weekend was an ocean sunfish that scaled 150 pounds. It was taken by Captain Jesse Etheridge while trolling in Oregon Inlet. It was nabbed on a large spoon lure that was intended for a channel bass. The ocean sunfish has the distinction of being the smallest thing at birth to reach such a mammoth size. Rarely are they caught with a trolling rig.

ED KONICK, who has a fishing rendezvous near Seven Gables on the Patuxent and directly opposite Point Patience, reports that rockfish are being caught at Town Point. Grass shrimp is the prescription and chumming is the method. A rock that balanced the scales at 9 pounds was one of the choice taken during the week. This area was one of the best fishing grounds for rocks.

Five-Foot Shelf of Good Looks

There's a broad 63-inch seat cushion, comfortably angled, soft and inviting, and only a hand's width narrower than a full-size parlor sofa.

There are narrower corner posts hardly wider than the space between your eyes, so plenty easy to see around—and there's a broad, sweeping, full-curved windshield spreading a horizon-wide view before your eyes.

There's a gas treadle that flicks into instant life the great power of a big, full-throated Fireball power plant. Under the wheel there can be a Dynaflow† selector lever you set once and then forget through all your normal forward driving.

And wrapping it all up in one stunningly beautiful picture of top-drawer travel is modern styling in the good Buick manner—sleek lines, bright chrome, the instant identification of gleaming Ventiports.

Here's five-feet-plus of deep-seated comfort—an outlook that brings the whole landscape indoors—handsome lines that draw admiring glances anywhere—what else is needed to settle your mind on this one?

Two things, probably. A little spin with yourself behind the wheel just to take this honey's measure. A look at the price tags and a bit of mental comparisons just to prove how big a buy it is.

For both you have only to see your Buick dealer—who will be pleased to demonstrate, pleased to talk price—and pleased to take your order for surprisingly early delivery.

Oyster Case Goes To Grand Jury

Special to The Washington Post.

La Plata, Md., May 16.—Oyster dredging charges against 15 men seized in a predawn raid in the Potomac River were presented here today to the grand jury, which is expected to report its action tomorrow.

The defendants, all of whom are residents of the Rock Point-Cobb Island area, were picked up and their six boats seized in a January 14 raid near Morgantown.

The raiders, who used a hydroplane-type speed boat, were led by Executive Director David Wallace and Chief Inspector J. W. S. Foster of the Maryland Fisheries Commission.

The oystermen's captured boats are still held by the Fisheries Commission at Neale Sound, near Cobb Island, despite attempts by their attorneys to regain possession through a writ of mandamus. Action was nol-prossed before the Charles County Circuit Court.

At a preliminary hearing before Trial Magistrate Edward S. Digges on January 25, the 15 men were held for action of the grand jury on charges of obtaining oysters illegally by the use of dredging. They were released on $500 bonds.

Two Indicted For Murder by Fairfax Jury

A Fairfax County grand jury yesterday indicted two brothers for murder in the fatal tavern beating of 39-year-old Courtney Whalen.

True bills were returned against Ted James Johnson, 23, of 2707 Mount Vernon ave., and his brother, Harold Clay Johnson, 21, of RFD 3, both of Alexandria. They pleaded innocent to the charge.

Police said Whalen, a welder who lived at 3039 Colvin st., Fairfax County, was through through a plate glass window in a tavern near his home, then kicked and beaten.

Several days later, the Johnson brothers gave themselves up to Alexandria police. Whalen died in Alexandria Hospital two days after the fight.

Police identified Ted Johnson as a photographer at the Pentagon and his brother, Harold, as a Quartermaster Corps clerk.

Among eight other men indicted by the Fairfax grand jury yesterday were two accused of a series of five housebreakings which police said netted them only about $31 in cash and merchandise. They were Robert L. Cockrell, 20, and Yoncie A. Bain, 20, both of Herndon, Va.

Friendship House Gives Testimonial To Miss Burklin

Miss Lydia Burklin, director of Friendship House since 1909, was given a testimonial dinner last night in recognition of more than 40 years of service to the Red Feather agency and to the community.

Attending the dinner in the Friendship House assembly hall were more than 25 persons, including directors of the home, community leaders and associates of Miss Burklin during the period she has served as director. Scheduled to receive a cash gift, Miss Burklin asked that it be placed in the Henry P. Blair Memorial Fund to provide special schooling for neighborhood children.

Among those present were Mrs. Olive Alvey, original member of the Mothers Club at Friendship House; Mrs. D. E. Wisecarver, who was a member of the first kindergarten group, and Miss Ada Lowe, who managed the house with Miss Burklin in 1909. Edgar Goodrich, president of the Friendship House board, served as master of ceremonies.

Yokley Charged In Fatal Stabbing

Clifford Yokley, 30, Germantown, Md., landscaper yesterday was charged with murder in the Sunday stabbing of his brother-in-law, James (Pete) Lowe, 26, also of Germantown. A preliminary hearing has been set for Thursday in Rockville Trial Magistrate's court.

Police said they were called Sunday to the scene of an argument near the Yokley home between Yokley, his sister, Mrs. Fern Lowe, and the stabbing victim. When they arrived, police said, Lowe was dead of a stab wound in the heart.

$50,000 Pledged Jewish Appeal

The Government Workers Division of the United Jewish Appeal last night pledged more than $50,000 to the Greater Washington drive to raise 2½ million dollars.

The amount was announced by Division Chairman Leon J. Keyserling, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, at the meeting at the Washington Hotel.

Greenbelt Council Will Let County Run Referendum

The Greenbelt Town Council last night announced that the town would not set up voting booths or appoint judges in the referendum or gambling in Prince Georges County, scheduled for June 2.

Instead, according to town manager Charles McDonald, the mechanics of voting will be left to the County Board.

McDonald also announeed that a temporary permit for construction of a church building has been issued to the Greenbelt Catholic Church and that the council will meet monthly on the second Monday of the month during June, July and August. It now holds bimonthly meetings.

Pyle Retiring as Principal of Bethesda-Chevy Chase School

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post reporter

A kindly, soft-spoken man, who has been a teacher for 41 years, will step down at the end of this school year as principal of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

Pyle

And 61-year-old Thomas W. Pyle thinks the lipstick - wearing scooter-riding 1949 version of a high school youngster is "not much different" from the 1908 version in his first class.

"Just treat them as individuals and you find that each has a contribution to make," he says of his youthful charges and his approach to teaching.

"A long time ago," he recalled, "the teacher was supposed to know everything and always be right. Now, it's a lot different.'

"Times have speeded up, and youngsters have broader experiences and, as a result, a broadened outlook," he said. "Many teachers today find they have students who know more about the subject than they do."

"The principal difference in education now," he said, "is that there is an enriching exchange between the teacher and the pupil that did not exist 41 years ago."

Pyle, who lives with his wife, Mrs. Helen D. Pyle, and his daughter, Jane, at 4618 Highland ave., Bethesda, first joined the county school system as principal of Poolesville High School in 1921.

Five years later, he became principal of the Bethesda School on Wilson lane and in 1928 moved as principal to the new high school on Leland st., the present site of Leland Junior High School.

The present Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, on East-West Highway near Wisconsin ave., was built in 1935. Pyle moved there as principal from the Leland st. school.

The school's Parent-Teacher's Association will honor him at a reception tonight at 8 in the school gymnasium.

Brougher to Attend Worcester Forum

Turtle Forced Down In England on Return

The United States patrol bomber, the Truculent Turtle, has been forced down by radio trouble at Cornwall, England, on a flight from Paris to Washington, the National Military Establishment said last night.

The flight is the last lap on the Turtle's tour marking the thirtieth anniversary of the first transatlantic air crossing.

The plane left Paris, at 1 p. m. (EDT.) and had expected to reach Washington nonstop in about 23 hours. Armed services officials said here they did not know when it would take off from Cornwall.

Kaiser Traveler, world's most useful car

Henry J. Kaiser
Chairman of the Board
Kaiser-Frazer Corporation

1 Mr. Kaiser says: "For a long time, I've had the idea that a great many Americans want and need a practical kind of automobile that can do double duty as a passenger car for pleasure and a cargo carrier for work. I was thinking particularly of farmers, salesmen who have to carry bulky samples, merchants, housewives who do heavy week-end shopping, sportsmen and small businessmen.

"Station wagons aren't very practical. My own station wagon was hard riding, drafty and full of squeaks and rattles. It was hard to handle, and hard to work as a truck. If there was hauling to do, seats had to be wrestled out by brute force. It didn't carry enough cargo. It cost too much to operate, and more to buy than the average family can afford.

"So I talked to the boys of our engineering-production team, and the result was the all-new Kaiser Traveler. One minute it's a big, beautiful 6-passenger sedan that any family would be proud to own. Ten seconds later it is a roomy, steel-shod cargo carrier.

"I believe that the Kaiser Traveler is the practical answer to the problem of thousands of families who really need two kinds of cars, but can afford to buy and maintain only one.

2 "At first glance, the Kaiser Traveler appears to be a luxurious 6-passenger sedan, with a wheelbase of 123½ inches, and nine feet, seven and one-half inches of usable seating space. But in ten seconds, it becomes a sturdy cargo-carrier with a ten-foot-long, steel-shod hold. It's powered by the mighty Kaiser engine, with the gas-saving high compression ratio of 7.3-to-1.

"You don't use any tools. You just fold down the rear seat, flip open the cargo-hatch and let down the tailgate. All but the youngest of my eight grandchildren can convert it easily (and he's just a little fellow six months old!). There are not even bolts to tighten.

"Of course, the springs and shock absorbers have extra muscles to carry a big load, but they are soft and cushiony and give a grand ride. The upholstery is long-wearing and easy to wash. The tailgate is held in place with a piano-type hinge, so that you can use it as a loading platform. It will handle a heavy-weight load.

"With three people in the front seat, there is over 130 cubic feet of storage space in the cargo hold. And even with six passengers, you get more than 78 cubic feet of hold. That's room enough to carry almost anything.

3 "One of the things you'll like about the Kaiser Traveler is the price. It only costs $2088.* That's several hundred dollars less than the cheapest full-size station wagon, and the Kaiser Traveler is much more practical and satisfactory both as a pleasure car and a work car. It's really a great value.

"Now, before you buy any car at any price, I'd like to caution you to stop, look and listen. Stop in and see the Kaiser Traveler. Look at it carefully. Listen to what the salesman has to tell you. And then see if this isn't the one car that gives you everything you want... the prestige, the safety, the comfort of big car ownership, plus the extra advantages of owning a fine-performing cargo carrier that costs no more to operate than many much smaller, less useful cars.

"When you do this, I think you'll decide to buy a Kaiser Traveler, and I hope you do. If you get half as much use out of yours as I get out of mine, you'll have made a very wise choice!

"After you've seen the Kaiser Traveler, please write me your reaction. Address me: Henry J. Kaiser, Willow Run, Michigan. I'd really like to hear from you."

Kaiser Traveler $2088*... Kaiser... world's lowest-priced big car!... See your nearest Kaiser-Frazer dealer today!

Career U. S. Employes And Veterans to Put Up Battle to Hold Jobs

Career employes and veterans will put up a battle to hold their Federal jobs at a hearing to be held Thursday by the Humphrey subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

The hearing is particularly timely since career non-veterans with 25 and 30 years of service in both the Navy and VA are being laid off. Many more career people must be fired if Congress carries through on its economy threats.

The Langer bill, supported by the Administration and opposed by veterans' groups, will be up for study. It would modify layoff rules to limit preference of veterans only over those non-veterans with less than 10 years of service. Non-veterans with more than 10 years of service would have equal rights during layoffs with veterans of equal credits.

Another important veteran bill was studied yesterday by the Frear subcommittee of the same committee. It's the O'Conor bill which would allow veterans with no previous Federal service to count their service in the military toward automatic in-grade promotions in the postal service.

If the bill becomes law, the same benefit is certain to be demanded of Congress for classified employes who are veterans.

The Administration opposes the measure. Maurice B. Feimster of the Post Office Department, said the bill would cost about 61 millions a year and that some of its provisions would be difficult to interpret. Most postal employe leaders indorsed the legislation.

Ismar Baruch explained Civil Service's opposition to the bill. He said it was his private view that the postal service would be better off if the first four postal grades were abolished instead.

Chairman Frear named an informal committee to draft a substitute bill. Members of it are Feimster, Baruch, and E. C. Hallbeck of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks, who spoke for the bill on behalf of the employes groups in the American Federation of Labor.

HOUSE BILLS: On the House side yesterday, the Kelley subcommittee of the House Labor Committee debated the Lesinski bill to give adequate benefits to Federal workers injured on the job and to the families of employes killed on duty.

The Kelley group favors the principle in the bill. It decided not to act on it until it had additional information on costs if the provision on major and total disabilities was made retroactive for several years. Also, Federal Security officials proposed a dozen other amendments to the measure which must be studied.

PEOPLE: John Noble, assistant general counsel of the Office of National Defense, is planning to resign soon to enter private practice . . . Robert Freeman, chief of Interior's Oil and Gas Division, has told Secretary Krug that he wants to quit as soon as a successor can be found . . . Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) put in a bill yesterday to prevent employes of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from accepting jobs with business firms that borrow money from the agency.

FHA: The President yesterday urged the Senate to give Federal Housing an additional million dollars for the remainder of this fiscal year. He pointed out that recent laws had increased FHA's work. If the agency gets the money, it will be able to hire enough new employes to help wipe out its terrific backlog of work.

WAR ASSETS was given $13,250,000 in the first deficiency bill—$500,000 less than it asked for—which means it must speed up its liquidation.

WAR CLAIMS COMMISSION is given $75,000 in the bill. The agency was set upon paper a year ago but up to now Congress has refused to give it operating funds.

CAPITOL HILL: The deficiency bill also allows the Senators from Virginia and California to employ an additional clerk in their offices. . . . A $2500 auto is provided for the Vice President. . . . The BYRD ECONOMY COMMITTEE is given $20,000. . . . The BUREAU OF COMMUNITY FACILITIES was given $137,500 which is $37,500 less than it asked.

Beckley's Resources Questioned In Theft Case

Defense Attorneys Express Wonder How Ex-Policeman Got $60,000, Jewels

The financial history of Richard H. Beckley was probed yesterday in District Court, with the former police sergeant on the stand all day in the trial of three men charged with stealing $60,000 from his safe.

Beckley admitted under cross-examination he was the only person who knew the contents of his safe.

He told of counting his money approximately one year before the safe was allegedly stolen by Stance W. James, 30, 1332 9th st. nw.; his brother, Oliver James, 25, 1600 A st. se., and Louis Singleton, 40, of 910 Westminster st. nw.

Four defense attorneys questioned Beckley for three hous and a half in an effort to find out how a retired policeman could have $60,000 in cash plus $10,000 worth of jewelry in a safe, in addition to three bank accounts and a safe-deposit box.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut once called a five-minute halt in the trial, to permit a court nurse to administer sedatives to the 69-year-old retired policeman.

Beckley admitted to the judge he was "highly excited" when he was called upon to identify a gold coin, which U. S. Attorney Arthur McLaughlin claimed was found in Oliver James' home and which Beckley said he could identify as having been taken from his safe.

Beckley said he had marked the coin with a small cross for purposes of identification when a man had asked him for money in return for the coin.

With the aid of Judge Schweinhaut's magnifying glass Beckley testified he could see the cross, but added that the mark was "much fainter" yesterday than on the day he identified the coin in police headquarters.

Beckley, who spent all but a few minutes of his day on the stand under cross-examination, said he had $45,000 in the safe as early as 1916. He said he had added, but not subtracted, to that sum in the last 33 years. He told the court he had retired from the police force in 1920, when he was earning $2700 a year.

His present income from trusts alone is $500 a month, he said. In addition, he loans money, charging up to 5 per cent interest.

In the safe when it was stolen were also 100 shares of capital stock in the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., duplicates of which he produced in court yesterday.

The case was continued until 10 this morning.

Dr. Mitchell Honored by Fire Officials

For more than 45 years Dr. James F. Mitchell, retired chief surgeon of Emergency Hospital, has been a friend—medically and personally — to Washington's firefighters and policemen.

Dr. Mitchell

Yesterday in recognition of his "loyal support, assistance and devotion," Fire Chief Clement Murphy presented him with a scroll in behalf of the Fire Department, and made the 78-year-old surgeon an honorary deputy chief.

The presentation took place at 2 p. m. in Chief Murphy's office at fire headquarters, 4th and Douglas sts., nw. On hand were 20 division and battalion chiefs.

Dr. Mitchell, who lives at 1344 19th st. nw., set up his practice here in 1903. Since that time his office has been open to firemen and policemen at any time. He declined to estimate yesterday how many he had treated over the years.

The citation said, "His loyal support, assistance and devotion to the welfare of the Fire Department of the District of Columbia has proven him to be an outstanding friend to the fire department and he is hereby appointed an honorary deputy chief."

Court Kills Judgment For Ex-Wife

A $794,762.50 judgment awarded Elsie Lilian Tucker Duell, former screen actress, against her divorced husband, Charles H. Duell, jr., one-time producer, was set aside yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The opinion, which remanded the case to District Court, also instructed the Court to void a contempt order against Duell for failure to produce certain records bearing on his income.

Mrs. Duell obtained the judgment for alimony, maintenance, settlement of debts, plus interest, in District Court in 1947.

Federal Judge David A. Pine had signed the agreement after judging Duell in default because the latter had not cleared himself of the contempt charges.

The court, at that time, also struck from the record Duell's answer to his former wife's plea for judgment.

While the appellate tribunal, composed of Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens and Associate Judges Wilbur K. Miller and James M. Proctor, concurred on setting aside the judgment, Stephens held in a minority opinion, that the contempt judgment should stand.

The majority opinion held that the contempt order was improperly framed in that it contained no "key" for Duell to avert it by payments to his wife—an opening normally offered in civil cases.

Stephens, agreeing that the judgment should be set aside, held the court, contrary to law, struck out Duell's answer without motion and without notice to the defendant.

Representing Mrs. Duell were Joseph G. Dondero, C. F. Rothenburg, Charles D. Hamel.

Man Indicted As Strangler in Rape Attempt

Elwood T. Hughes, 8 Rhode Island ave. nw, yesterday was indicted on a first degree murder charge growing out of the strangling of a 25-year-old girl during an attempted rape.

The nude body of the girl, Edna Crump, 25, of 2355 Sherman ave. nw., also known as Edna Spraggins, was found lying near an alley off 633 Columbia rd. nw., early on March 27.

Hughes is also charged with robbery in the theft of two watches and other property from the girl.

In another indictment involving rape, Wesley G. Smith, 21, of 3753 Hayes st. ne., was accused of ravishing a 16-year-old girl last April 24 in her home after her parents retired.

The District Grand Jury returned 40 indictments in all and ignored nine cases.

Among charges ignored were those against: Harry Tyler, 318 50th st. ne., larceny; Andrew Ashton, no address given, assault with intent to kill; James Crosby, 1150 21st st. nw., robbery.

Women Ask Public Quiz For Young

Voters League Urges Commissioner Face Senate Hearing on District Questions

The District League of Women Voters yesterday urged an open Senate hearing on the nomination of J. Russell Young for reappointment as District Commissioner.

In a letter to Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R.I.) of the Senate District Committee, the league said:

"It seems to us that there are several matters of public policy and general interest upon which Commissioner Young might properly be asked to express an opinion, most notably home rule for the District of Columbia."

Group to Hear Young

The Senate District Committee agreed last week to invite Young to appear in closed session before voting on his nomination.

Senator McGrath said last night he had not received the league's letter, and was not prepared to comment on the "open hearing" suggestion.

The league said District citizens also would like to hear Young's views on other issues of importance to all of us, such as amending the D. C. child labor law, the question of an elected school board, sick leave for teachers, local fiscal affairs, segregation in public institutions, and the segregation policies of the Recreation Department, among others.

Public Hearing Urged

"Since Commissioner Young is appointed to serve the entire District and is, in effect, our mayor, the league believes that this hearing should be public," the letter said.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), who made the motion that Young come before the committee, has indicated that he will question the Commissioner on the home rule issue.

Another committee member, Matthew W. Neely (D., W. Va.) said he wants to query Young on his Federal income tax returns for the year preceding his first term, and for the past year.

Senate Bill Would Limit Rockfish Sale

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) moved yesterday to stop local sale of oversized rockfish caught in nearby Maryland and Virginia waters.

He filed a Senate bill to make it illegal to sell a rockfish over 15 pounds in the District.

It was explained that fish of that size are spawning and should be left to their own devices as a conservation measure. Maryland and Virginia have similar size limitations on rockfish. Two other local bills, filed in the House yesterday, would prohibit sale or purchase of distilled liquor and beer on credit. Representative Beall (R., Md.) sponsored the bill effecting credit purchases of liquor. Representative Forand (D., Conn.) introduced the one on beer.

Hearing Society to Meet

The American Hearing Society will hold its Middle Atlantic zone conference here Thursday through Sunday in the Hotel Washington. Miss Rose V. Feilbach, executive secretary of the Washington Hearing Society, said yesterday. Workshop demonstrations of corrective hearing methods and devices are scheduled.

Boy, 9, Finds Himself Locked In Van; Marshal Frees Him

When 9-year-old Kermit Dillman, jr., stalked out of a United States marshal's van early last night, he became the second Dillman to get "sprung" by officers of the law without benefit of even habeas corpus.

Kermit got out the orthodox way—with a key—but his 6-year-old brother, William, needed a giant can opener on Armistice Day, 1947, to gain his freedom from—a diaper can.

As for their mother, Mrs. Kermit Dillman of 303 D st. nw., she doesn't know what to do to keep her venturesome brood from getting into tight spots.

She thinks maybe a nice closed-off playground would keep young Kermit out of the arms of the law. Because it was the lack of any better place to play that found him hanging around District Court, she said.

With Kermit and his friends, one little prank led to another, and pretty soon Kermit was shoved into the United States marshal's Black Maria, the door shut, and the lock tripped. Kermit began to cry.

When a District Court guard came out and revealed all the deputy marshals who had keys to the van had quit for the day, Kermit's wails rose several octaves. About an hour later Deputy Marshal Fred Howden showed up and freed the lad.

When Mrs. Dillman heard about it, her mind quickly flashed back a year and a half to when little William dived into a diaper can and wedged his bottom tight inside.. The coppers sprung little William—also without court action.

Dog, Suffering From Dropsy, Dies Here as New Shots Fail

"Tammie," 13-year-old Scottie suffering from dropsy, died yesterday at Howard University Medical School, despite efforts to save his life with a new treatment for the disease perfected there.

Tammie's fond owners, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Lane of Camp Lejeune, N. C., drove 350 miles in hopes of saving the dog's life, after they read of the new treatment. Lane is a dentist attached to the camp.

The dropsy treatment itself was successful on the dog, according to Dr. Samuel Corson, assistant professor of physicology at the medical school. He said the aged dog died of a cerebral hemorrhage, about two hours after the treatment was concluded.

The dentist and his wife, who raised the dog from puppyhood, hovered nervously outside the laboratory yesterday morning while tests and actual injections were given the dog. Mrs. Lane burst into tears when informed of Tammie's death about 3:45 p. m.

"It's just like they were parents," said Dr. Corson.

The treatment, which consists of infusing a solution of neutral and alkaline sodium salts in the veins, has proved itself by reducing edema (dropsy) in "hundreds" of laboratory animals, Dr. Corson said. It has only been tried twice on humans, once successfuly, and once on a "dying" patient, whose death followed treatment, despite reduction of edema.

Three Injured, One Critically, In Collision

Mrs. Melania M. Dean, 34, of 252 Whitmore ter., Silver Spring, suffered a fractured skull when she was thrown from her automobile in a collision at the intersection, police reported. At Emergency Hospital her condition was said to be critical.

Police said the other vehicle, driven by Lewis G. Cotton, 27, of 2809 15th st. nw., smashed into a tree on the corner after the impact, seriously injuring a passenger, Mrs. Mildred J. Bodiou, 27, of Boteler rd., Whiteoak, Silver Spring. She was admitted to Emergency with face and scalp injuries.

Both drivers were charged with colliding.

In another accident about 1:20 p. m. a woman was injured when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a Capital Transit Co. bus on Benning rd. ne., near Kingman Lake.

She was Mary Bowers, 44, of 7240 44th st. ne. At Casualty Hospital, where it was said she suffered possible spine injuries, her condition was termed good.

The bus driver, identified by police as Herbert Price, 54, of 915 1st st. nw., was charged with changing lanes without caution. The automobile occupied by the injured woman was going in the same direction as the bus, police said. It was driven by Benjamin J. Jennings, 28, of 4912 Deane ave. ne.

In a two-car collision at East-West hwy. and Brookeville rd., Chevy Chase, Md., two men suffered face lacerations and total damage to the two cars was estimated by police at $1200.

Express Truck Drivers Receive Safety Awards

Eighty-three truck drivers employed by the Railway Express Agency in the Washington area have been awarded lapel buttons for operating through 1948 without an accident, company officials said yesterday.

Among those honored were two employes who received special awards for driving 14 years without mishap. Four others were honored for 10 or more years of safe operation.

Fourteen-year awards went to C. L. Collier, 4304 13th st. nw., and George Collinge, 224 Adams st. ne. Honored for 10 or more years of safe driving were J. W. Gray, 725 K st. ne.; B. V. Moran, 4306 Mahan rd., Silver Spring; J. P. DiNenna, 220 9th st. se., and R. W. Clay, 1622 Potomac ave. se.

The company has about 200 drivers in the Washington area.

Illegitimacy Bill Meets Opposition

Opposition to the measure, indorsed by the District Bar Association, came out at a hearing before the House District Judiciary Subcommittee.

The bill is aimed to modernize and broaden the District code with respect to establishing paternity and support of children born out of wedlock. Under the measure, a mother may bring action against the purported father of a child by going before an assistant corporation counsel in Juvenile Court.

Miss A. Patricia Morss of the Welfare Board said she feared the measure would have the effect of "sidetracking" the court's Social Service Department where "many paternity cases are voluntarily worked out."

She urged that the bill be amended to requiring complainants to have initial interviews with a court-appointed social worker rather than with an assistant corporation counsel.

The bill also increases the six months' maximum jail sentence for nonsupport to one year.

Sub-committee Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) requested the Bar Association to confer with the Welfare Board and private social agencies and return with amendments acceptable to both groups.

Alexandrian Kills Himself After Quarrel With Wife

The man was identified as Junius R. Cox, 1204 S. Alfred st.

Inspector Russell A. Hawes, Alexandria chief of detectives, said the man's wife, Ruth, told him the tragedy occurred at their home at about 6:30 p. m. after the couple returned from a drive. They had quarreled during the drive, she said.

P-TA to Honor Retired Teacher

Miss Mary A. Stephenson, 5302 13th st. nw., teacher in the District public schools for 39 years, will be honored at a reception given by the Keene-Rudolph Parent-Teacher Association today at 8 p. m. at the Lewis Memorial Church, 4th and Hamilton sts. nw. Miss Stephenson, who retired April 1, taught for 31 years at the Park View Elementary School and for eight years at Rudolph.

Public Gets Wider Voice On Board Of Chest

Permanent By-Laws Increase Trustees Elected at Large From 59 to 84

Greater citizen participation in the United Community Services program was provided yesterday with adoption by its board of trustees of a permanent set of by-laws enlarging trustee membership.

The new rule, which will replace a proposed plan of organization under which U. C. S. has been operating since its formation last summer, provide for the addition of at least 25 trustees from the public at large. The board at present has 184 trustees, with 59 elected at large.

Approval of this phase of the by-laws was reversal of the trustees' action last October when they voted down a proposal to increase the number of trustees-at-large by 38.

Will Total 84

The new rules provide that the board of trustees include at least 75 members-at-large, plus additional members required to make the combined total of trustees-at-large and community-organization trustees equal the total number of other members on the board. On the basis of present membership in the organization, at-large trustees will total 84.

In other respects, the new rules closely follow the pattern set by the proposed operating plan, developed by a joint committee from the Community Chest and the old Council of Social Agencies last year when it was proposed that the two be merged into the U. C. S.

The by-laws, providing a permanent framework for U. C. S. efforts in the fields of health and social welfare, combine within the single organization the budget functions of the Community Chest and planning functions of the Council of Social Agencies, officials of the group explained.

Purposes Outlined

Purposes of the organization as outlined in the by-laws are:

1. To study the health and welfare needs of the community and, by cooperative effort, to meet these needs through the development of a constructive program which will be efficient, economical and free from duplication.

2. To make certain that the public understands and supports the program.

3. To secure adequate funds for support of the program.

4. To determine which agencies in the District shall receive Chest support, to approve the budgets of such agencies, and, on request, to consult on budgetary matters with non-Chest agencies.

Members of the organization, besides trustees-at-large, will include public and private operating agencies actually engaged in social work and community organizations interested in community welfare problems. Conditions imposed by the by-laws require that member operating agencies be administered and financed in a manner acceptable to U.C.S.

Director to Be Named

Business of the organization shall be transacted by an executive committee of 25 members, subject to the policies to be determined by the board of trustees. The committee is empowered to appoint an executive director who will be responsible for administration of the U.C.S. office and who shall be given authority to employ necessary staff members, subject to personnel standards of the organization.

Representatives of U.C.S., designated by the president, also will serve on the board of directors and the executive, budget, headquarters and nominating committees of the National Capital Area Community Chest Federation in accordance with provisions set forth by the Chest unit.

The new rules will become effective immediately, U.C.S. officials said.

ABC Asked Either to Rescind Or Reconsider Liquor License

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was asked yesterday to rescind the license it issued April 1 to Alex Browdy for a package store at 1918 Allison st. ne. or to grant a re-hearing on the application.

The board, after hearing arguments supporting this request by Nathan Lubar, attorney for four Michigan Park residents, announced it would take the matter under advisement.

Residents of the community split violently over the liquor store at a meeting of the Michigan Park Citizens Association, April 4, when it was charged by some that approval of the application had been "railroaded" through the March meeting. During the meeting, reference to the action was expunged from the minutes of the earlier meeting.

Lubar contended the board "had no legal right to grant the license."

Milford F. Schwartz, attorney for Browdy, reminded the board that the protesting group had received a previous hearing and that the board had acted as a result of its findings at that time.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

ALCOHOLISM is a disease

Area News in Brief

Avenue Named Ohio Asked of D. C. Chiefs

A rose by any other name may smell as sweet, but a street not named Ohio has made a Congressman bleat.

He did it yesterday to the District Commissioners. They held a public hearing to listen to Representative Jenkins (R., Ohio), who wants to rename Eastern ave. Ohio ave.

Representative Jenkins pointed out that the "great State of Ohio is the only State without a street in Washington named after it."

This is the second try Buckeye State representatives have made to include an Ohio avenue on the District's street map. The first, in 1946, would have renamed Bladensburg rd.

Appearing against the proposed change was Wilmer A. Eisenhart, representing the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens' Association. He objected to the change because Eastern ave. is a boundary line of the city.

Hurt by Lawn Mower

A Rockville, Md., man, Raymond Shipe, 33, suffered a broken ankle yesterday when his left foot became tangled in the whirling blades of a lawn mower. He was admitted to Suburban Hospital.

Held for Drunken Driving

A 350-pound man, driving a Crosley automobile, was convicted yesterday in Bethesda police court of driving under the influence of liquor.

Police testified the man, Robert C. Bond, 47, of 4516 Windsor la., Bethesda, was "very much under the influence" when arrested March 26.

Trial Magistrate James R. Miller set bond at $101.45 and the defendant noted appeal.

Marie LeBeau

Chicago, May 16 (AP).—Marie Alvina Amy Lebeau, 75, for 25 years an aerialist with Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus, died today.

Miss Lebeau retired from the circus 30 years ago and later worked as a department store matron.

Airforce Pilot

Lieut. Haimes Killed in Texas Storm

A 30-year-old Bolling Air Force Base pilot was killed in the Texas Panhandle early yesterday when his F-51 fighter plane crashed during a thunderstorm, Air Force officials reported last night.

The pilot was First Lieut. William Frederick Haimes of 536 Oakwood st. se. He was attached to the Air Force Officer Review Section at Bolling.

On his way from from a trip to California, Haimes had left Albuquerque, N. Mex., early yesterday. The plane wreckage, strewn over an area of 500 feet, was found about 55 miles northeast of Amarillo at 7 a. m. (CST). Air Force officers said there were heavy clouds and electrical storms throughout the area at the time.

Haimes was assigned to Bolling in March, 1948, following a tour of duty with the Ninety-third Bombardment Group at Merced, Calif. During the war, he served 23 months with the Atlantic Command of the Army Transport Command.

A native of California, Haimes was educated at Santa Rosa Junior College, Santa Rosa, Calif., and entered the Air Corps in 1943. He is survived by his father, F. W. Haimes, with whom he lived.

The Air Force said yesterday that the remains would be returned to Washington for burial in Arlington Cemetery but funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Bidding to Open For Parking Lot At 14th and D

The Public Buildings Administration announced yesterday it will advertise for bids on the leasing of a parking lot, now operated by Federal Parking Services, Inc., at 14th and D sts., nw.

The bids will be opened in Room G-1126 of the Federal Works Building, 18th and F sts., nw. at 3 p. m. on June 15—one month before expiration of the lease of the present operator. All offers must be submitted on Government bid forms, which can be obtained from Allan Groom in Room 7023 of the Federal Works Building.

The parking lot, situated in back of the District Building and directly across 14th st. from the Commerce Department, has a capacity of 1135 autos. Under terms of the lease, the operator will be required to reserve 940 spaces for Government workers at a monthly fee of $5 each.

The present operators pay $11,300 monthly rental, PBA said.

Mrs. Nathan Friedmann

Mrs. Nathan Friedmann, wife of a retired grocer, died yesterday in George Washington University Hospital. She was 59 Sunday.

The former Sarah Stein, she was born in Poland and came to the United States at 15 after living in England for a short time. She moved to Washington from Baltimore about 32 years ago. Her home was at 1526 Spring pl. nw.

A member of Tifereth Israel Synagogue, she was widely known for her many charitable interests.

Surviving in addition to her husband, are two daughters, Mrs. Anna Millstein, of 1738 Upshur st. nw., and Mrs. Lillian Karsh of the Spring pl. address; a son, Leonard Friedmann, also of the Spring pl. address; a brother Leonard Stein of Baltimore, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Tifereth Israel Cemetery.

Dr. John VanSchaick, 75, Dies; Retired Universalist Pastor

The Rev. John VanSchaick, jr., D.D., 75, pastor-emeritus of the Universalist National Memorial Church here and retired editor of the Christian Leader of Boston, died yesterday afternoon at Garfield Hospital after a brief illness.

Dr. Vanschaick

Dr. VanSchaick, who lived at 1840 Mintwood pl., nw., had resided in Washington since 1900, when he came here as pastor of the Universalist church then known as the Church of Our Father, Universalist. He held the pastorate until 1918, and was made pastor-emeritus a few years later when the former structure was replaced by the present Church at 16th and S sts. nw.

While pastor of the church, Dr. VanSchaick served at various times as president of the District Board of Education, chairman of the Board of Charities—later the Department of Public Welfare—and president of the Monday evening Club, an organization of social workers which was the forerunner of the Council of Social Agencies.

Went to Belgium in War

For many years Dr. VanSchaick was associated with the late Dr. Ernest Bicknell, director of the American Red Cross, and at the outbreak of World War I, he was sent to Belgium as Red Cross commissioner for that country. He became a close friend of King Albert and remained during the German occupation with the Belgian government at LaPanne, in the small area which never surrendered. His war experiences inspired his book, "The Little Corner Never Conquered."

Shortly after his return to Washington, Dr. VanSchaick became editor of the Christian Leader. Although maintaining his residence here, he lived in Boston during the spring and summer months until he retired as editor of the Universalist publication about three years ago.

Born in Cobleskill, N. Y., Dr. Van Schaick was graduated from Union College and receive his degree as Doctor of Divinity from St. Lawrence University.

Belonged to Cosmos Club

He was a member of the Cosmas Club here, the Century Club of New York, the Authors Club of Boston and the Authors Club of London. Among his books were "Cruising Around a Changing World," "Cruising Across Country," "Nature Cruisings," "Little Hill Farm," "Memories of the World War," "Love That Never Failed" and "Characters in Tales of a Wayside Inn."

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Julia Asenath Romaine VanSchaick; a sister, Mrs. Arden L. Norton of Cobleskill, and a brother, George S. VanSchaick, New York attorney and former vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co.

Another brother was the late Col. Louis J. VanSchaick, who was awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism in the Philippines, and who died shortly after the end of World War II as the result of privations in a Japanese prison camp.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, with the Rev. Seth R. Brooks, pastor, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Robert Cummins, general superintendent of the Universalist Church, and the Rev. Emerson Lalone, editor of the Christian Leader. Burial will be in Cobleskill.

Hugh Kingsmill

Brighton, England, May 16 (AP). Hugh Kingsmill, 55, author, biographer and critic, who wrote under the name Hugh Lunn, died yesterday. Among other works, he was the author of "The Sentimental Journey," and "The Return of William Shakespeare."

Israeli Fashions Shown at Luncheon

Hadassah Re-Elects Mrs. Samuel Lubin

Mrs. Samuel Lubin of Arlington, Va., was reelected and installed president of the Seaboard Region of Hadassah Women's Organization of America, yesterday at the concluding session of the organization's twenty-fourth annual conference held at the Statler Hotel.

Inducted as honorary president of SRH was Mrs. Louis Samuels of Baltimore. Mrs. Moses P. Epstein of New York, conference adviser, administered the oaths of office.

New officers elected and installed include Mrs. Henry Pilzer of Portsmouth, Va., second vice president; Mrs. Henry Segal of this city, third vice president; Mrs. Max Zager of Greensboro, N. C., vice president representing the Business and Professional Division of Hadassah; Mrs. Meyer Lu Goodman of Norfolk, recording secretary.

Reelected and inducted were Mrs. E. J. Binder of Newport News, Va., first vice president; Mrs. Jessie Brier of the District of Columbia, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. David Landy of Baltimore, treasurer.

At the morning session delegates adopted a resolution rededicating themselves to continued support of Israeli's medical and immigration programs.

Highlight of the installation luncheon yesterday was a fashion show depicting Israeli and American styles. The clothes from Israeli were made by students in one of the vocational schools there. The American fashions, including playtogs and bathing suits, will be sent to Israel in the two-way exchange between the two countries.

Mrs. Eugene Klein was commentator for the fashion show, entitled, "Two-Way Passage Between Democracies, or Clothes to Israel —Clothes from Israel."

A postconference cocktail party at the Mayflower Hotel honored Mrs. Moses Epstein, past national president of Hadassah, who served as adviser throughout the three-day conference.

Tomlinson Says U. S. Destiny Lies in Western Hemisphere

Edward Tomlinson, writer and broadcaster on Latin American affairs, declared yesterday that the Organization of American States, formerly known as the Pan American Union, is the "only voluntary cooperation for peace that has been successful."

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Woman's National Democratic Club, he told the large audience: "The League of Nations was a failure. The United Nations is stymied most of the time. But in the OAS there is no veto and no closed meetings.

"Little Haiti has one vote—the same number as the United States," he continued. "Proceedings are all open. In this organization is real democracy."

Deploring the fact that the OAS gets very little mention in the press, Tomlinson called upon the people of this country to preserve "this machinery for peace."

U. S. Destiny?

The speaker called upon the women of the Nation to join a crusade to convince the people of the United States that our destiny lies in the Western Hemisphere.

He said that if Europe survives politically, it will be shaky economically for some time to come. "I do not believe any amount of technological efficiency can prevent Europe's economic decline because of limited resources," he explained. "I am not advocating getting out of Europe. I think we should stay and do all we can. But our aid there is nothing but disaster insurance."

Annuity Insurance

"I believe in annuity insurance, too, he continued, "That's why I believe our destiny lies in our own world—North and South America."

According to Tomlinson, the 21 American nations together possess sufficient strategic materials to sustain western civilization. For example, he cited that coal could be found from Canada to Central America; that Brazil, which is larger than the entire United States plus another Texas, has the largest single iron ore deposit in the world.

"If we in the Western Hemisphere cooperate and collaborate, we have the necessary things to sustain civilization," concluded the speaker, warning that the United States will need the friendship of Latin America more in the next war than in the past one.

Mrs. Julian Friant, new club president, presided, and Mrs. Paul Porter, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Pakistan Fete Bright With Saris

By Elizabeth Maguire

MIDDLE EASTERN ladies in gararis and saris added a colorful note to the reception held yesterday at the Pakistan Embassy. Mme. Pandit, new Ambassador of India, wore violet chiffon; the wife of the Pakistan Ambassador, Mme. Ispahani, was costumed in gold tissue and brick satin, and Mme. Corea, wife of the Ceylonese Ambassador, wore a sari of olive green and gold metal cloth.

The party was given by the Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani in honor of Tamizuddin Khan, president of the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan, who has just come from attending the meeting of the General Council of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association at Ottawa.

Guests were received in the drawing room between the hours of 6 and 7:30, and in the oak-paneled dining room, a buffet was served, offering a variety of dishes, such as salmon, salads, spiced rice, and small cakes and ices.

Mme. Corea, a slim dark-eyed beauty, has a special flair for saris. With a tuck here and a twist there, she makes six yards of material look as intricate as a Paris frock, and all without the aid of a stitch or pin.

Her necklace yesterday was an unusually striking piece of jewelry. Made of gold, it was strung with about 50 miniature scabbords, with handles of carved gold and blades of ruby.

To Open Ottawa Mission

M. O. A. Baig, Counselor of the Embassy, said he is leaving today for Ottawa to open a mission for the new High Commissioner, Mohammed Ali, who is now Pakistan's Ambassador to Burma. When the High Commissioner arrives, Mr. Baig will return to Washington.

Assisting her mother with guests yesterday was Miss Iran Ispahani, a student at Holton Arms. She was dressed in garari of silver cloth and peach satin. She likes her school here but misses her home and friends in Karachi. She described Karachi as a city in the open desert with a beautiful garden around each house.

Among the diplomats attending yesterday's party were the Ambassador of Egypt and Mme. Abdul Rahim, accompanied by the visiting Minister of Foreign Affairs for Egypt, Ahmed Khashaba Pasha. A reception in honor of Minister Khashaba is to be held today at the Egyptian Embassy. Other diplomats at the party included the Ambassador of South Africa and Mrs. Andrews, the Ambassador of Iran, Hussein Ala, and the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Erkin.

From the State Department came the Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Muir, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Satterthwaite, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dahl, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Leach, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frye, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Lee West and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sparks.

Also in attendance were Associate Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., Representative and Mrs. Lawrence Smith, and Representative and Mrs. John Kee.

Philippine Ambassador Entertains for Visitors

A RECEPTION was held yesterday between 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock by the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, in honor of members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, who have just come here from attending a meeting in Brussels, Belgium. Members of the Washington Junior Chamber of Commerce and embassy staff members and their wives were among the other guests.

Ambassador Elizalde is leaving today for Cuba, where he will present his credentials as Minister to Cuba. He will be in Cuba about a week.

Miss Taaffe Entertains For Minnesota Visitors

MISS FLORENCE TAAFFE entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon at the American Newspaper Women's Club for her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Neil M. Cronin of Minneapolis, Minn. The honor guests came to Washington for the Women's National Press Club award dinner and stunt party last Saturday.

Among the guests at the 5 to 7 party were Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, Undersecretary of Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Presidential Economic Adviser and Mrs. John D. Clark, Senator and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, Consul General of Mexico and Senora Rafael Aveleyra, Mrs. Leon Henderson, Representative and Mrs. Eugene McCarthy, Representative and Mrs. Walter Judd, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Russel B. Reynolds, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Carl R. Gray, jr.

And then there were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stanton Ford and their house guest, Mrs. D. C. Bennett, formerly of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. K. Wallace Hustead, Mrs. Earl Gammons, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander F. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley O'Connor, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Coe.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts Everett, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schaefer, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Markel, Mrs. Elinor Lee, Miss Ruth Cowan, Mrs. Anne Williams Wheaton, Miss Jane Stafford, Miss Grace McGerr and Miss Dorothy Williams.

Dominican Envoy To Receive Students

THE Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Thomen will receive 50 or 60 students today from the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, led by Professor Jose Garcia Tunon. Tea will be served, and colored slides will be shown of the Dominican Embassy, with comments by Senora de Thomen.

On the same occasion, Ambassador Thomen will bestow his country's highest decoration, Juan Pablo Duarte, on Francis W. McKenney for his services in bringing about the success of the Dominican children's art exposition held recently at the Children's Museum of Washington.

R. L. Pomeroy Miss Jarrett, Wed in Rome

A wedding of interest to Washington took place in Rome, Italy yesterday, when Miss Cecily Jarrett became the bride of Robert Livingston Pomeroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cowles Pomeroy of Washington. Mr. Pomeroy, formerly of the United Press, is now devoting his time to writing in Rome. During the war he was with the Office of Strategic Services.

The bride is the daughter of Norman R. Jarrett, C.N.G., of Crowborough, England, and of Mrs. B. G. Drake of England. The wedding took place inp St. Paul's American Church in Rome, where the bride is employed by the British Embassy.

Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy will make their home at Posipano, near Sorento, Italy.

Sandbox Party for the Youngest

If your young one is lucky enough to have a sandbox in a corner of the yard or even an indoor one, here's an idea for a very simple party that is appropriate:

Ask not more than three or four other youngsters of your child's age in for an afternoon after-the-nap play period. Each one can bring a simple sandbox toy—measuring spoons and cups, sugar scoops of plastic or metal, toy boats and trains.

The play period should not be long—an hour probably the limit. Nor should you hover too closely. If and when the sand begins to be tossed about, you'll be needed. And if play begins to lag, perhaps the introduction of a few cans of water to moisten sand for moulding or to make play ponds will help.

Naturally, there should be no party clothes; overalls or playsuits would be in order. And refreshments can be confined to juice of some sort and a cracker or two.

To some of us, this may hardly sound like a party. It is, however, much more suitable than an elaborate and highly planned occasion. And it's something that can be done often since so little preparation is involved.

'Bundle Tea' May 23 to Aid War Victims

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward will give a "bundle tea" on Monday, May 23, at her home, 2400 Massachusetts ave. from 5:30 to 8 p. m.

Guests are asked to bring old clothing, men's and women's shoes, anything which would be useful to the war victims in France and Greece.

The donations will be sent through the American Women's Hospitals Home and Overseas Service, of which Dr. Esther P. Lovejoy of New York was the founder in World War I. She has worked continuously with the organization since then. Committee members who receive the packages on the day of the tea include Mrs. Corinne P. Phelps, Mrs. Edward McKinney Hunt, Mr. Horace C. Young, Mrs. Mildred Stonebraker, Mrs. P. Y. K. Howat, all of whom were active in the American Women's Hospitals Reserve Corps, of which Mrs. Ward was founder.

At the Tea Table

Taking their turn at the tea table will be Mrs. Harold Burton, Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. George Malone, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. John Steelman, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, Mrs. Conger Pratt.

Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. William Pope Anderson 3d and Mrs. Burks Summers.

La Residence Sociale near Paris will be the recipient of the collection designated for France. The home, in addition to caring for unwed mothers, maintains a clinic for children. Dr. Lovejoy is presidente d'honneur of the institution.

In Greece the Mayor of Kokkinia will receive the donations through the American Women's Hospitals and Overseas Service. The Queen of Greece is a sponsor of the organization.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Has Lovable Impecunious Husband Whom She Treasures, But Another Man's Kiss Has Kindled Conflict in Her Heart

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband is lovable and kind and wouldn't hurt a fly. Our three children adore him, he has twice as many friends as I have, and I wouldn't leave him for the world. But in the 15 years we have been married he has held 12 jobs, his highest salary was $50 a week (which didn't last long) and at present he is unemployed.

As soon as I realized his instability I took a business course and got a job to keep us afloat, and I have held this job ever since, with time out when the babies were due. My husband is always getting into personal debt, which I clean up annually with my bonus check; but he loves me very much and we get along.

Now for my problem: In my work I have met a charming, smart successful man who attracted me almost at first sight. I used to laugh at my coworkers' teasing every time he came into the office. They said we would be a perfect couple if we were single again. I enjoyed their fun and went right on being nice to him; and we had a lot in common culturally.

Husband Senses Something Wrong

THEN ONE evening as the office was closing John came to my boss for some specific information that we catalogue. The boss had another appointment that he couldn't break, so he referred John to me and left. As John and I were alone, going through the papers, we spontaneously embraced. I felt an overwhelming desire to belong to him. We kissed, then regained control, but I've been upset ever since, wanting to be in his arms. When I don't see him I am miserable and my husband senses that something is wrong.

If I could be free for one day, I would spend it with John in perfect bliss, and I know he feels the same about me, for we met at a business convention recently and discussed the whole matter. He agrees with me that we can't hurt our families; yet he says he longs for me with his whole being. If I keep my job, I shall be seeing him occasionally, so what can I do to conquer this crazy infatuation? I've been trying to smother it, without success, since that kiss six months ago. E. P.

Mother's Neurosis Activates Daughter

DEAR E. P.: I've had to cut your letter in half, leaving out the synopsis of your childhood, in which you say you'll never forget the terrifying incident, long ago, when your neurotic mother threatened suicide, brandishing a gun that your father snatched from her,—a scene that was due to her chronic jealousy of his civility to other women.

Also you say that you had many beaux in girlhood, plus a reputation for being a flirt; that you made a game of captivating boys without caring for them; and broke a wonderful boy's heart on your wedding day, because he had thought you might marry him.

Your father was an able and prosperous man and your husband is not. Rather he is a helpless, dependent, ne'er-do-well type; and in effect you wear the pants. But he loves you very much and you like that, and wouldn't leave him for the world. Thus it seems that your mother's neurosis has been the driving force in your emotional life.

Feels Defensive; Wants to Conquer

YOUR DEALINGS with men, including marriage, have been instinctively designed to make the male, not yourself, the "captive." You were unconsciously taking care that you'd never suffer as your mother did, of jealous panic or unrequited passion. You married a man who wouldn't hurt a fly, and there is balm in your conviction tha he needs you. You feel dominant in the relationship and that's why you treasure him as emotional "security."

As for John, he's probably a ladies' man, who ties in with memories of your father—as you "saw" the latter through your mother's eyes,—and thus at first sight made a nostalgic appeal to your senses. Your subsequent desire to "belong" to him is probably a desire to make a conquest, and thus cancel out the "threat" to your supremacy that his self-confident "charm" suggests. And perhaps this slant on the situation will help dissolve your crazy fixation.

One Who Knows Describes The Incredulous Delight A Gift From CARE Brings

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

The author of today's column is Ruth Yohn. She's the niece of our great and early aviator, General Billy Mitchell, a daughter of Ruth Mitchell, who joined the Chetniks, the Serbian guerilla organization, was captured by the Germans and spent over a year in Balkan prisons. She therefore has a special interest in Chetniks and Serbian DPs, knows more about the overall DP problem than anyone we know. It's a good idea for us to keep the forlorn DPs in mind, so we asked Ruth Yohn to set down a few facts about them and the organization she works for—CARE.

By Ruth Yohn

WHEN MOLLY THAYER asked me to write something about CARE for today, while she is off looking over conditions in Europe, my first thought was: "I wish Molly could arrange to be on hand at the moment when a CARE package arrives unexpectedly in the home of a family in Europe lucky enough to receive one."

Americans returning from Europe often drop into our office here in Washington and tell us: "Even though you work for CARE you can't possibly imagine, unless you've seen it yourself, the enormous amount of good will contained in a CARE package. It really makes you proud to be an American."

Of course, the answer to that is obvious. For all of us it is a privilege to share, even indirectly, in the happiness of so many people, as daily reflected in the letters brought into the office by package senders. If Molly should get too depressed over conditions in Europe, or if she should suffer from an overdose of headlines, I would like to recommend that she pay a visit to one of our CARE offices anywhere in Europe and watch the faces of the men, women and children who stream in to pick up their parcels.

To many of these tired, haggard-looking people it is quite unbelievable that the package is really meant for them. Over and over again we read in letters: "After the announcement came I kept thinking that it must be a mistake, it must be meant for somebody else. And then when I arrived in the CARE office and found out it actually was for me, I still couldn't believe that anyone in America would really send a CARE parcel to me."

Some That She Might Meet

IF MOLLY would spend a little time in one of the CARE offices, and then perhaps follow home some of the unfortunates whose lives have been momentarily brightened, she might meet, for example:

The lonely, orphaned French girl, who, confined to her room by the crippling effects of infantile paralysis, taught herself English so that she could write a long letter of thanks to the person who sent her a CARE package;

The German mother of a large family of children who was stopped on the street by the postman and handed a CARE package announcement, and who told the postman that she could no longer stand looking at the hungry faces of her children, and that only the news of the coming package had prevented her from throwing herself in front of a truck;

The blind Serbian refugee whose nurse wrote us that she watched in tears as the boy received his first package from America and smiling with joy took each item in his hands and stroked it.

'Victims of War Relief'

LUCKILY there is a lighter side to the picture, too. In fact, maybe Molly could visit the home of whoever received the package ordered by the helpful person who sent a $10 contribution for CARE and marked it "for a Victim of War Relief." That could be a very interesting experience!

I must say that at times we are quite convinced that the real "victims of war relief" are all of us in the CARE office. For example, one day in February an irate customer accused one of our volunteers of having sabotaged his package which he angrily pointed out as not having arrived in time for Christmas. When confronted with a receipt showing that he had not even ordered the package until January 15, he morosely muttered: "Well, I knew I sent it some time around Christmas."

We are constantly intrigued by the misaddressed mail which finds its way to us. Anything with "Care" on it will surely arrive in our Dupont Circle office. At the peak of the late presidential campaign, when the Republicans had offices in the same building, we received several letters addressed to Herbert Brownell, care of the Republican National Committee. Despite the temptation to learn the inner secrets of the Republican high command, we nobly carried the letters unopened downstairs and tried to leave them at the desk of one of the campaign receptionists, only to be informed that she had never heard of Mr. Brownell. We will let the political experts draw their own conclusion!

Gratitude Is Rewarding

NEEDLESS to say, however, we find great satisfaction in our work and in trying to help solve all the extraneous problems which arise when people become seriously interested in assisting needy families overseas. Our volunteers gladly translate grateful thank-you letters in various languages, look up the rules on how to send medicines and toys, how to bring DPs to this country and how to change European clothing sizes into their American equivalents. At the end of a busy day we like to remember what the late Alfred Bilmanis, Minister of Latvia, once wrote us: "Carus in Latin means the same as the French Cher, and indeed this name, CARE, will become one of the most cherished in human history . . ."

Annual Awards Cover Wide Range

27 AAUW Fellowships Provide $40,750 for Research by Women

The American Association of University Women has announced 27 fellowship awards, totaling $40,750, for advanced research by women. Most of the fellowships carry stipends of $1500. Studies to be carried out range from literature and musicology to labor relations and anthropology.

Projects will take 23 American fellows into several European countries plus Alaska and scattered research centers in the United States.

Selection of the international fellows is made by a committee of the International Federation of University Women. Others are chosen by the awards committee of the AAUW.

Miss Charlene Craft, formerly of Everett, Wash., and now an anthropology instructor at the University of Alaska, will conduct an archaeological field trip into Upper Kuskokwim this summer under her fellowship.

Dr. Barbara D. Blanchard, assistant professor of zoology at Santa Barbara College, University of California, will use her fellowship to continue a study of birds which migrate between California and Alaska

Latin American Award

Dr. Adela Cabezas of San Salvador, Central America, will come to this country for postgraduate training in pediatrics under the $1500 AAUW Latin American Fellowship. The only woman doctor in El Salvador, Dr. Cabezas is resident physician in pediatrics at Hospital Rosales, San Salvador.

Miss Marina Salvin, a native of Moscow, Russia, now a citizen of the United States and instructor in government at Barnard College, will do research for a doctoral dissertation on Soviet policies in the Balkans, with emphasis on the instruments by which the Soviet government has established its present relationships with the Baltic states.

Study Oriental Art

Miss Mildred Inzer Byers of West Durham, N. C., graduate student at Radcliffe College, will study the effect of industrialization on Southern liberalism from 1920 to 1949.

Miss Prudence R. Myer of Cleveland, Ohio, art history instructor at Mills College, will make a study of Oriental art and Chinese paintings at Harvard University.

Dr. A. A. Buriks, of the Netherlands, will study at Harvard University doing research in philosophy.

Dr. Lydia Bidinost, of Buenos Aires, a biochemical assistant with a commercial firm in Argentina, will conduct advanced research in biochemistry at Columbia University, New York.

Ted Shawn to Be Feted at Workshop Reception Today

Falls Church Pastor Honored

Members of the Presbyterian Church of Falls Church, Va., gave a reception Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock, in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. Alton B. Altfather. The occasion was in honor of Dr. Altfather's twenty-fifth year of pastorate in the present church and his and Mrs. Altfather's twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Sharing honors at this double anniversary fete were forty-nine members of the church who were members of the church before and at the time of Dr. Altfather's ordination. Each lady was presented a corsage, and a gift was presented to Dr. and Mrs. Altfather.

Flowers banked the church parlors where the reception was held, and a four-tier cake centered the tea table. Those who took a turn at pouring tea were Mrs. James H. Walker, Mrs. George B. Gordon, Mrs. Ira N. Potts and Mrs. Rex Hinshaw. Mrs. Patricia Fordyce played the marimba, and at 3 o'clock a brief ceremony was presided over by Hugh Miller, an elder of the church.

Ask Anne

Where in Washington is Salem China sold? If not sold here what is the company's address?
G. K. S.

I have not been able to find a store in this vicinity which sells this china. The address of the factory is Salem China Co., 150 Railroad ave., Salem, Ohio. I suggest you write to the factory for the names of the firms in this area which sell their product.

Recently I enjoyed a wonderful dessert called Peach Crumb Pie. I've found a Peach Pie recipe, but how does one make a crumb topping? S. C. H.

Crumb Topping can be made by mixing together these ingredients: 1 cup sweet cracker crumbs (crumbled graham crackers, vanilla wafers, rusks, or gingersnaps), ¼ cup sugar, 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon cinnamon (may be omitted).

Can you suggest anything to remove an old ink stain from a rose upholstered chair?
R. S. H.

It is very difficult to remove ink from upholstery, and especially is this true of old stains. Usually several methods must be tried before you find one which works. Start with the simplest method first. Dampen the spot and work cornstarch or talcum powder into the stain. If the powder takes up ink, brush away and repeat. When the dry powder fails to take up more ink, make the cornstarch into a paste with one part water and one part alcohol and apply again. Let dry and brush off.

If some ink still remains and the material is washable, rub one of the soapless shampoos into the stain. Rinse thoroughly and quickly with clear water. Continue as long as ink is removed. Be sure to rinse thoroughly with clear water and sponge in such a way as to avoid spreading the ring. If these treatments fail to remove all of the ink, sponge it with a half and half mixture of household ammonia and hydrogen peroxide. This is a mild bleach and so should not be allowed to remain on the material more than a few minutes. Be sure to test the effect of the solution on the color in an inconspicuous spot before applying to the stain.

I have a coffee table of redwood that has been varnished with clear varnish. I would like to have it in a light color to match blond furniture. Is there some way I can bleach it?
M. H.

Yes, you can bleach it by using a commercial bleach which can be bought where paints are sold. First remove the present finish with a good paint and varnish remover. When the piece is clean, apply the bleach according to the directions which come with the product you buy. When bleached, sand smooth and finish by applying two or three coats of clear shellac. Dry the shellac thoroughly and rub down with powdered pumice and light oil to get a satiny finish. The pumice and oil is applied by placing the oil in a shallow dish. Touch a soft cloth to the oil, then to the pumice in a second shallow container and rub the furniture with it. Rub always with the grain and continue rubbing until smooth. Clean the wood by wiping with a clean cloth dampened with oil. This may be followed with wax, if you wish.

Do you know of any way that rayon satin covered down comforts can be successfully cleaned at home? I have tried carbon tetrachloride without success.
W. B. C.

There is no home method for cleaning down comforters which can be used with any degree of safety. The only thing which can be done to freshen them is to hang in the sun and breeze to fluff them.

My plastic table cloth has developed a soiled appearance around the edge of the table that does not yield to plain soap and water. Might this be soaked in the tub with a stronger solution? I once read in your column help in removing the stain in the hem of the shower curtain. Could you repeat?
W. A. N.

I don't know of a chemical stronger than soap which I could recommend on plastics. Have you tried a brush to clean it? Lay the cloth on a flat surface, dust with soap powder and scrub the soiled edges with a brush. If this doesn't dislodge it you could dust a little scratchless cleaning powder onto the cloth and continue scrubbing with a brush.

The same method can be used to clean the shower curtain hem except that with this, as before washing with soap, apply vinegar to the curtain and rub with a damp cloth or brush. This will remove the hardened soap scum. Rinse and hang straight to dry.

The look of being classicly a casual . . . in the morning, with crisp little accessories. The look of being wholly feminine, charming . . . in the afternoon, with dark picture hat. This duo is cut from Belfast Irish linen, Tebilized so its beauty is blessedly crease-resistant.

Each . . . $29.95

Right, buttons slant away from a tailored collar, on a beautifully cut dress. Light blue, maize, orchid. Sizes 14½ to 22½.

W&L—Women's Dresses, Third Floor.

Approaching perfection in tailoring . . . for the smartly dressed Washingtonian who likes a summer suit to have a meant-for-town look about it. This is one of three styles . . . a taut little jacket, a smooth skirt half-belted to the back. White pique contrast. Sizes 10 to 16.

$39.95

600 Women Attend Class On Securities

By S. Oliver Goodman

A capacity audience of 600 women last night attended a pioneer course in investments at American University's Clendenen hall. At least 270 other women, who had applied for enrollment, were disappointed.

Francis C. Hunter, resident manager of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, said last night that a second course for the overflow will probably be launched by autumn. The Merrill Lynch firm was sponsor of last night's free course, which will include two more classes on May 24 and May 31.

After an address of welcome by Hunter, other members of the investment firm took over. Tom Brahany was the master of ceremonies. Harold Williams, an account executive, spoke on "Why Invest?" Miss Evelyn Burr, another account executive, spoke on "Types of Securities."

A question and answer period then followed, with Williams and George Galleher replying to the many questions.

Among the 600 present, according to Hunter, there were 168 housewives. Next largest group consisted of Government clerks with 78. Other groups included secretaries 72; statisticians and analysts 25; unemployed widows 20; unemployed misses 24; students 7; doctors 2; attorneys 11; bank employes 4; school teachers 6; secretaries to congressmen and senators 7; newspaperwomen 7 and accountants 5.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: J. Budd Breidenstein has been appointed manager of the Washington retail sales district of Scott Paper Co. . . . F. Leon Yetter is the new personnel director in the foreign department of the Kuljian Corp., Philadelphia engineers and constructors. . . . Thomas A. Moore has been named parts and accessories sales manager of Ford International, Inc., and Francis H. Blake his assistant. . . . Paul E. Seaman has been appointed general sales manager of Encyclopedia Britannica.

GARFINCKEL ANALYZED: In its current market letter Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath points out that sales of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., have increased each year since 1940 "and for the first nine months through March of the current fiscal year compare favorably with the some period last year." The investment house concludes that Garfinckel's is in the best financial position it has enjoyed in several years with current assets 4½ times current liabilities.

ODD LOTS: Steel production is expected to drop again this week (the fifth in a row) with operations at 95.6 per cent of rated capacity, against 96.2 per cent last week . . . Syndicate headed by First National Bank of Chicago submitted best bid for $23,800,000 in various purpose bonds offered by the State of Massachusetts. The bid named an interest cost to the State of 1.635 per cent . . . Decca Records, Inc., has formed a subsidiary to be known as Vocalion Records, Inc., to produce popular records for 49 cents each, plus tax . . . American Airlines reported a record 3,288,277 ton miles of freight in April, an increase of 6.9 per cent over the previous month and 96 per cent more than in April, 1948.

CAPSULE FACTS: Latest population estimates for Washington and nearby counties, utility rates, tax and insurance rates, climatic facts, employment figures, etc. are contained in a factual survey compiled by the Washington Real Estate Board, Inc. Free copies are available at the board's offices, 1417 K st. nw.

ANALYSIS: Standard & Poor's Corp. said the business and price adjustment now in progress will be the basis for an era of good business lasting several years. In a special study, the business research organization said the economic structure is basicly healthy. "We are convinced that a depression as severe as in 1920-21 or 1929-32 is out of the question," the report concluded. "Instead, we foresee a recession increasing in intensity as the year progresses, but proving to be relatively moderate over-all and comparatively short in duration."

ANNIVERSARY FETE: More than 400 employes, their families and other guests will attend the fifty-first anniversary celebration of the Fred S. Gichner Iron Works, Inc., on Saturday night. The founder, Fred S. Gichner, will be present at the affair in the company's main plant at 1214 24th st. nw.

EARNINGS—R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. reported estimated net income of $8,313,000 for the March quarter, equal to 76 cents a share on combined common and Class B stocks. Comparable figures for the same 1948 period are not available. Other earnings statements:

Chicago Grain

Chicago May 16 (AP)—Most grains, soybeans and lard ended closer lower on the Board of Trade today. Exceptions to the general trend were May wheat and May and July soybeans.

May wheat jumped to its best price since early January a few minutes after the opening. A commission house broker bought fairly large quantities when the May contract touched 2.28, where it had been stopped last week, and the price spurted to 2.27 in a few seconds.

After that the market quieted down and for the rest of the day the May delivery fluctuated between 2.25 and 2.27. New crop wheat advanced with May early, but all these deliveries later sank below last Saturday's close.

Wheat ended ¾ lower to 1¼ higher, corn was ⅛ to ⅜ lower, oats were unchanged to ¼ lower, rye was 2½ to 3 cents lower, soybeans were ½ lower to 1½ higher, and lard was 5 to 12 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Guard Admits Killing Wife, Inquest Told

Coghill

Spell

A 36-year-old Civil Service Commission building guard, Freddie Spell, jr., turned himself in at No. 1 Police Precinct Station yesterday morning and admitted the fatal shooting of his 28-year-old wife, police said.

Spell, of 937 M st. nw., was held in District Jail after appearing before a coroner's jury which ordered him held for grand jury action.

His wife, Lela Spell, was pronounced dead on the floor of her bedroom at 10:12 a. m. by Dr. Roy Temeles of Emergency Hospital. The doctor testified he found the pajama-clad woman lying face down with three bullet wounds in the chest and one in the head.

Argued Over "Finances"

According to testimony by Homicide Detective John K. Baker, Spell said he and his wife woke about 9 a. m. yesterday and continued a fight they began Sunday night over "finances."

She got up and took a gun from under the pillow, Spell told police, and during his scuffle to get it away from her, it went off.

Spell told police he "got excited" and kept pulling the trigger.

Baker said a .38-caliber, five-shot revolver, found on the bedroom dresser, had one exploded and one unexploded shell in it. Five empty shells were found on the floor.

Mrs. Evelyn Coleman, 19, sister of the dead woman, who lived in the same apartment, said she was awakened by the shots and entered her sister's bedroom to find her lying on the floor, with Spell aiming a gun at her head. She did not see him pull the trigger, but heard more shots after she fled, she testified.

Mrs. Coleman said Spell had accused his wife of "running around with other men" in the Sunday night quarrel.

Inquest Holds Man In Fatal Stabbing

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Anthony Coghill, 47, of 1401 5th st. nw. held for grand jury action in the fatal stabbing of Wilson King, 42, of the same address during a fight there Sunday night.

Witnesses at the inquest differed on whether King threw a milk crate at Coghill before or after he was allegedly cut by the accused.

A puzzle developed when Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy testified that King died of a 4-inch deep stab wound in the chest, and commented that it could not have been caused by the 2-inch blade of a penknife Coghill admitted wielding on King.

Querfurth, Sachs Score In Recital

By Paul Hume

Rudolph Querfurth and Francis Sachs played a viola and a piano recital last night in Phillips Gallery.

The viola has a rich tone, and an increasingly rewarding repertoire all its own. Querfurth built his program around the massive suite by Ernest Bloch. This profound, and we must add, long work came alive under the probing examination of both viola and piano. Querfurth understands music and its structure well.

He is, unfortunately, too reticent about proclaiming both music and his own personality. We are not interested in artists who allow their personal characteristics to overshadow the art they serve. But Querfurth does himself and his listeners an injustice by his extreme diffidence. He has a talent, and the means to display it. He must adopt a more forthright approach before audiences.

Both the opening Vivaldi sonata and Schubert's ubiquitous sonata written for the arpeggione, seemed long and pedantic because the artist failed to make explicit to his audience what the music obviously implies to him.

Since the Bloch suite is a more compelling score, it brought more fire from the violist, and in turn roused the listeners to greater enthusiasm at its close. Francis Sachs must receive unusual acclaim for her brilliant piano work all evening. She not only controlled the piano in beautiful balance, but her tone, her sense of rhythm, and her style were outstanding. Mr. Querfurth has reason to be particularly thankful for so intelligent and able an assistant for she was more than ordinarily helpful to him toward the close of the Bloch, and in Arthur Benjamin's catchy San Domingo pieces.

U. S. Wins Step In Battle on Tideland Oil

The United States Government moved one step nearer yesterday toward obtaining control of all the oil-rich tidelands off the Nation's shores.

The Supreme Court, without an announced dissent, agreed to decide who has the paramount interest in the tidelands off Louisiana and Texas. It already has declared the Nation holds the major interest in offshore California.

The States have been seeking delay in the courts in the hope Congress would vote title in the tidelands to the States. Congress did so once, but failed to override President Truman's veto.

The Government has been pushing for a court decision, charging the States with delaying tactics while lobbying with Congress.

Yesterday's action permits the Government, through Attorney General Tom Clark to sue the two States for money collected in royalties since the California decision in June of 1947.

The Court gave the States until September 1 to answer the Government's suit. The Court may or may not appoint a special master to take evidence. In the California case, the Court heard arguments in open session.

Justice Jackson Abstains

Justice Robert H. Jackson did not take part in yesterday's ruling.

Texas Congressmen expressed regret at the ruling, but most of them were not surprised. Several suggested legislative action to settle the controversy. In Texas, Gov. Beauford H. Jester said he was "hopeful" Congress would give the tidelands to the States.

In other actions yesterday the Court:

1. Decided, 7 to 2, that the United States can be ordered to pay damages for the death or injury of soldiers even when payments already have been made under military and veterans' benefit laws. The case involved two brothers, one killed, the other injured, in a highway accident, when on Army leave, and payments to the parents.

2. Ruled unanimously the Federal Communications Commission properly denied a license renewal to station WORL of Boston.

The Court announced it expects to conclude its term on June 20. However, it still has a backlog of more than 50 undecided cases, and may not make the date.

Officials, Units Of Agriculture Get Awards

Claude R. Wickard, wartime Secretary of Agriculture and now Rural Electrification Administrator, was one of five Department of Agriculture employes to receive department honors at an awards ceremony yesterday in the Sylvan Theater.

The awards, together with numerous lesser citations to individuals and units of the department, were presented by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan.

The program is an annual event either on May 15 or the nearest working day to it to commemorate the department's birthday. President Lincoln signed the bill setting up a Department of Agriculture on May 15, 1862.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), the principal speaker at the event, complimented Secretary Brannan on his efforts to keep farm support prices high. Senator Thomas attacked the support program which will go into effect January 1, 1950, because he said it could lower the farmer's standard of living 40 per cent.

The five highest citations were the Distinguished Service Awards. They consist of gold medals and parchment certificates and went to employes selected for outstanding public service by a special board.

Wickard, who became head of REA in 1945 after five years as Secretary of Agriculture, was cited for foresight and perseverance in the development of wartime farm programs and for contributing to the enrichment of rural life through his advocacy of scientific farming. Wickard lives at the Westchester Apartments.

The other recipients of Distinguished Service Awards are:

Dr. Charles A. Carr, 69-year-old head of the Division of Nutrition and Physiology at the Bureau of Dairy Industry, Beltsville, Md., who discovered a B-12 vitamin in milk, a previously unrecognized factor which was found to have "a profound influence on the nutritional welfare of mammals."

Dr. Elmer W. Brandes, 59, in charge of the Division of Sugar Plant Investigations of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville, who was a leader in the development of research programs for sugar cane, sugar beets and rubber.

Edgar S. McFadden, 60, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils, and Agricultural Engineering, College Station, Tex., who developed the original rust-resistant wheat.

Leslie J. Sullivan, 34, a forester in the Olympia National Forest, Wash. Sullivan was honored for saving the life of a lumberjack whose clothes caught fire and who was pinned by a burning log. Sullivan himself was burned badly on his hands.

More Get Awards

Superior Service Awards for "especially meritorious execution of duties, initiation of a suggestion that has resulted in important savings in money, time, materials, personnel or equipment," went to 53 other Department employes and 17 units.

Lawyer Reveals Request to Clear Maj. Gen. Bissell

Wiesbaden, Germany, May 16 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell's attorney said tonight an Army investigator has recommended dismissal of court martial charges against Bissell, and has urged his complete exoneration.

The lawyer complained, however, that high United States Air Force officials in Washington were demanding further investigation.

Arch McDonald Makes "Big News"

John L. McGrew of 2112 Belvedere dr., Silver Spring, Md., is impressed by the caption run by one of our afternoon contemporaries under a picture of Arch McDonald officiating at the Nats' "Welcome Home" party.

John notes that 17 Nats are identified in the caption and the remainder are accounted for with the explanation: "The other members of the team are hidden behind Mr. McDonald." Quips John:

"If the Nats are now down to the 25-player limit, that still leaves eight players in hiding behind Arch. Is he really that big?"

No, John, he's not. It's just a trick camera angle.

On the other hand, Our Arch is not what you would call a small man. Nobody who has had so many beer sponsors down through the years could expect to be.

HOMOGENIZED AND VITAMIN ENRICHED?

Emma W. Muncaster of Derwood, Md. observes that in a recent edition of The Washington Post, the end of a story in column seven got "lost," and when the reader turned to the top of column eight for the remainder of it, he found only a liquor ad. The result was a sequence that went like this:

"For babies, Dr. Hahn says, it takes a month of training to break the thumb-sucking habit. He recommends that the baby Call a Man Who's Switched to Calvert."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Male kitten, 8 weeks old; female cat, 1 year old." (Adams 4185.)

"Part-Maltese mother cat and three 4-week-old kittens. Also 7-month-old black female kitten, housebroken." (Sligo 5623.)

"Two-year-old mother cat; year-old female cat; four kittens born April Fool's Day. All have slight touch of Persian, and are housebroken." (Chestnut 5423.)

"Four healthy, fluffy, playful kittens, 2 months old." (Franklin 3764.)

"Solid black, housebroken, female kittens; one 4 weeks old, one 12 weeks old." (Woodley 7023.)

BRIDGE NAMES

T. B. Hudson of 101 Holmes Run rd., Falls Church, Va., joins the discussion of suitable names for the twin spans across the Potomac.

He points out that Jefferson has already been honored with the Jefferson Memorial, and that "Ohio" should be reserved for one of our avenues. Then, as constructive suggestions, he offers:

"North-South Bridge," "Lee-Grant Bridge," and "Pershing-Eisenhower Bridge."

I wouldn't argue too much about "Franklin Delano Roosevelt Memorial Bridge," as has also been suggested, but I'm partial to District Liner Hudson's first and last proposals.

"North-South" is short, descriptive and appropriate. "Pershing-Eisenhower" would undoubtedly be shortened in everyday usage—but would nevertheless give recognition to two of the Nation's greatest military leaders.

MISCELLANY

Lady Luck certainly likes to play strange pranks. Bob White of 4901 Hollywood rd., Berwyn, Md., has just returned to work after being invalided for six weeks. And of course after carrying a group hospitalization policy for nine years it wasn't in effect when he finally needed it . . . The reason that it has been so long since we heard from Hank Hawkins of 4701 S. 7th st., Arlington, Va., is that he's been busy getting started in the novelty business. His best seller is called "Stampix"—your photo reduced to the size of a postage stamp . . . Manuel Goldman of 7566 8th st. nw., reports that his two sons (Freddie, 8, and Eddie, 5) want to be Washington Post carrier boys when they grow up—"just like Rex." They mean Rex Case of 7607 Eastern ave., Takoma Park, Md., who has been commended before for his quiet, efficient service . . . When Tommy Beane of the Osbourn High School track team won the 220-yard dash in a recent meet in 23.7 seconds, the Manassas (Va.) Messenger headlined the story: "Tommy Beane Runs 220 in 23 Minutes, 7 Seconds" . . . Snorts an alert reader: "He must have been carrying Walter Haight on his back."

CHERCHEZ LA FEMME

Mrs. Victor A. Frank, jr., of 10725 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., dialed a downtown clothing store the other day, and asked for "misses' suits."

The switchboard operator didn't quite get it, and asked her to repeat it. The second try produced no better results, so Mrs. Frank spelled it. The operator said, "One moment, please," then vanished for a while. When she finally came back on the line, it was to announce:

"I'm sorry, lady, but my personnel list doesn't show any Mrs. Suits working here."

"I feel safer in here . . . my wife's just discovered I've lost our picnic lunch with the Land O'Lakes Sweet Cream Butter sandwiches!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Calder's Utility on SEC Carpet

By Drew Pearson

Today will be unfolded the inside story of why Curtis Calder, tall, handsome head of giant Electric Bond and Share, delayed 60 days in accepting President Truman's bid to be Secretary of the Army.

Calder

It will be unfolded before the Securities and Exchange Commission in what on the surface may appear to be humdrum hearings, but which beneath the surface means millions in dividends to stockholders.

Beneath the surface also, lurks the most important economic question placed before either Franklin D. Roosevelt or Harry Truman. In fact it goes to certain root differences between Roosevelt and Truman.

In 1932 Roosevelt picked the big banks and utilities as his principal target of economic attack and, of them, Electric Bond and Share bore the brunt of battle. After election, FDR made good on his campaign promises, and despite murderous pressure from big business lobbies, he got Congress to pass the Banking Act of 1933, the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934, the Holding Company Act of 1935 and the Investment Company Act of 1940.

Not only did FDR put these laws on the statute books, but he appointed his ablest men to enforce them—Justice William O. Douglas now of the United States Supreme Court, Justice Ferdinand Pecora now of the New York Supreme Court, Leon Henderson, James M. Landis and Justice Jerome Frank of the United States Court of Appeals.

The company which fought hardest against these laws, especially the Holding Company Act, was Electric Bond and Share, which took to the Supreme Court almost every SEC move to protect small investors.

HST Reverses FDR

Then came the Administration of Harry Truman, and FDR's crusading policy was changed almost overnight, when Truman selected the head of the corporation which so bitterly fought Roosevelt, Curtis Calder, to be Secretary of the Army.

Actually Truman continues to be the great advocate of public power—at least on paper. But as in so many other cases, Truman's selection of personnel undercuts his policy. For as Secretary of the Army, Calder would control the Army Engineers, who build the big dams, and who swing powerful influence against Government power projects.

Reasons for Truman's sudden reversal of Roosevelt policy by selecting Calder for this vital post probably were:

1. Calder is the intimate friend of big investment banker Floyd Odlum, largest contributor to the Truman campaign fund, and head of the world's largest investment trust—the Atlas Corporation. Atlas has long dominated Electric Bond and Share, while Odlum served as its attorney and vice president. Odlum's motto is: "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em"; and he has maneuvered to put his men in various key spots.

2. Odlum's Consolidated Aircraft had paid a legal retainer to Louis Johnson and kept him as a director before Johnson became Secretary of Defense. Johnson is sometimes naive and super-faithful to his friends.

Propaganda Man

Whatever the reasons, all you have to do is read the records of the Federal Trade Commission to see how far Harry Truman strayed from the policies of the man who made him.

FTC records contain chapter and verse on Calder's activities. They tell how Calder, then head of Texas Power and Light, led the power trust propaganda drive in the Southwest. They tell how Calder was the first utility executive to advocate lining up school teachers to promote the utilities. (Later the power trust even subsidized professors and tried to eliminate textbooks which failed to laud the utilities.)

Calder delivered talk after talk before schools and civic groups in the Southwest, extolling the great blessings of utilities and the evils of municipal ownership. He did such a good job that he was promoted to be president of American and Foreign Power (1927-1944), then went on to head up the parent company, Electric Bond and Share.

SEC on the Spot

What Curtis Calder runs up against before the SEC today is a battery of irate stockholders who point out that American and Foreign Power has defaulted on both first and second preferred stock dividends. In addition, it hasn't paid dividends on common stock since 1930.

As a result of these defaults, a United States District Court in Maine recently ordered the SEC to hold a hearing and listen to stockholders' complaints. At first the SEC had appeared loath to do this—possibly because Truman had listened to Boss Ed Flynn of the Bronx and appointed certain friendly Democrats to the SEC. But faced with a court order, the SEC is now very much on the spot.

If it takes favorable action for the stockholders, and against Calder and Odlum, then the SEC may incur the ire of a gentleman who doesn't relish opposition to his candidates for office. (Witness his stubborn defense of Mon Wallgren.)

What happened was that Electric B and S proposed floating a 35-million-dollar bond issue to reorganize American and Foreign Power. The reorganization was opposed by some stockholders, some of whom claimed this was merely the old game of borrowing money to pay dividends.

At first the courts sided with the company and against the stockholders — until something unexpected happened. The big banks and insurance companies refused to buy the new bond issue. Also the once "sucker" public shied away from buying. Result: American and Foreign Power went into default on dividends on both first and second preferred stocks, causing the United States District Court in Maine to reverse itself and order the SEC to reconsider the entire case.

That is why a battery of lawyers for both stockholders and utilities has descended on Washington, and why some of Truman's biggest campaign contributors will be in the spotlight during the humdrum hearings starting today.
